Redskins broaden their horizons

As the eastern skyline lit up with a fiery crest and projected its scorching rays down upon a perspiring, but persevering student body, Redskins rose to the occasion, and walked the hallowed halls of North once again.

During the week before school started, the B.O.E debated on instituting a "heat schedule," making the time 7-2. As a result, the air conditioned library became a popular lunch-time "hangout."

While most Redskins were sweating it out in the classroom, the football team was on the practice field "warming up" for their first game of the season against Northwest. With fevers running high on spirit and a car caravan to cheer on the football team, Redskins were spurred to a decisive 28-0 victory over the Grizzlies.

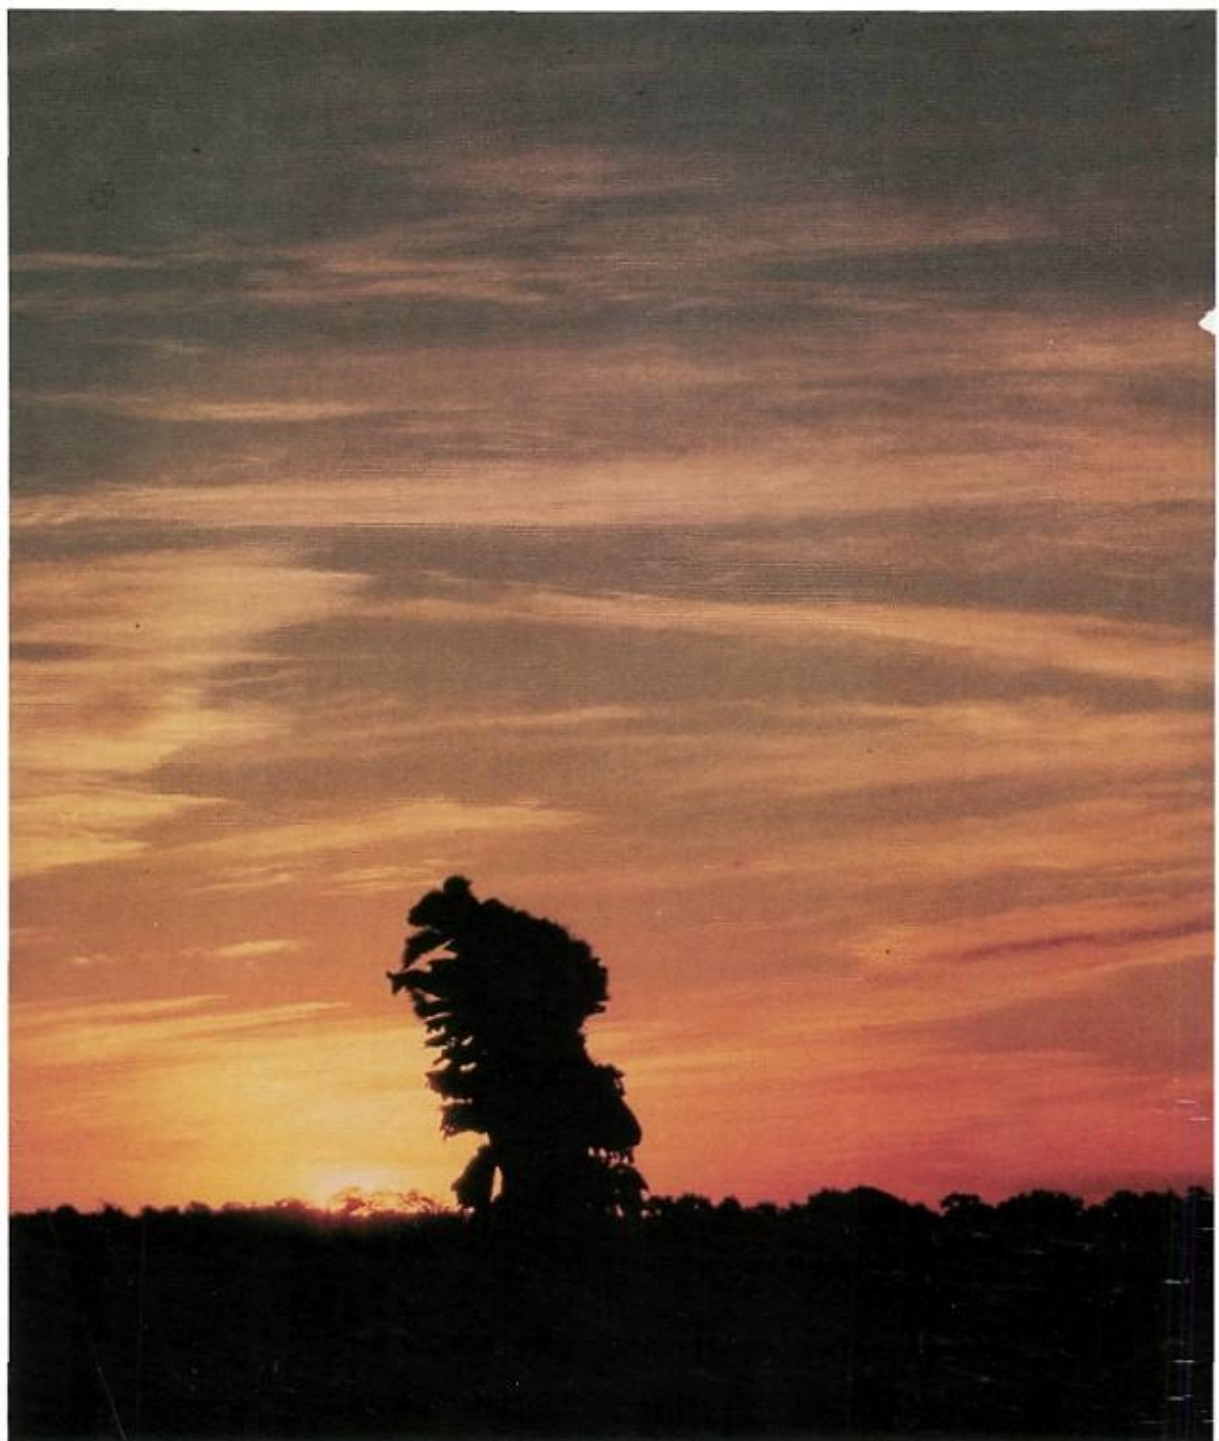

In only two weeks Redskins were already in high gear and ready to go. They were ready to go to new levels and plateaus for a new year. Redskins were in search of new horizons.

Quarterback Greg Orth, jr., listens attentively as Coach Shepler discusses the plays for the next offensive drive.

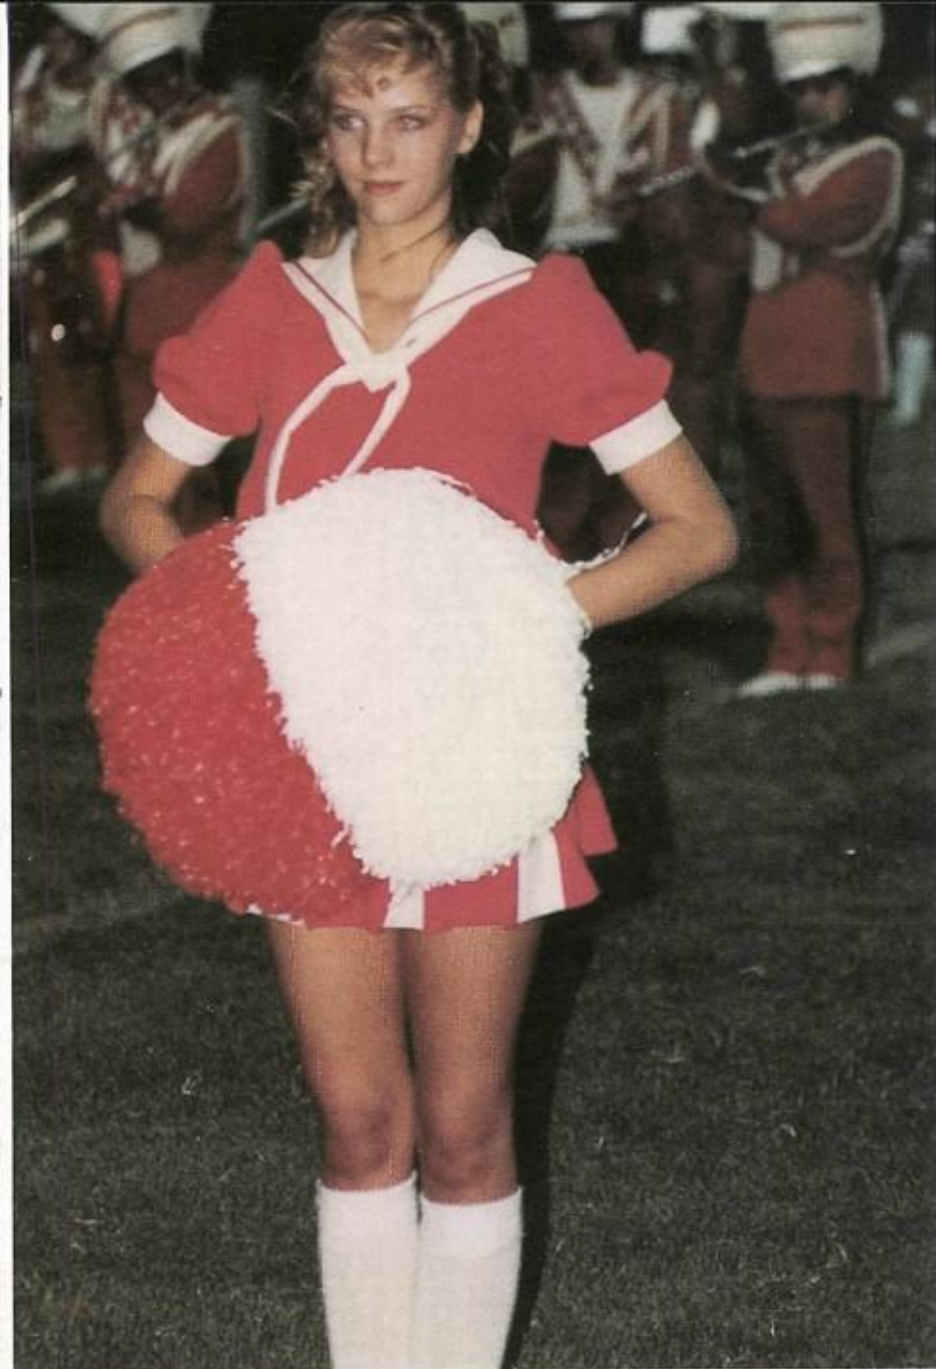

Seniors Laurie Janzing and Becky Johnson show their spirit by participating in Cowboy Day during Spirit Week.

As the sun emerges in the eastern sky, Redskins are eager to approach a new school year.

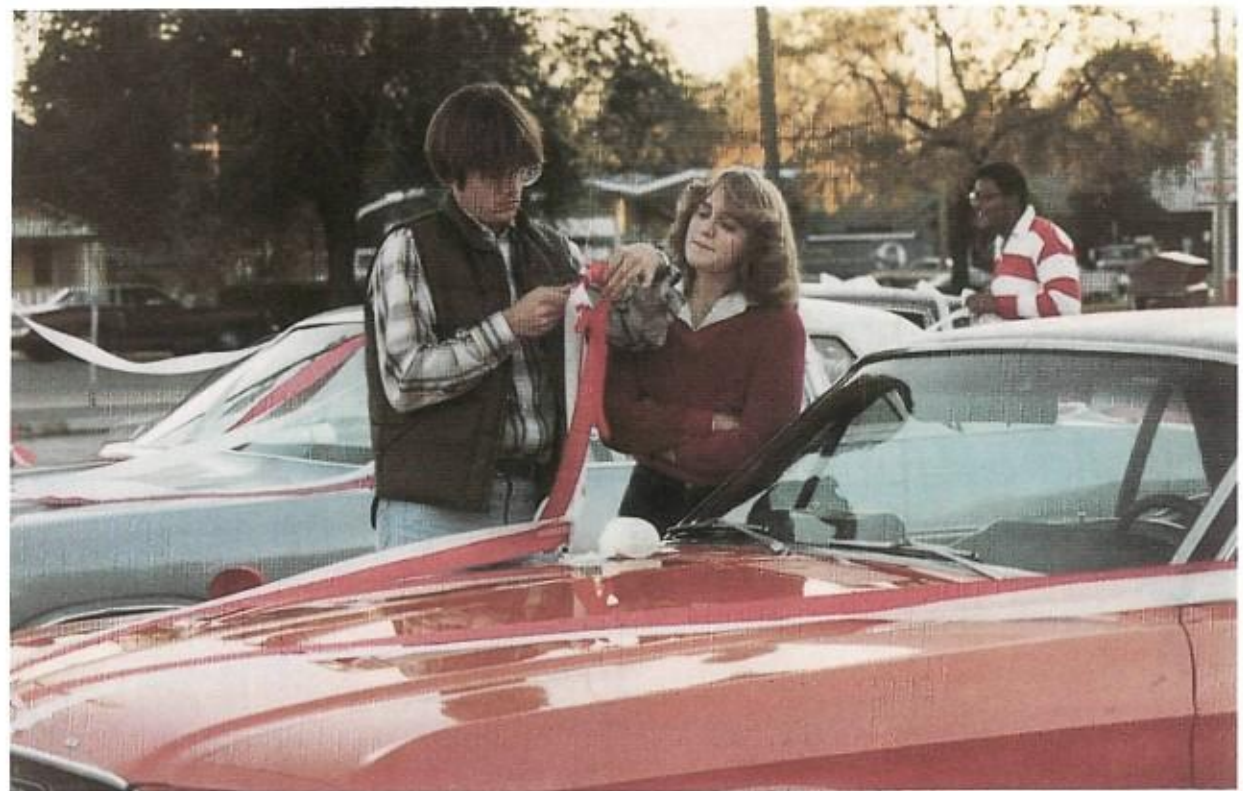

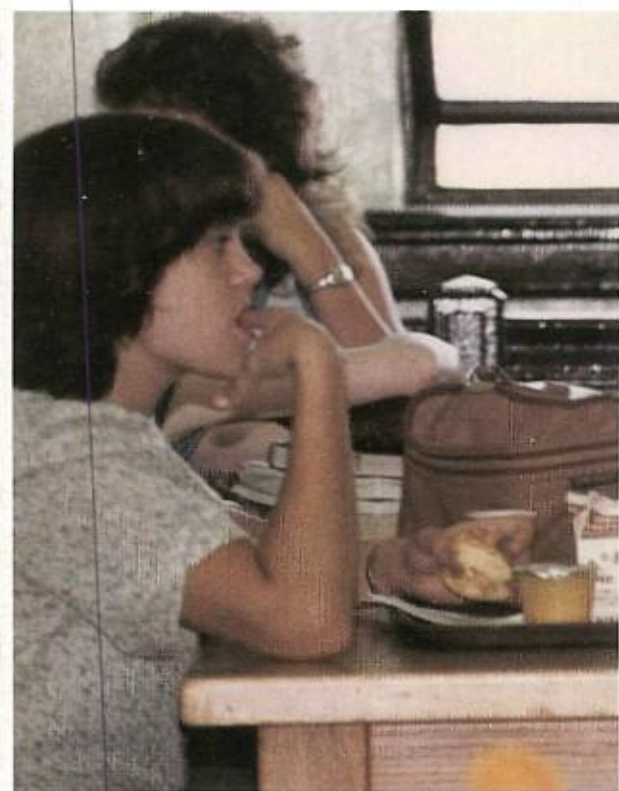

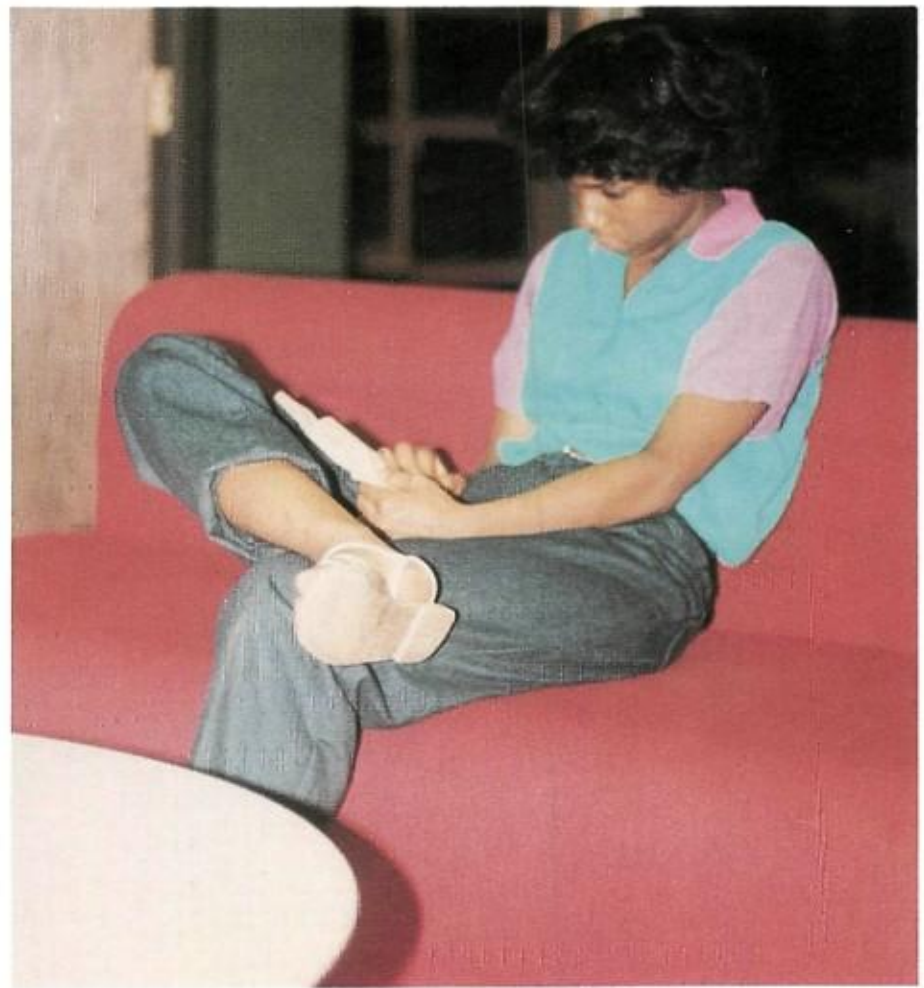

Listening to the music, Kristine Stockwell, jr., waits for her cue to perform at a football game.

Comfy couches and air conditioning are two reasons why Rebeka McCartney, sr., picks the library as a place to read a good book during the hotter months of the school year.

Nutrition break gives Kim Howard, jr., a chance to eat, relax, and break away from study during second hour.

Practicing for Band Day at W.S.U., Julian Pando, soph., Julie Loveland, soph., and Jackie Smith, fr., concentrate on keeping their timing as they march and play through the show.

As a part of Homecoming week, Senior class was awarded with first place in the hall decorating contest.

Jack's remains a favorite lunch time hangout to North High students.

Drum majorette Sonya Sumpter, sr., conducts the band during half time at the home football game against East.

Involvement adds another dimension

Though students were busy trying to get in gear and into a daily routine, they still found the time to get caught up in school spirit and have a little fun.

Friday assemblies before football games enabled Redskins to release their enthusiasm in a constructive manner. It was no problem getting the football team fired up and hungry for victory, as student spirit hit fever pitch.

Once again, North was very instrumental in the United Way fund drive. Redskins contributed a total of $867 to this cause, and seniors received an hour lunch one day for raising more money than any other class. An "Almost Anything Goes" assembly served as the chief fund-raiser for United Way.

Students realized that it only takes a little involvement and some genuine effort to make school something to look forward to. By reaching out to grab a little extra, students expanded their horizons and increased their incentive to pursue even higher goals.

With determination, Jay Wassall, soph., wobbles to the finish line in the "Almost Anything Goes" assembly.

Physiology requires many labs, including the dissection of cats as shown by Seniors Linda Simmons and Kelly Scanlan.

As a part of the obstacle course in the "Almost Anything Goes" assembly, Janette Johnson, jr., waits in the tunnel while Kim Gates, jr., removes her shoes.

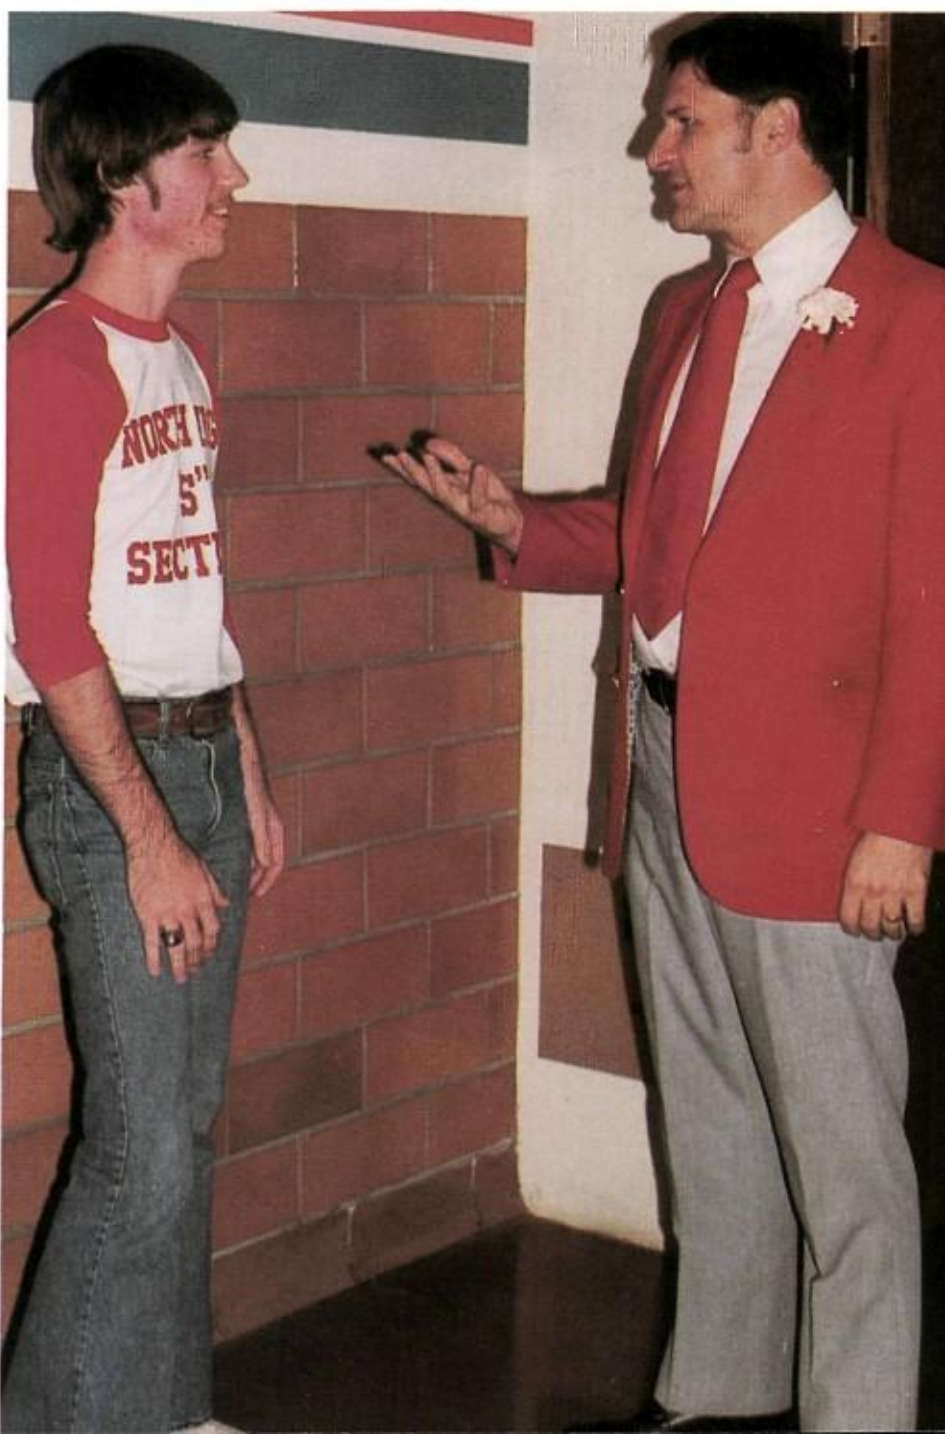

Seniors Aaron Rice and Lance Milsap take time out from their class to get a drink from the new water fountains in senior hall.

Kim Walker, jr., carefully putts the ball in an attempt to sink it for a parr.

Since food is no longer allowed in the halls, enjoying lunch under an open sky became a good way to pass the time.

As Dr. Longhofer expresses his view, S-Section member Todd Arndt, sr., listens attentively.

Before completing a project in woods, Chris Franklin, soph., sands down the wood for a finer texture.

Remodeling gives new appearance

Veteran Redskins probably noticed a few changes as they returned from their summer vacation.

After 52 years of the same old restrooms, they received a total facelift. Also, a new row of drinking fountains was placed at either end of Senior Hall.

Until this year one could walk the halls at lunchtime or sit on a staircase and eat their lunch. However, this practice caused a few problems. Miscellaneous trash dotted the halls constantly, making scenery around North High resemble the aftermath of a rock concert. Thus, a new policy was instituted, specifying that food was allowed only in the cafeteria.

New trees replaced dying ones on the campus. Young Red Oaks, Maples, Ash, and Redbuds were planted to provide beauty throughout the seasons.

Students were off to a full year of new things. Challenges and achievements never before encountered were on the horizon ready to be searched out and conquered.

In auto mechanics, spectators watch over as Hector Arambula, sr., performs a valve job on the engine.

Activities help relieve boredom

Each year in high school there are students attempting to conquer new horizons that present challenges academically, as well as tests of discipline.

Of course, students are not the only people who are involved in school. In order for parents to reacquaint themselves with the "ins" and "outs" of high school life, open house was held on September 9. The administration decided to make it early in the school year so that parents could get a close look before report cards were issued.

During the scorching days of August and September, tempers sometimes ran a little high. In order to add some variety, an outdoor pep rally was held. With cheerleaders and yell leaders ready to perform, Redskins got keyed up for the upcoming football game.

Staying "tuned in" to what is happening in one's own environment can be a true learning experience. Many horizons are waiting to be discovered if one is willing to open the door to his mind. High school can be something positive to look back on.

Clowning around at football games is the favorite pastime for Juniors David Bullinger and Jay Allen.

As a special addition to a pep assembly, S-Section members show their precision and skill in handling the flags.

At the Heights Invitational, Jennifer Cale, sr., receives an award for the mile.

As a participant in sophomore orientation, Melissa Gegen, soph., gets the traditional initiation of the whipped cream pie.

After Open House, everyone joins in the library for punch, coffee, and cookies served by the Pom Pon girls.

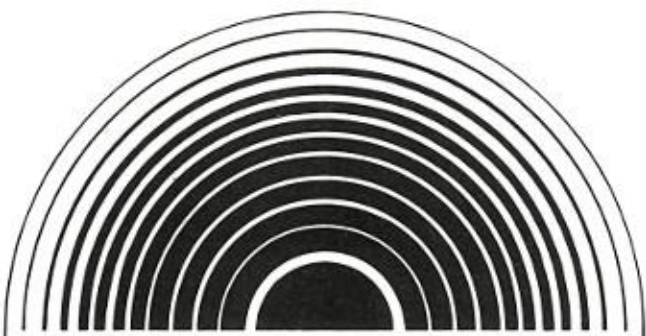

E.S.L. students discuss many topics with Ms. Juarez during class to improve their second language.

Tribe members show their enthusiasm by yelling and clapping at their first meeting.

Traditions add touch of class

Tradition has always been a large part of the North High scene. Entering its fifty-third year of existence, North's traditions are widely known, not only among Redskins, but also among most Wichitans.

North's Tower remains as a major highlight of the school. With spotlights showcasing its intricate architecture, it can be seen while driving on Thirteenth street or Rochester, day or night.

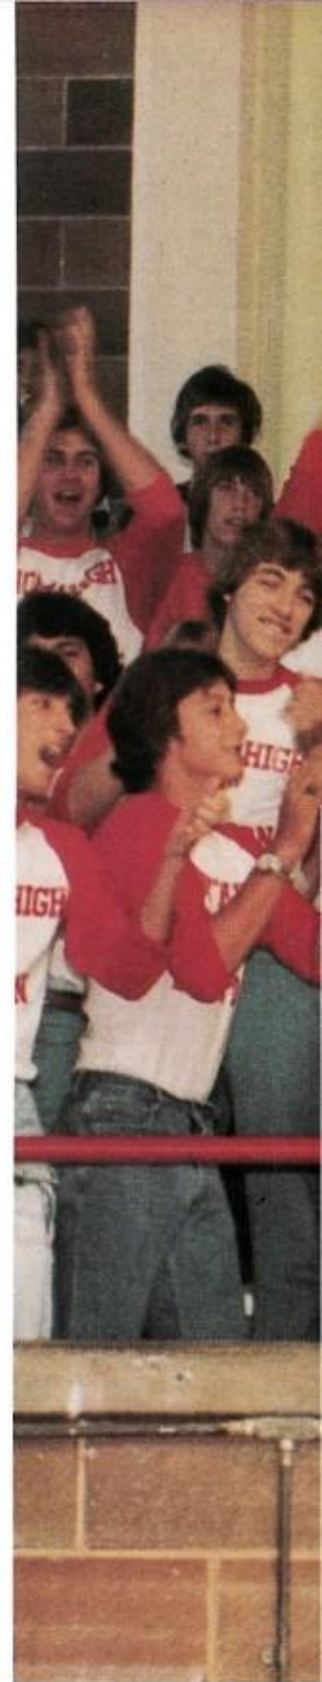

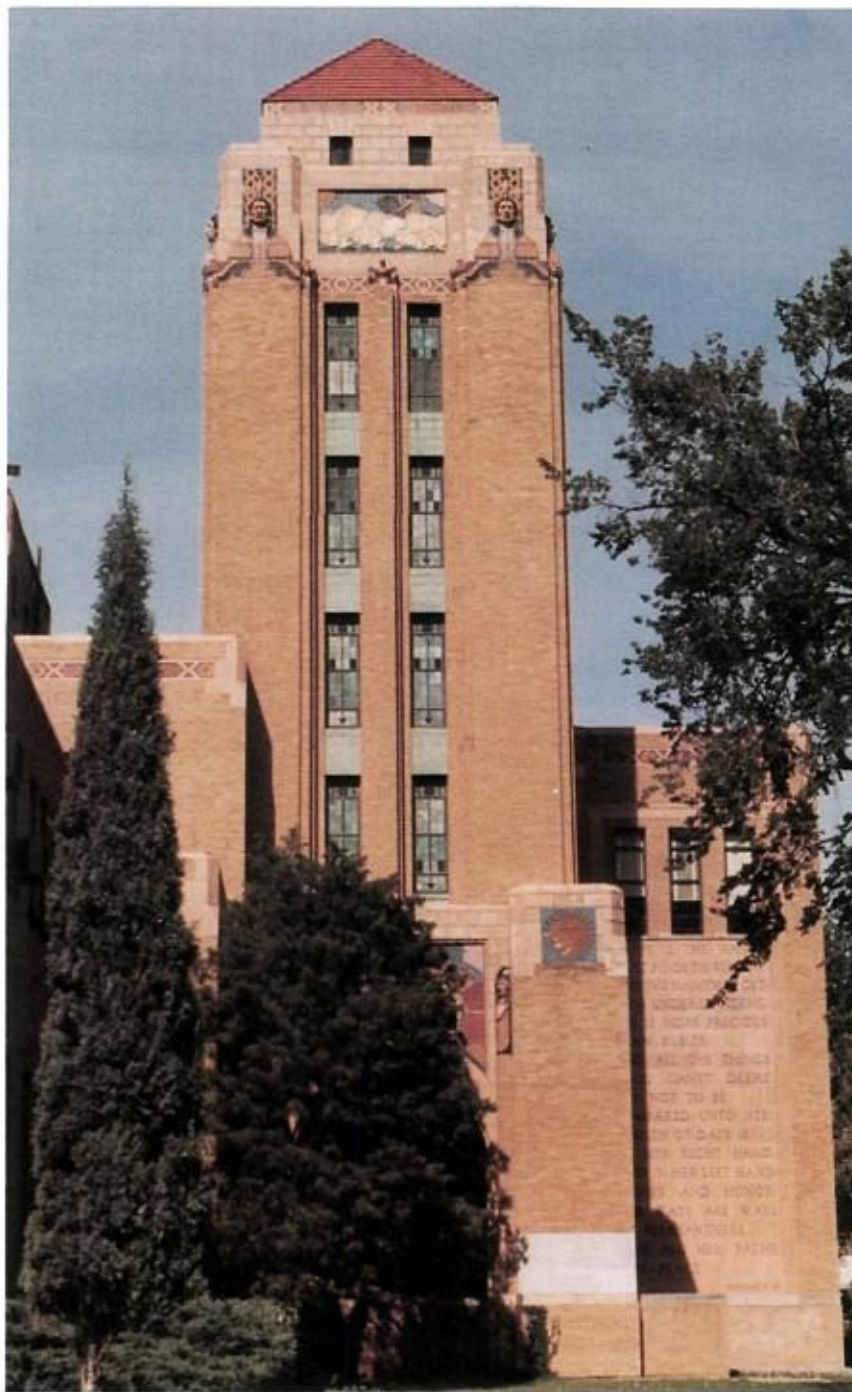

Stationed at his post outside of the library in Senior Hall, Butch has been trained to oversee all activity and maintain order at all times. Butch has been a feature at North for forty-four years, after being presented by the class of '37. Without his ominous presence, Senior Hall just would not be the same.

Of course, what would a year at North be without that infamous group of seniors who make up the crew called the S-Section. A normal Friday attire for any of this bunch would be white thermal underwear underneath red shorts, and S-Section shirts with a neck-tie, topped off with cowboy hats and boots. This band of desperados is a mainstay in creating spirit in the school.

Tradition is alive and well at North High, and even after one graduates from North, these traditions do not fade from memory. The horizons that are reached during the high school years are just as important afterwards as they are when they are realized. Sometimes, looking back on past accomplishments spurs people to approach new horizons. These school traditions remain an integral part of one's life forever.

Along with watching the football game, Jamie Valdez, soph., gets in on a little gossip from freshmen Michelle Moore and Carla Guerrero.

As a part of North's tradition, "Butch" watches over the events that take place in senior hall.

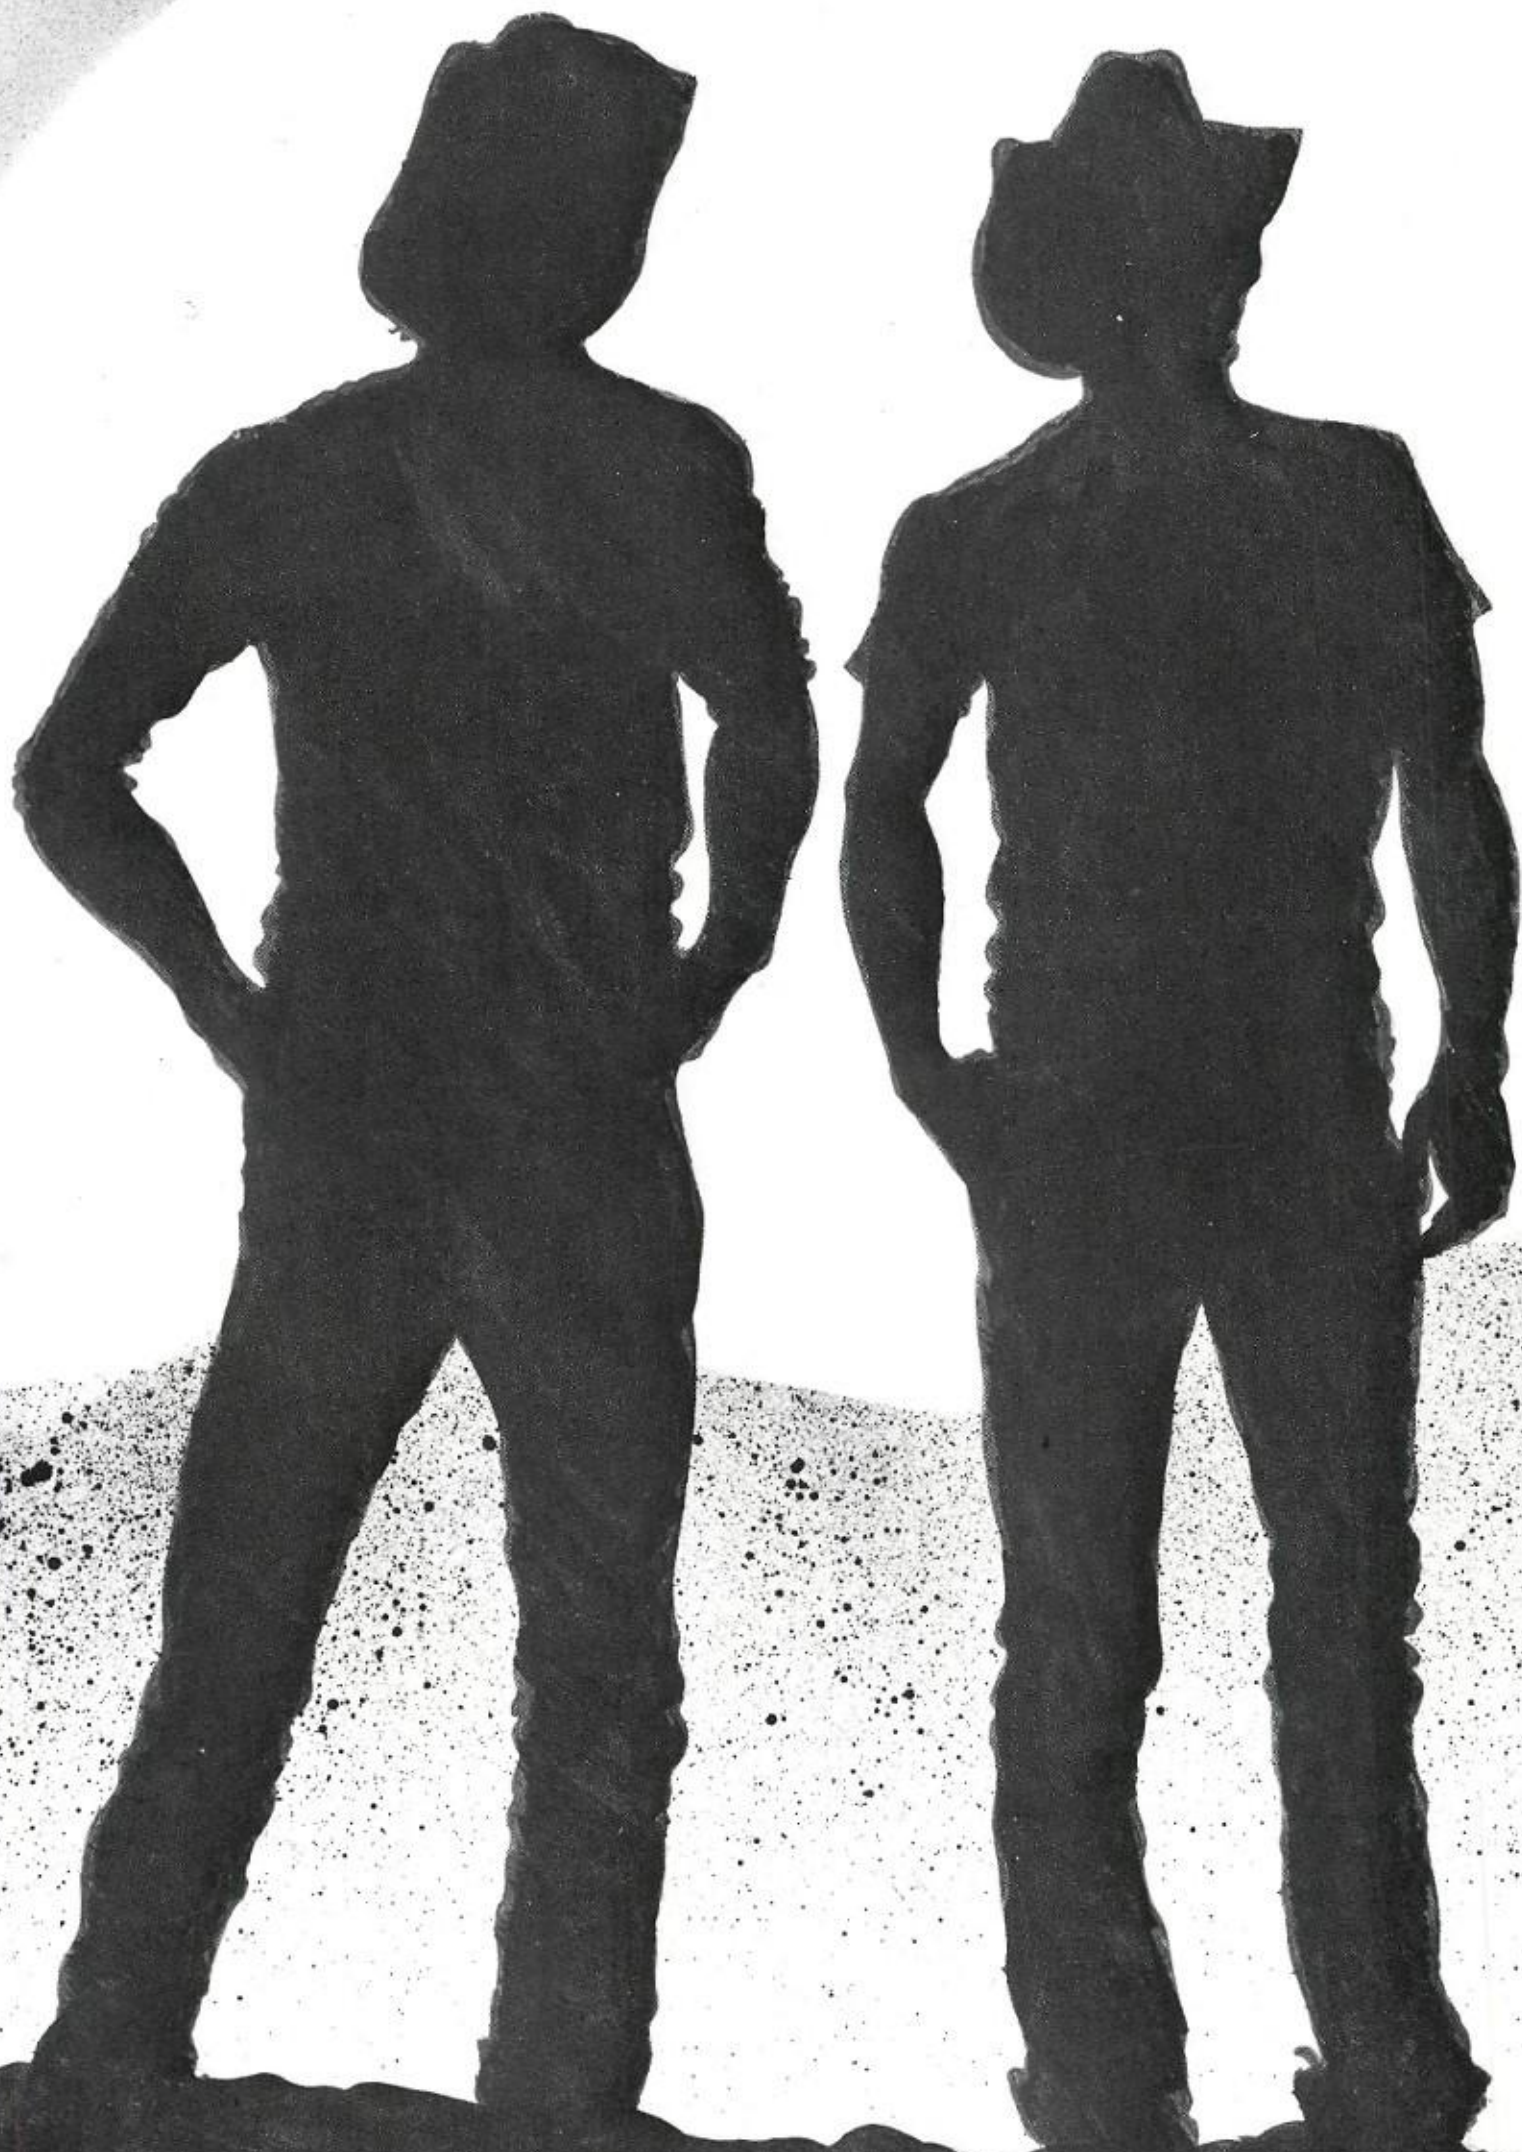

Black Sabbath's appearance at Henry Levitt Arena in November was a long awaited visit for all Wichita fans.

Returning back to old traditions, Homecoming brings enjoyment for all

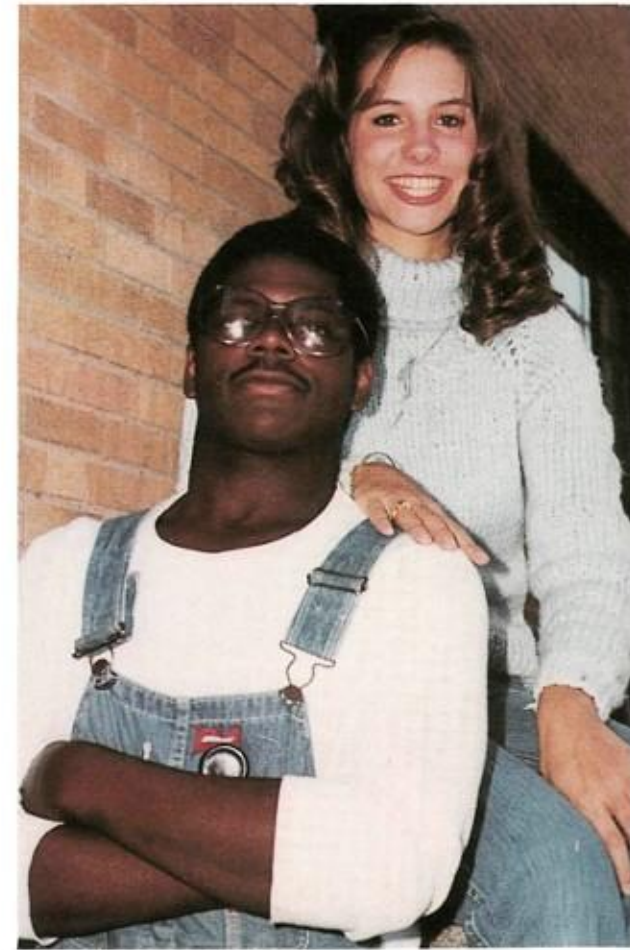

"Who are you taking to Homecoming?" During the week of October 20 the halls were buzzing about the dance planned for Saturday night, but there was more to Homecoming than just the dance.

Homecoming week started with a Monday assembly, used to inform students of the week's activities. Monday was College T-shirt Day, followed by Cowboy Day Tuesday. Thursday was Sweats and Stuffed Animal Day, and Friday everyone was encouraged to wear red and white for the game.

During the week the annual hall decorating contest was held. Seniors won the contest, but Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen all tried hard and made a good effort.

Before Friday's game against Heights, Tribe sponsored the decorating of the field, and the car caravan to the game had the best turnout of the year. The football team also came through, burying the Falcons 20-2.

When the dance finally came around, KWKN disc-jockey Jay Brown was on hand to provide music, and everyone was wondering who had been voted Homecoming Royalty. An old tradition was returned to, which required Pigskin Pete candidates to be members of the varsity football squad, and Varsity Sue candidates to be chosen from the Senior class. When the moment finally arrived, Doug Herrington was named Pigskin Pete, and Lisa Toledo was crowned Varsity Sue.

Music, Drama Departments provide school with 3 productions early in year

By mid-September, teachers and students alike were getting back in the routine of a school year. Everyone's spirit seemed to need a lift, and this was provided by the Music Department. Working hard in the short time they had, the department's three main performing groups each came up with their own portion of a show. The 3 for $1 concert was born. The Madrigals performed "Revival," Music Theatre did a production of the Broadway hit "They're Playing Our Song," and the Nocturnes, doing a take-off of the hit movie "Urban Cowboy," countered with "Suburban Cowgirl."

The Drama Department was also preparing a show during this time. After having only three weeks to get it all together, students came out with their first production of the year, the melodrama "The Drunkard." This production, made especially enjoyable through the use of audience participation which went as far as throwing popcorn at the villain, was so successful that an encore performance was scheduled for mid-January.

Although complicated by competing with a football game on opening night, the Drama Department's second production, "Dracula," was a success. The story dealt with a vampire named Dracula and his nemesis, Professor Van Helsing. Good eventually won, and Dracula died with a stake driven into his heart. Special effects were an important part of this production, which utilized torches for lighting, flash pots which allowed Dracula to disappear, and a large bat which emerged for an across-the-stage flight.

"Drama students learned a valuable lesson while working on these productions," according to Drama teacher Kim Ledford. "In the words of Socrates, they learned to 'know thyself.'"

Portraying the heroine, Gina Moore, jr., looks dismayed after her sweetheart deserts her.

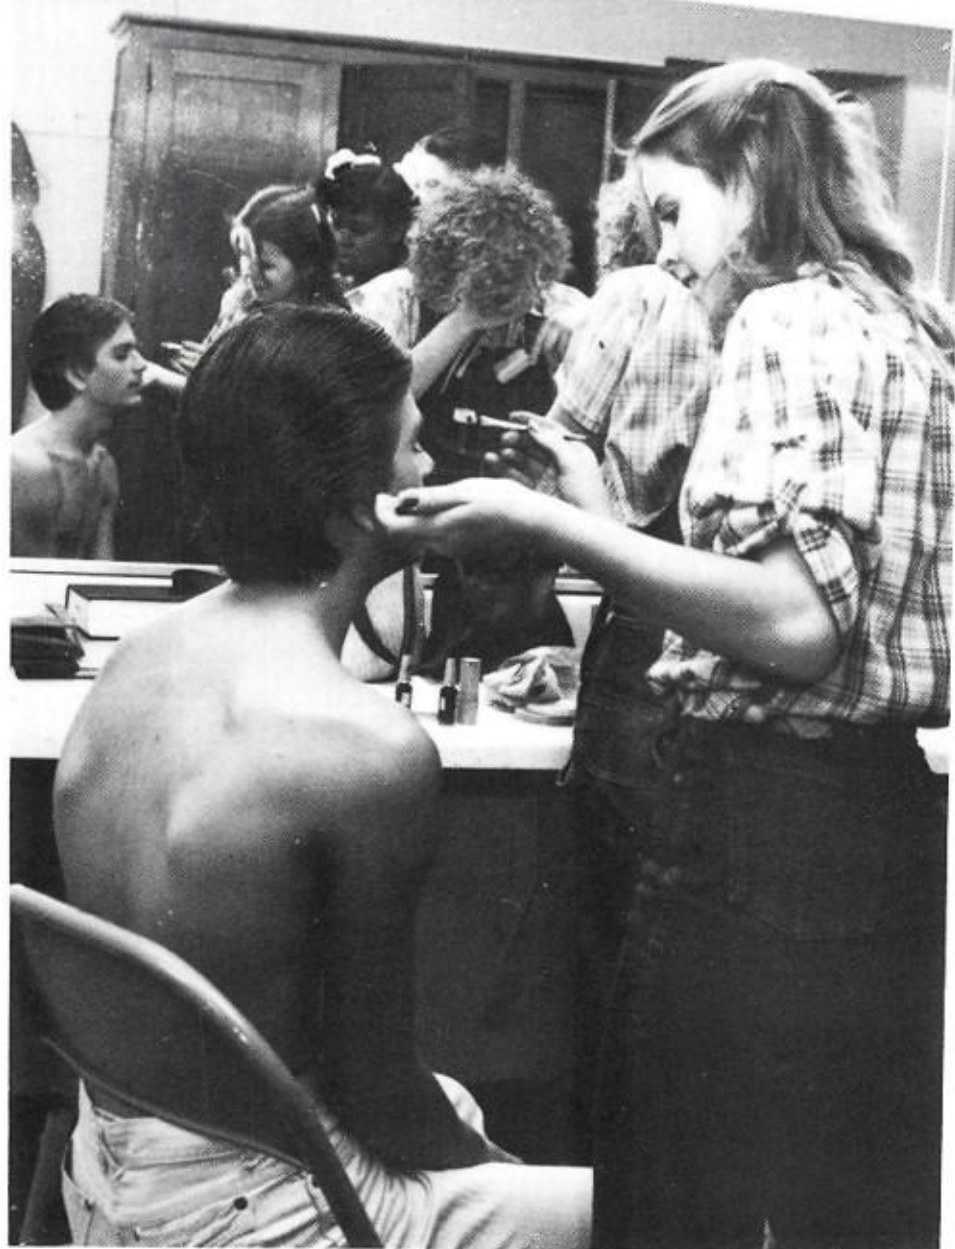

Performing in the skit "Revival," Lanelda Smetana, sr., John Moore, jr., and Kirsten Busey, sr., participate in the musical production 3 for $1.

Playing the part of Dracula, Mark Hatch, jr., and Andy Coss, playing the part of Renfield, do a scene from the drama presentation of Dracula.

As a part of the 3 for $1, Sandy Totten, jr., accompanies the girls on the guitar as they sing in the skit "Suburban Cowgirl."

Preparing for the production, "Dracula," Wendy Gilley, jr., applies make-up to Joel Rutledge, soph., backstage.

Aaron Brown, jr., lays it on the line telling Jack Kitchen, soph., and Seniors Cheryl Blackwell and Roger Hinkle of Lucy Seward's newly discovered illness.

Drama, Music Departments present all-school musical 'Guys and Dolls'

Two notorious gamblers named Nathan Detroit and Skye Masterson were portrayed by Joe Becker, sr., and Kirk Mardock, jr., in the all-school musical "Guys and Dolls."

"Guys and Dolls" follows the love lives of these two as Nathan becomes romantically involved with Adelaide, a hotboxer, who is played by Gaylene Smith, sr. Meanwhile, Nathan's drinking buddy, Skye is after the love of Miss Sarah, a Salvation Army missionary, played by Kathy Ellis, soph.

Special arrangements were worked out so that the pit orchestra could have one hour together to practice the music as a group. Both the music and art departments began preparing for the musical early in the month of October. Rehearsals were held nearly every evening after school, with many of them lasting until late at night.

Performances were held on November 23, 24, and 25, with one Sunday matinee. Each performance played to an audience of nearly 200.

In an attempt to promote the musical, juniors Gina Moore and Greg Orth were chosen as the special "Guy and Doll," an honor that included a night out in a chauffeured limousine. A total of over 120 students were involved in the production.

"The play brought a lot of talented people together, because of all the hours of hard work and good times. The cast party was fantastic!" said student director Cheryl Blackwell, sr.

Resident derelict Aaron Brown, jr., lies in a drunken stupor as Jeff Dary, jr., casually walks by.

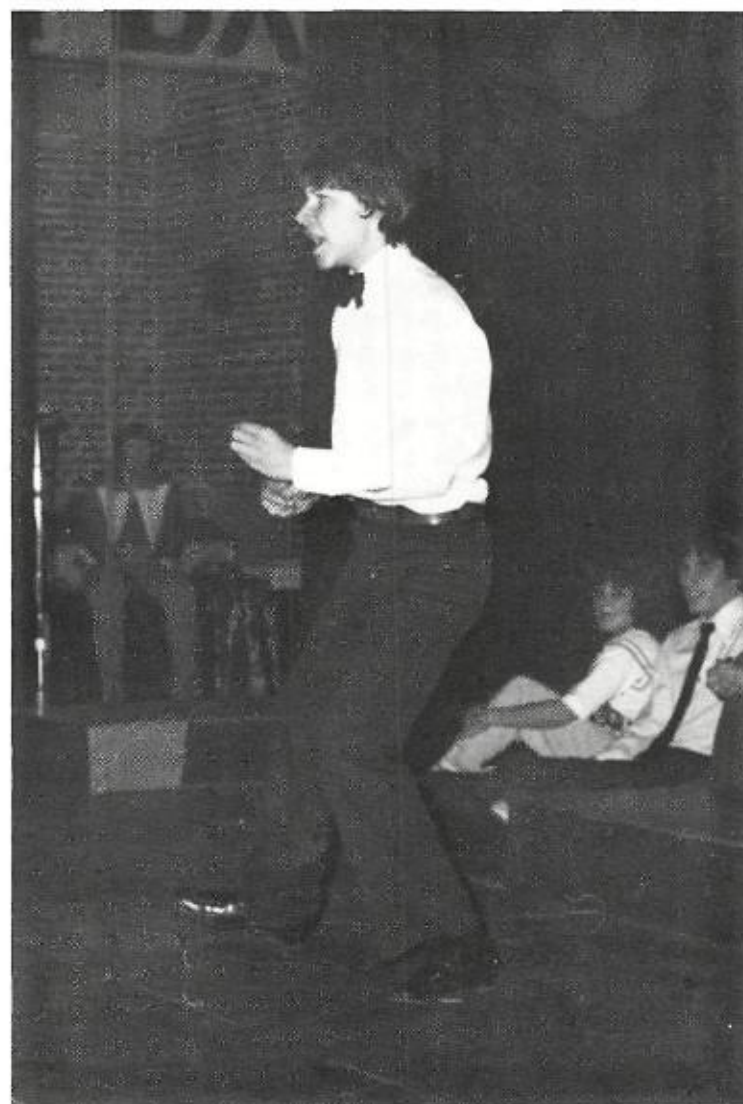

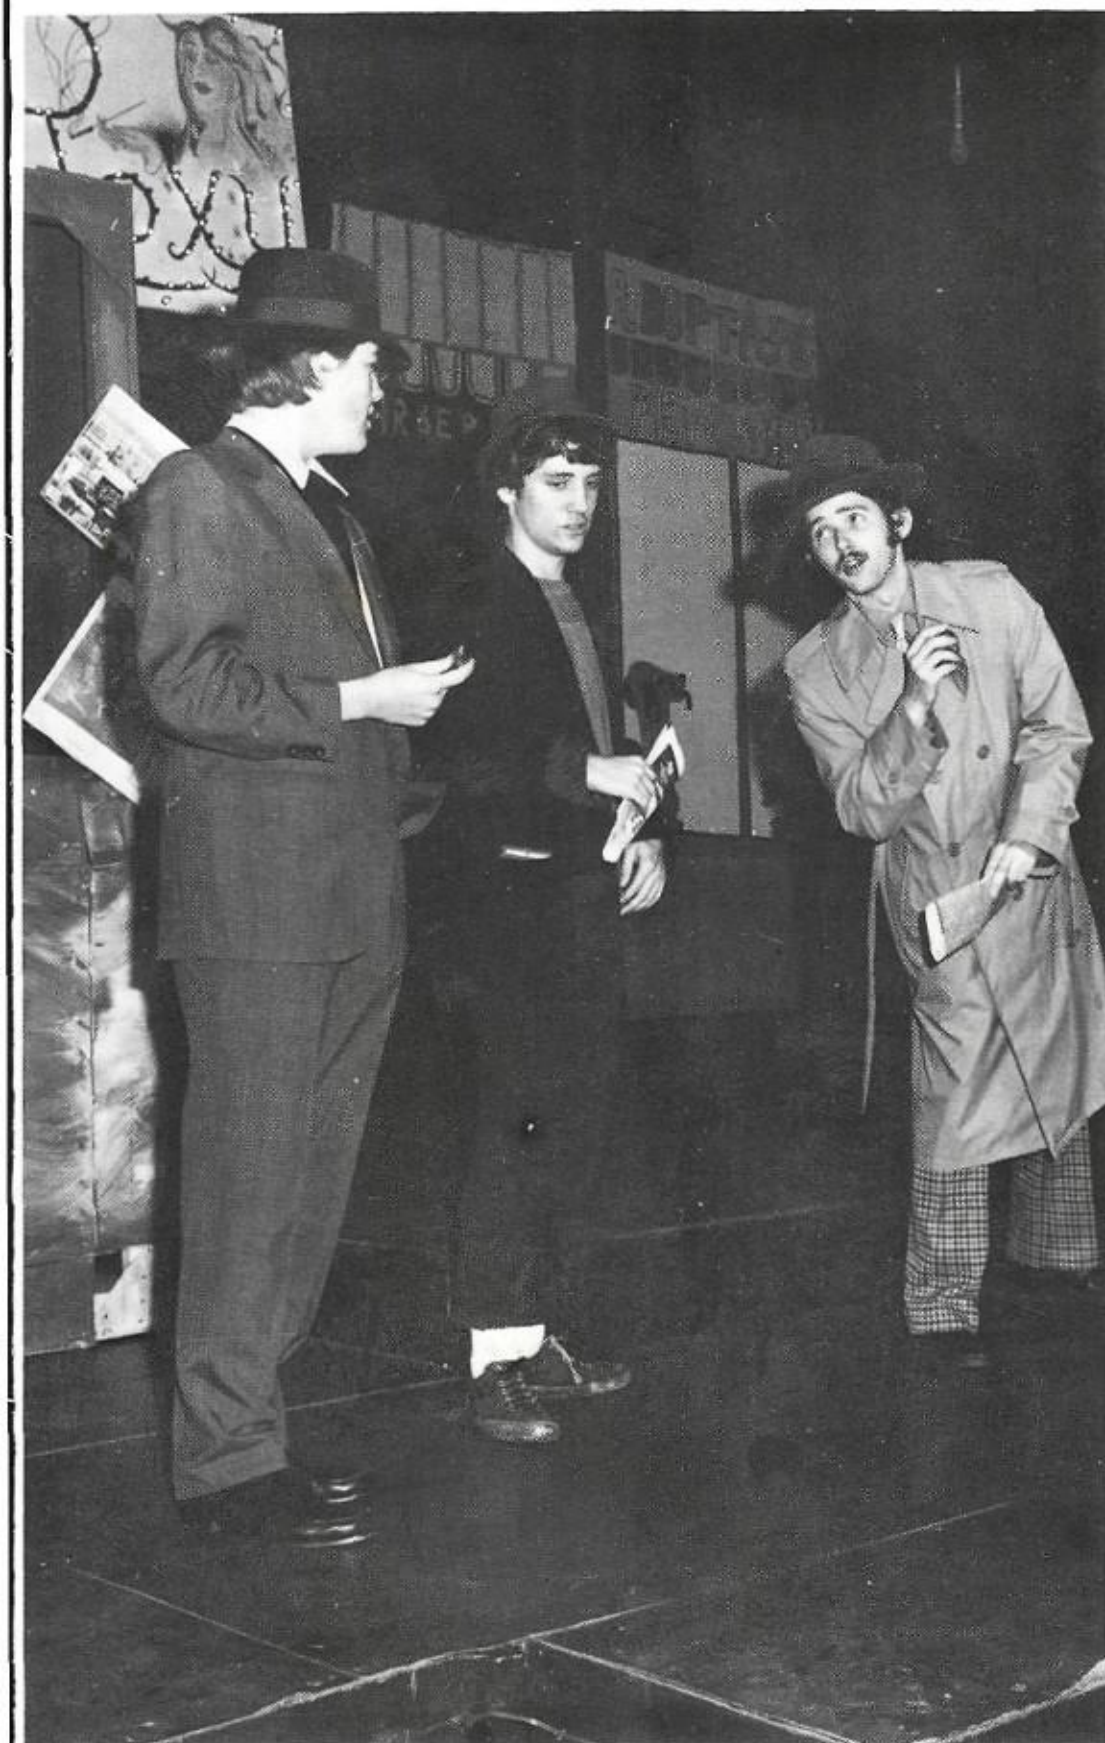

Anxious gamblers survey their tip sheets and make last minute changes before betting.

In search of a soul to save, Miss Sarah and the Salvation Army band try to change the gamblers' sinful ways.

Nightclub emcee Rex Johnson, soph., announces Miss Adelaide's dancers to the audience.

In search of a crap game, Andy Coss, jr., attempts to weasel some information from David Craddock, sr., and Jeff Dary, jr.

Principals provoke laughter at fourth annual Senior Celebration

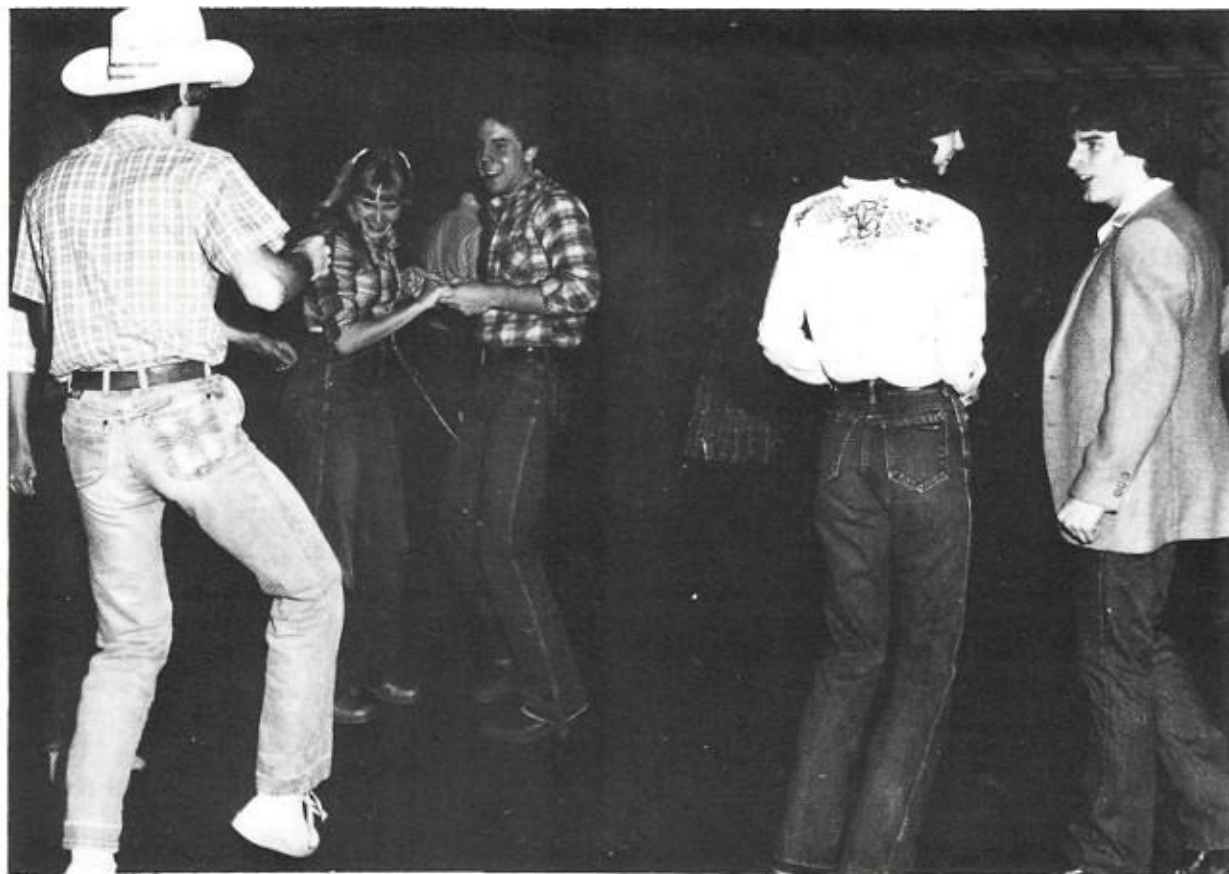

To promote the country-western theme of the fourth annual Senior Celebration, guests came dressed in cowboy hats and boots, blue jeans, and flannel shirts. A dinner of barbecue brisket, baked potatoes, salad, Texas toast, and chocolate cake was served to the honored seniors by subservient juniors. The celebrating began at 7:00 on the night of March 13 and lasted until 9:00.

Following the dinner, everyone went down to the library for the "roasting" session. Seniors Blake Byfield, Gaylene Smith, Joe Becker, and David Craddock took their shots at the administration; but assistant principals Terry Guidry and Mel Johnson stole the show when they showed up dressed with curly wigs in honor of senior class president Roger Hinkle.

After the "roasting" was over, the guests moved back upstairs to the cafeteria for the dance. Two dance instructors from the Cowboy Club showed up to teach some western dances, including the "Cowboy Stomp," the "Two Step," and the "Cotton-eye Joe," among others.

"The dance lessons were really a lot of fun, but the best part of the evening was seeing the students and administrators roasting each other," said Laurie Janzing, sr.

Both country and rock music bring everyone out on the dance floor.

Enjoying the evening's activities, seniors relax and get together in the library for the roasting of administrators and senior students.

While impersonating Mr. Fredin, David Craddock, sr., gets his chance to ridicule the faculty.

In jest of Roger Hinkle, sr. class president, Mr. Guidry and Mr. Johnson don their curly wigs.

Taking a different approach to the term "western," Seniors Lori Smith and Darin Pruitt show up as the Lone Ranger and his squaw.

Dressed in the appropriate attire, Dr. Longhofer presents awards to various seniors.

The smell of barbecued beef and potatoes fills the cafeteria as the juniors serve the seniors their dinner.

Photographs of 'The Best of Times' sets theme for Junior-Senior Prom

As the Junior-Senior Prom season rolled around, students began the long, nerve-racking search for dates, renting tuxedos, and buying dresses. Students and teachers alike could feel the anticipation and excitement building throughout the school.

Brian Wendelburg and Louise Miller, srs., were voted prom King and Queen. Greg Orth and Gina Moore, jrs., were elected prince and princess.

Junior and Senior class officers, with the help of the administration and sponsors Margaret Crawford and Ruth Muenchrath, got an early start planning the big event of the year. Renting a ballroom, hiring the band, 'Tumbling

Dice,' decorating, publicity, and ticket sales were just some of the tasks which were involved. They also decided on the theme, which was chosen to be 'The Best of Times.'

The after party, which was sponsored by parents, was held at the Rose Bowl West. There the students bowled and played electronic games from midnight to 4:00 am. The parents prepared and served sloppy joes, cakes, cookies, and potato chips.

"The party gave the students a chance to get together in a casual atmosphere and relax after the prom," said chaperones Mr. and Mrs. William Garrelts.

Sharing a romantic moment, Lori Dominique and Arthur Orange, srs., are caught posing for a picture.

Prom King and Queen Candidates: Danny Saville, Jana Sorrell, Stan Sheldon, Queen Louise Miller, King Brian Wendelburg, Denise Lewis, Glenn Rose, Monica George.

Prom Prince and Princess Candidates: Gerrie Garcia, Prince Greg Orth, Pam Lyon, Barry Fields, Princess Gina Moore, Andy Montidoro, Missy Porter, Ian Jackson.

As the band takes time out for a break, this group of juniors discuss their plans for when the dance is over.

Enjoying their last prom, Phil Fisher, Renee Smith, and Michelle Ranich, srs., smile as they reminisce over their school years.

A surprise shot catches Mark Hatch, jr., as he is in the act of keeping score during the after-party at Rose Bowl West.

Sophomores win Water Festival; Shelden, Sorrell named Tower royalty

Ignoring warnings of rain that threatened to cast a damper over the buzzing crowd of spirited north-enders lined along both banks of the Little Arkansas, the Sophomore Class proceeded to sweep the annual Water Festival. After the coronation of Tower Royalty Jana Sorrell and Stan Shelden, the events commenced.

Outscoring the Seniors by 11½ points and the Juniors by 25, for a total of 94½, 83, and 69½ respectively, the Sophomore Class won the overall competition for the first time in many years of this traditionally senior-dominated event. Of the few who competed from the Freshman Class, they earned a total of nine points.

In the canoe races, the seniors opened a lead over the second place juniors by winning three of the first five canoe racers. The sophomores, however, splashed their way back into contention by winning four of the last six races.

By beating the seniors in the boys tug of war, the sophomores took first place in the overall competition.

For all of the minor bruises and abrasions that were acquired at the festival, it was hard to tell the winners from the losers. However, onlookers from the banks could tell that the wet and wounded participants were more concerned with competing than winning.

As darkness descended upon the tired but anxious crowd, the floats were being manned and prepared for a journey down the Arkansas River. With a replica of a race car, the auto mechanics class took first place in the competition. The Sophomore Class float won second and Bible Club won third.

Girls' singles contestant Missy Porter, jr., moves ahead of the rest to eventually win first place.

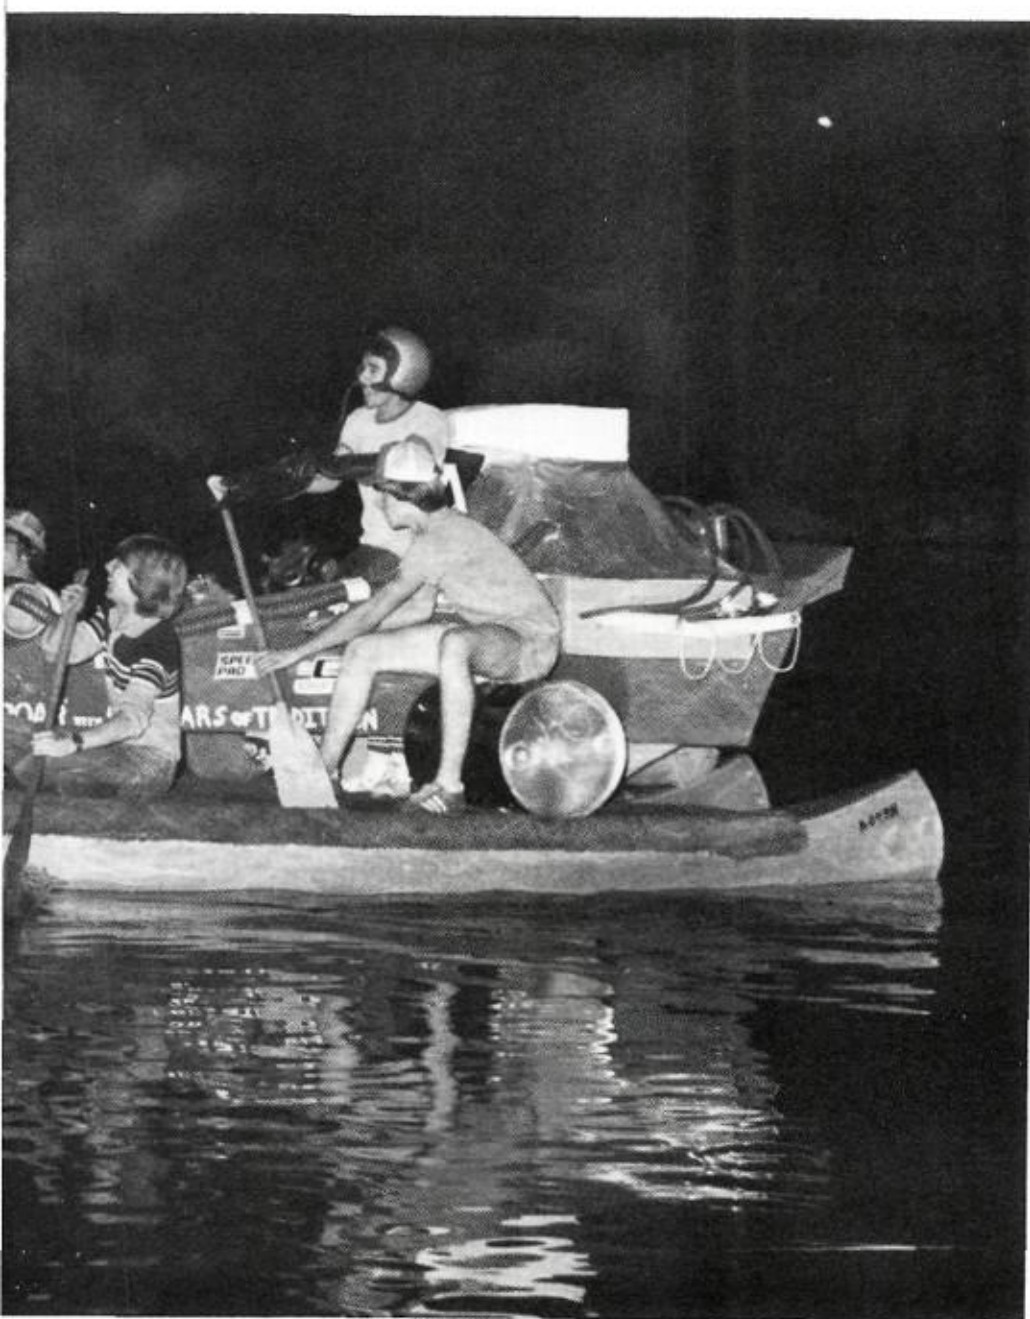

Tower Royalty King Stan Shelden, sr., and Queen Jana Sorrell, sr., step forward and prepare to ride down the river on the Student Legislature float.

Vigorously paddling toward the finish line, Coach Palmer, Miss Dollarhide, Becky Craft, sr., and Todd Anderson, sr., have a mid-river collision.

Sophomores Mike Atlee, Gina DeChant, Debbie Garcia, Collette Ayres, and Ella Williams have a final dress rehearsal before their float takes to the water. Cruising down Douglas it's not. It's the next best thing. Auto Mechanics students Scott Fowler, Brook Short, Mark Ritchey, and Bobby Balderas, srs., paddle their first place float down the Little Arkansas.

With their own rendition of medieval jousting, Kendall Lucas, sr., and Kevin Wilson, jr., jab each other viciously trying for the blue ribbon.

All of the canoes used in the evening's events were continuously hauled back to the starting line by hard-working volunteers riding on the school's tractor.

Brent Schock, soph., diligently makes his way to the finish line in the gunwhaling races.

At the sound of the gun, Lisa Ornelas, sr., paddles anxiously toward the finish line.

A crowd filled with anxious onlookers patiently waits for the evening's various events to get under way.

Pulling hard in a fruitless effort, the faculty tug of war team experiences the agony of defeat.

As the gun sounds, contestants in the boys' singles canoe race take off for the finish line in hopes of a glorious victory.

Students search for Fame; find it at Redskin Rhythms

Changing the pace of the show, drama was also included, with a dramatic interpretation called "Slow Dance On the Killing Ground." A skit from the Monty Python television series was also presented, as well as a two-girl mime routine called "Mirror Image."

A group of dancers also performed, along with a rock-n-roll band named "Eucheriah Savage and the Redskins." This group provided a change of music, performing Billy Joel's "Closer to the Boarderline" and "I Just Can't Wait" by the J. Geils Band.

A variety of entertainment was displayed in the program, which for the first year was the sole responsibility of the Drama Department. Mrs. Kim Ledford, drama instructor, directed the program.

The backstage jitters ran contagiously from one nervous performer to the next just before show-time. But when the curtains raised as the show got underway, these Redskins showed that their week's diligence and imagination paid off. The theme was taken from the motion picture "Fame," and the show featured various students displaying their talents.

A number of solos were included in the program, such as "Out Here On My Own," "She Believes in Me," and "Lady." A trio of Barbara Streisand songs were also performed, with "Woman in the Moon," "With One More Look at You," and "The Way We Were" sung by three soloists. Probably the most light-hearted and unique solo was "Suppertime," which was sung by Snoopy, portrayed by Kirk Mardock.

While performing in Redskin Rhythms, Angela Tomlinson and Alicia Smith, jrs., do a pantomime called "Mirror Images."

M.C. for Redskin Rhythms, Cheryl Blackwell, sr., introduces the next act on the program for the evening. Drummer for the group "Eucheriah Savage and the Redskins" Earl Holle, jr., keeps the beat to the song "Closer to the Boarderline."

Soloist Diane Carlton, jr., sings her version of one of the many famous Barbara Streisand songs.

From a take-off of the show Solid Gold, Fame Dancers finish their routine to the hit song "Fame."

Vocal Music Department marks end of season with Spring Finale

'Spring Finale', performed by the Music Department and directed by Mark Clark, was held at Century II in the latter part of May.

Their own rendition of 'South Pacific' was performed by the entire choir to open the concert. 'Stage and Screen' was sung next, followed by 'The Smell of Music', and 'The Jazz Singer.'

The wide variety of talent produced unusual and enjoyable musical numbers. The choir combined to yield a very successful production.

Scholarship Reception

As the year drew to an end, scholarships were awarded to seniors for outstanding academic achievements and athletic abilities. A Recognition Reception was held in honor of these students to acknowledge and commend them for their achievements. Preceding the reception, forty-eight students were initiated into the National Honors Society.

Recognition Reception

During the last part of May, a Student Recognition Reception was organized. Two hundred and forty students who made some type of positive contribution and were deserving of recognition were awarded certificates of honor.

Academic excellence, perfect attendance, special projects, and leadership were the four categories in which students could win awards.

Rodney Chaney, soph., and David Hadorn, jr., perform their own rendition of a Laurel and Hardy skit during the Vaudeville section of Spring Finale.

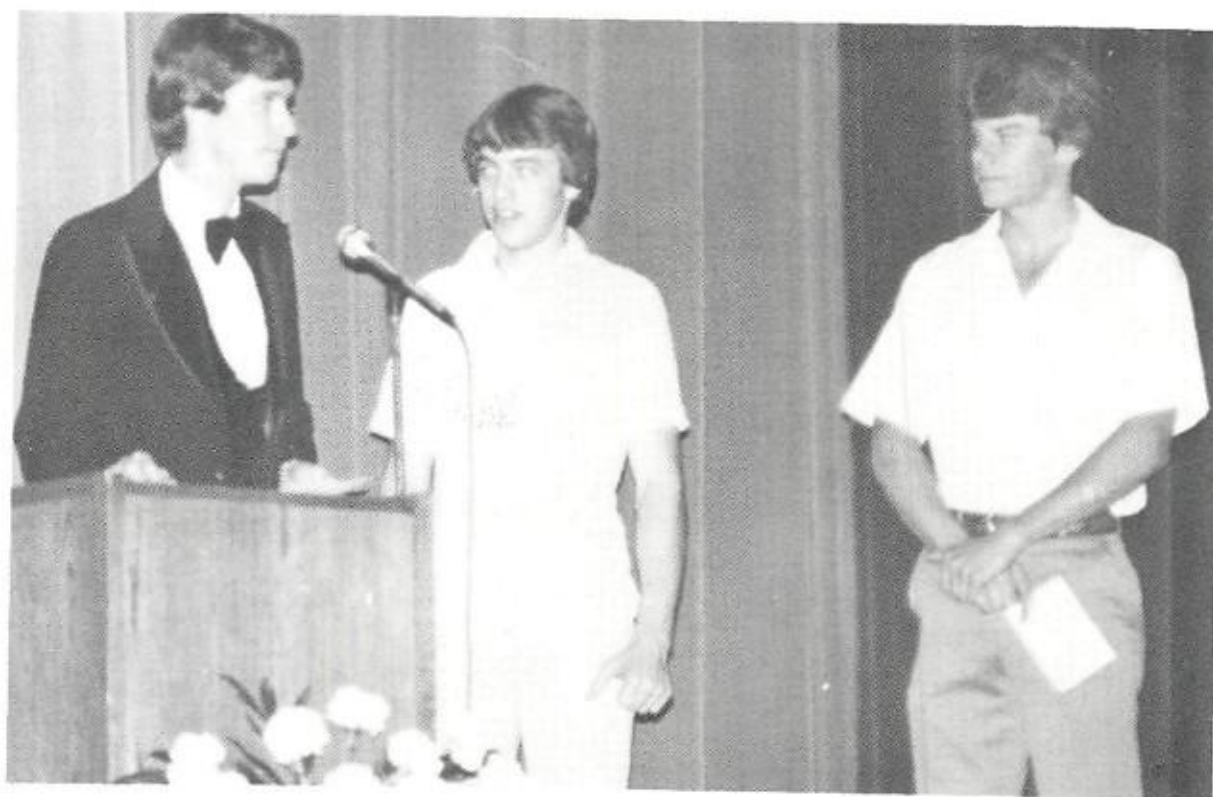

Senior members of the National Honor Society help in the initiation of new members by presenting them their NHS pins

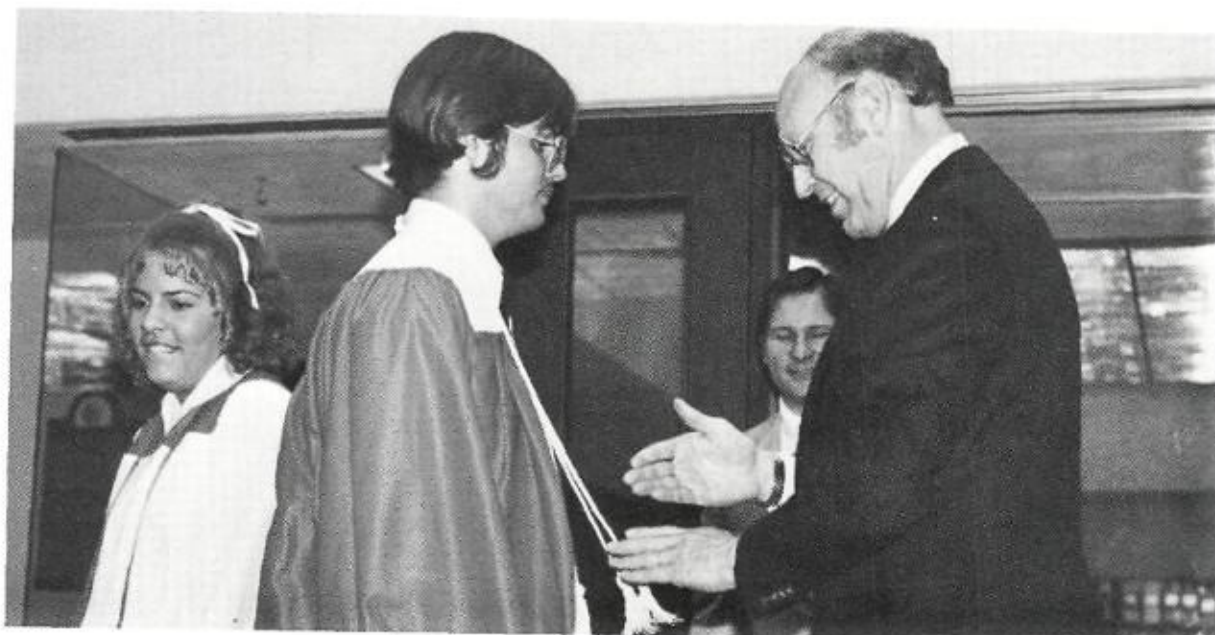

The madrigals pose as the mouseketeers to perform a comical number.
The Concert Chorale finishes up the "Spring Fling" with a patriotic rendition of "America" from the movie "The Jazz Singer."

Host Mark Clark congratulates Todd Andersen, sr., for his outstanding achievements before giving him his award.

309 graduates from class of '81 ready to pursue personal interests

Excitement reached peak level on the evening of Thursday, May 28, as approximately 309 seniors anxiously awaited the moment that they had worked 12 years for. Finally, at 8 o'clock, the commencement ceremonies got underway as North's Symphonic Band, under the direction of Mr. Richard Gardner, performed "Pomp and Circumstance" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

Jana Sorrell led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by Shanna Nispel, who handled the Invocation.

Under the direction of Mr. Mark Clark, the North High Choir proceeded to perform "Alleluia" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Graduates Joe Becker and David Craddock then came on to address the audience. Becker's speech was titled "The Enigma," while Craddock spoke of "The Way Things Will Be." Other honors included Jana Sorrell as Valedictorian and Ronn Moore, Salutatorian.

Dr. Longhofer then presented the class to the BOE representative, JoAnn Pottorff. At last it was time for the graduates to get those precious diplomas.

Associate Principal Don Olson and Assistant Principals Terry Guidry and Mel Johnson presented the class with the certificates.

North's choir came back once more to sing "A Gaelic Blessing" before the class of '81 joined together to sing the Alma Mater. The ceremonies ended with the Benediction given by Leslie Hiskett.

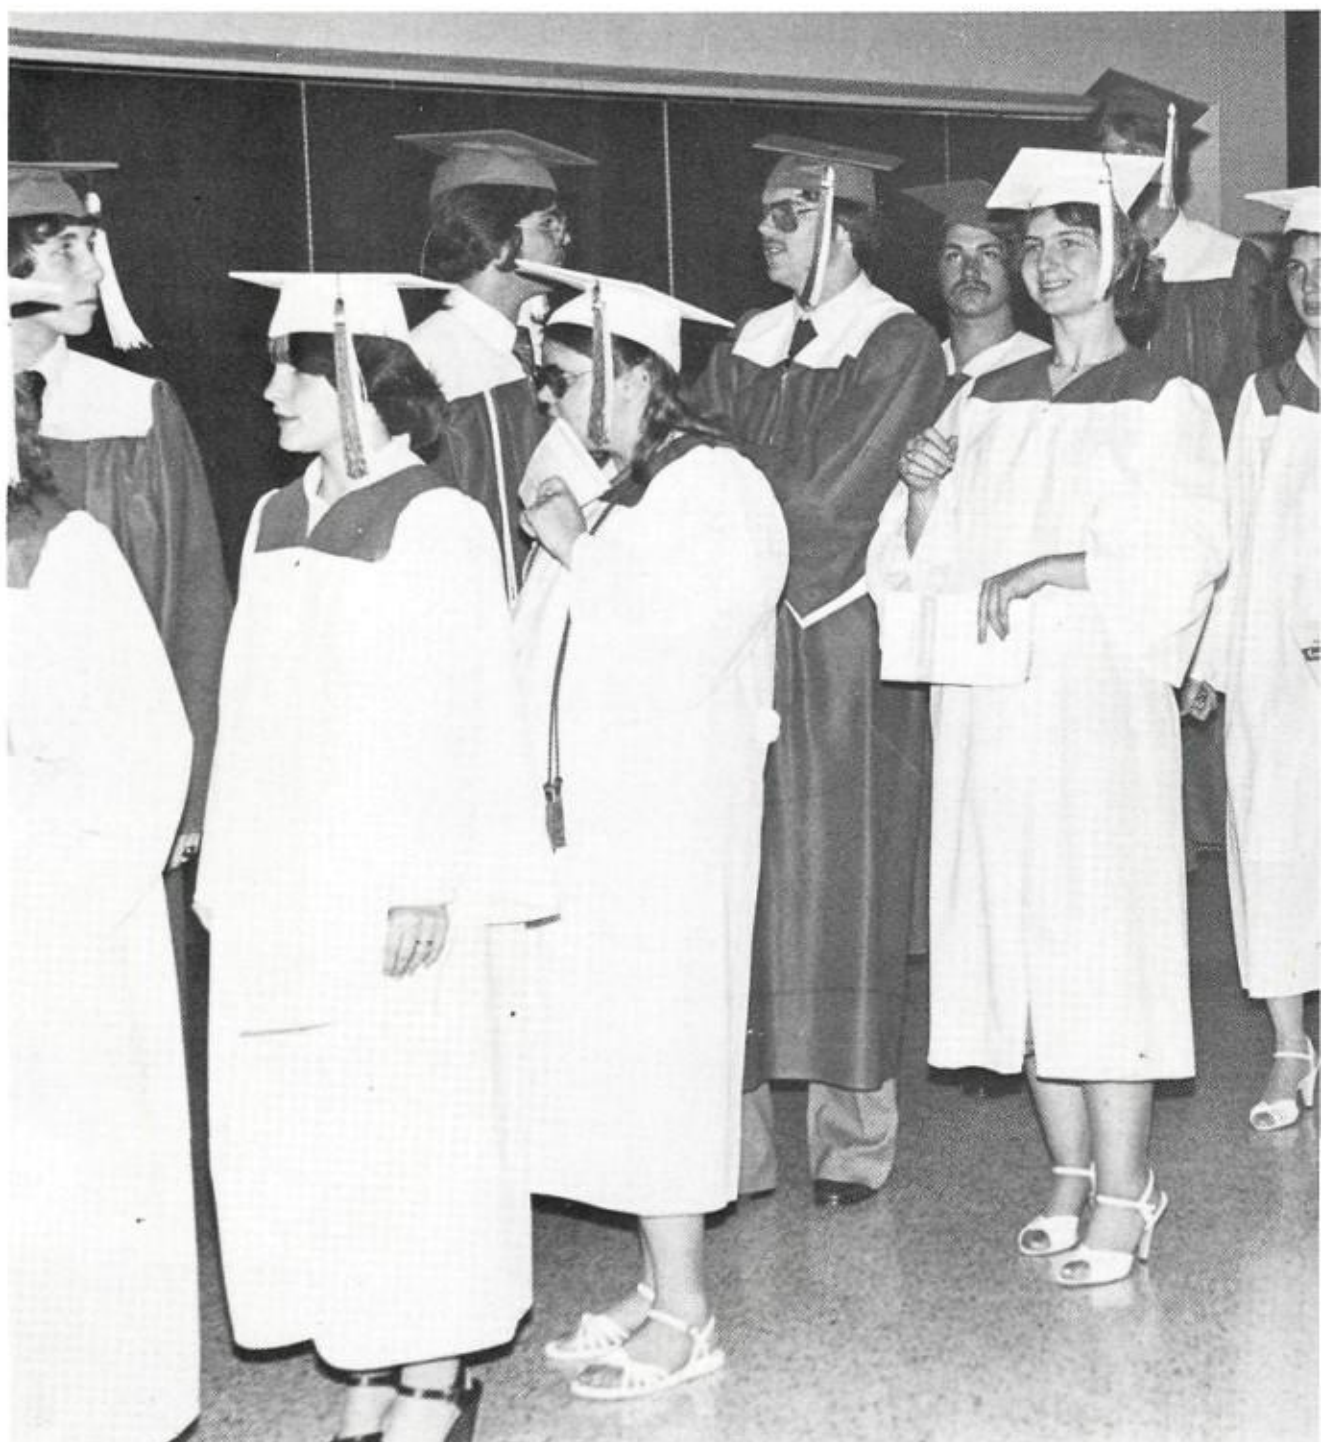

As a flurry of hats flew into the air, a huge sigh of relief was heard. After filing out of the auditorium, most grads went on to the Senior Party, and bigger and better things in years to come.

After the Pledge of Allegiance, Shanna Nispel, sr., begins the Invocation.

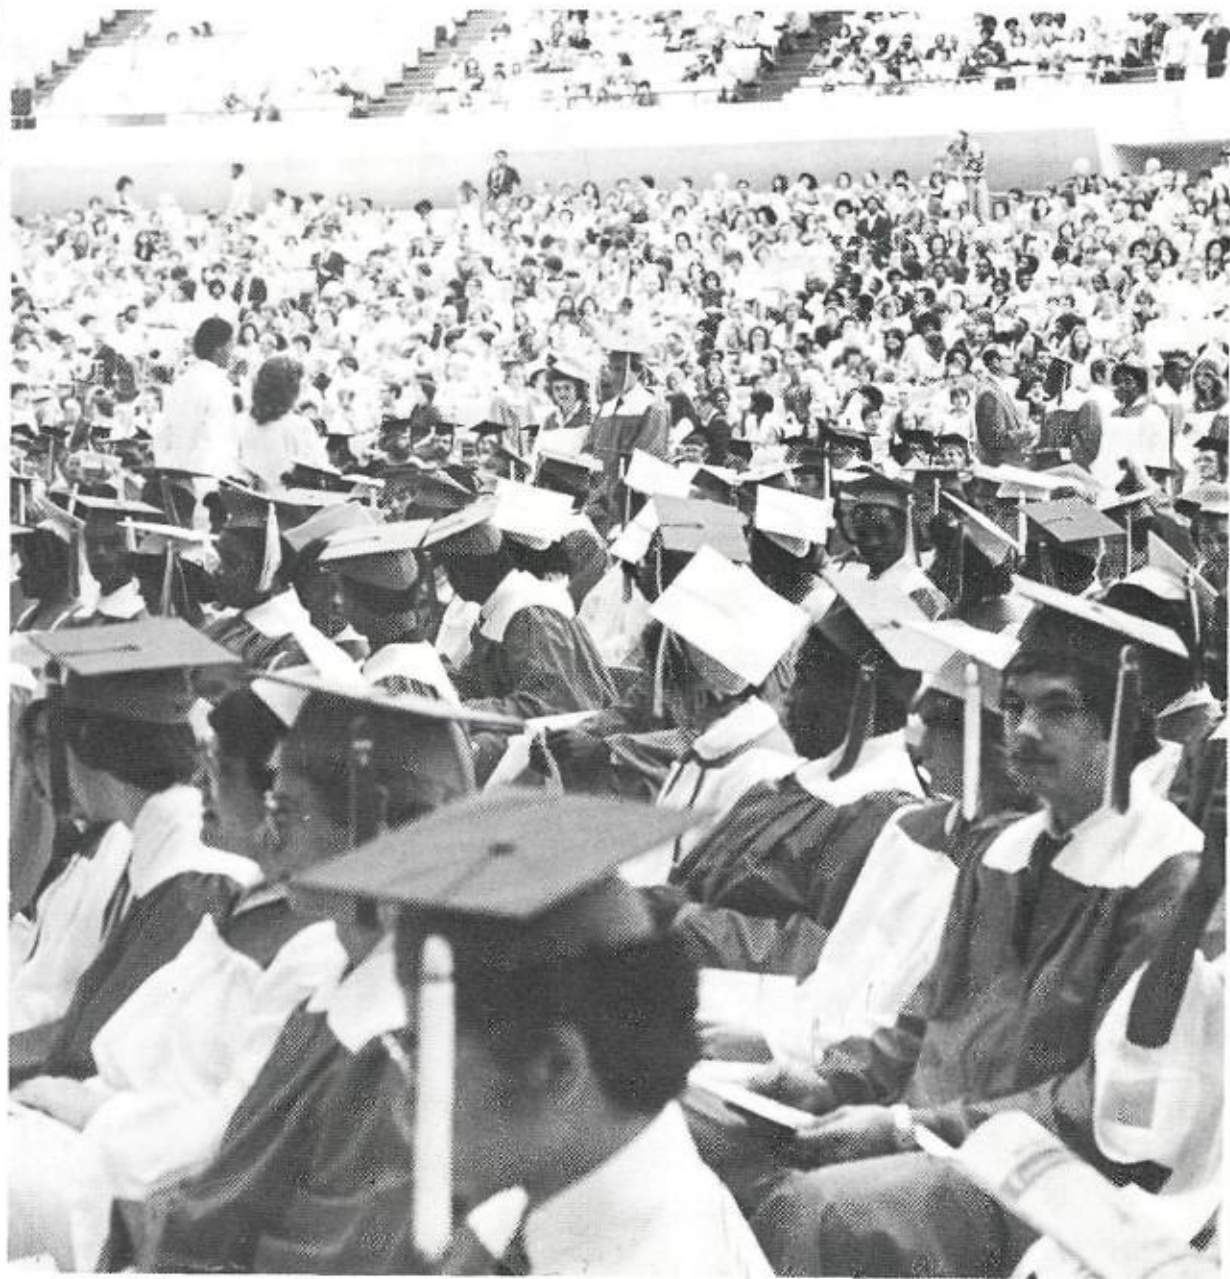

Making sure everything is in place, LeSondra Normore, sr., waits patiently while her partner helps adjust her gown before they line up.

While waiting in line for the ceremony to begin, graduates-to-be anticipate what the future holds for them.

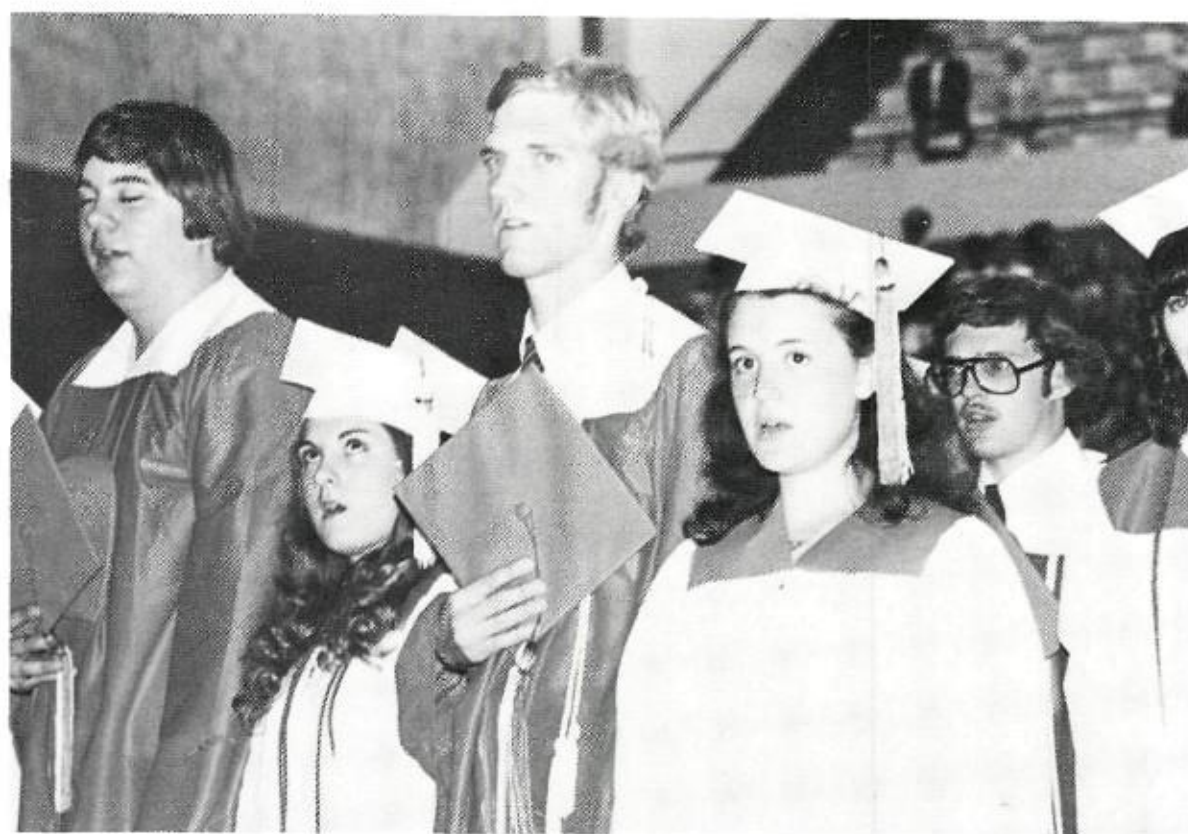

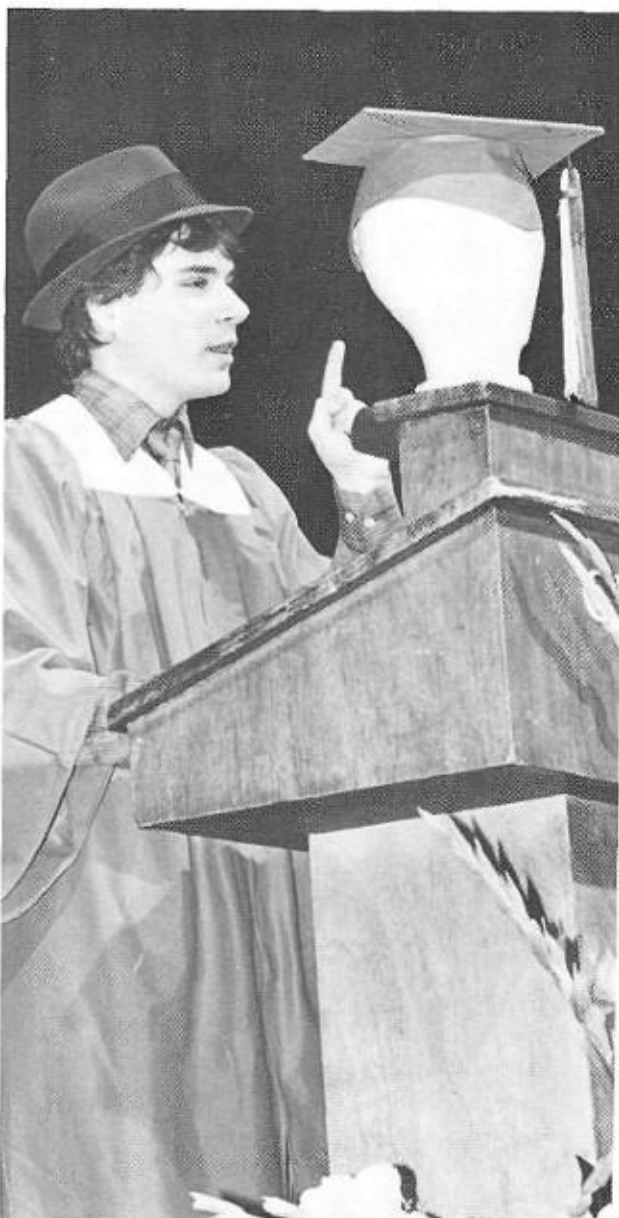

Graduates wait for everyone to walk in during the Processional.

Being the first time ever for faculty members to wear robes at graduation, Ms. Reiser assists Dr. Paul Longhofer with his robe.

To begin the exercises of the evening, Seniors Craig Grantham, Rose Roths, Ronn Moore, and Becky Johnson recite the Pledge of Allegiance along with the rest of the crowd.

To make himself feel more at ease, Joe Becker, sr., replaces the traditional cap with his unique trademark while giving his commencement address.

Students stay abreast of year's fads, fashions, and phenomena

Was it his unfaithful wife Sue Ellen? His power-hungry brother Bobby? Maybe it was an unhappy business associate? People all over the country speculated as to WHO SHOT J.R.? Otherwise known as Larry Hagman, the star of television's number one soap opera, Dallas, J.R. spurred the sale of millions of dollars worth of t-shirts, bumper stickers, and buttons. One of the largest television audiences ever tuned in to find out that the assailant was his secretary, Kristen.

The Kansas City Royals' third baseman and resident superstar, George Brett, in his quest for the elusive .400 batting average, created some anxious moments for the presidential candidates as his following of fans attempted to run him for president. Brett, of course, was too busy battling the Philadelphia Phillies in the World Series to wage a presidential campaign; but this fact did not halt the production of "George Brett for President" bumper stickers.

A survey among North students found their favorite movies, albums, and singles of the year. Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder's "Stir Crazy" was the favorite movie, while perhaps the bloodiest show of the year, "Texas Chainsaw Massacre," ran second. "9 to 5," the workingman's movie was third, while "Airplane," a spoof on the "Airport" movies, came in fourth. Another horror flick, "The Howling," finished the list.

R.E.O. Speedwagon's "Hi Infidelity" was the favorite album among Redskins, with Styx' "Paradise Theater" a close second. For some harder rock-n-roll, AC-DC's "Back in Black" and "Nature of the Beast" from April Wine were the next two choices. "Crimes of Passion" by Pat Benetar was fifth.

As for 45's, R.E.O.'s "Keep On Loving You" was first, with "Woman" by John Lennon second. "Celebration" from Kool and the Gang placed third, Hall and Oates' "Your Kiss Is On My List" was fourth, and Kenny Rogers' "Lady" rounded out the singles.

With the success of the movie "Urban Cowboy," western apparel became the newest look in fashion. Students and businessmen wore western styled suits with cowboy boots, western shirts, jeans, hats and skirts. Many dance places set aside one night for "cowboy night," in which a country-western band was hired to play.

For a more casual look, t-shirts promoting rock groups and their concerts were seen everywhere. The t-shirts served as souvenirs of many concerts students had attended.

T-shirts were once again in fashion, with some of the more popular ones representing concerts which toured Wichita and WSU's 66-65 win over KU.

Hostages released after 444 days; President Reagan shot with handgun

Shorts and sundresses were common among students at the beginning of the school year because of the scorching weather. From early summer throughout the fall, Kansas was experiencing a record breaking heat wave, which resulted in a very dry winter and spring.

On October 1, Towne West held its grand opening. Upon completion the center was to consist of approximately 120 stores.

While new stores were opening up on the west side of town, across town was a different story. Those students who were without transportation experienced a sudden shortage of eating establishments within walking distance of the school. The BOE purchased and permanently closed Hardee's fast food restaurant in late February, while Zesto, another nearby eating place, closed for a week early in May as ownership changed hands. The lot on which Hardee's formerly stood was added to the student parking lot.

National News

With November came the Presidential and Congressional elections. Former California Governor Ronald Reagan, a Republican, was elected president over incumbent Jimmy Carter. The election also resulted in a Republican turnover in Congress which has been predominately Democratic for many years.

On December 8, John Lennon, a former Beatle, was tragically gunned down in front of his New York City home once again raising the controversial issue of gun control. The issue was greatly intensified when the newly elected President was injured in an attempted assassination during March.

Pope John Paul II, the first Polish man ever to guide the Catholic Church, was the victim of yet another assassination attempt. A man who loved to be among his people, the Pope was shot with a handgun by an international terrorist.

Citizens of Atlanta, Georgia experienced the fear of a killer, or killers, who were abducting and murdering black children. Over 25 young blacks died at the hands of the unidentified murderer.

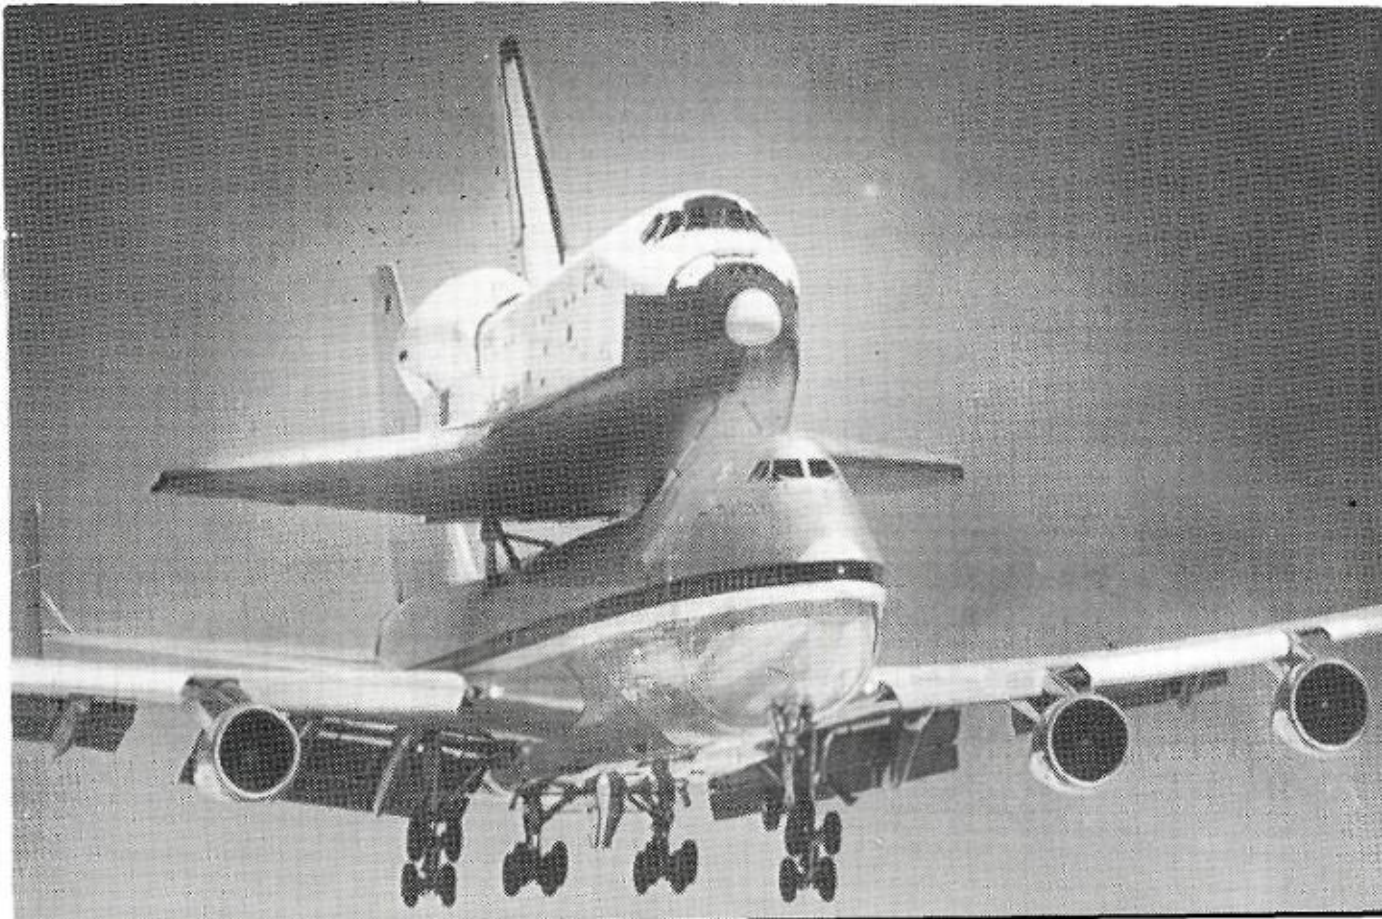

On a more positive note, the yellow ribbons put up on trees in honor of the hostages held by Iran could finally be put away on January 20 when they were released after 444 days of captivity.

Scientists were busy with space explorations throughout the year with two new spacecrafts, Voyager II and the shuttle. The Voyager II satellite was sent into orbit to take pictures of Saturn. Towards the end of the school year the space shuttle, Columbia was launched and successfully landed. This type of shuttle will eventually be used to transport passengers to and from outer space.

The events of the year were full of many developments. The accomplishments of man gave us reason for optimism; while at the same time we had to wonder why tragic shootings and acts of terrorism continued to plague the world.

The spaceship Columbia, a shuttle designed to transport passengers into space, was successfully launched and landed in April.

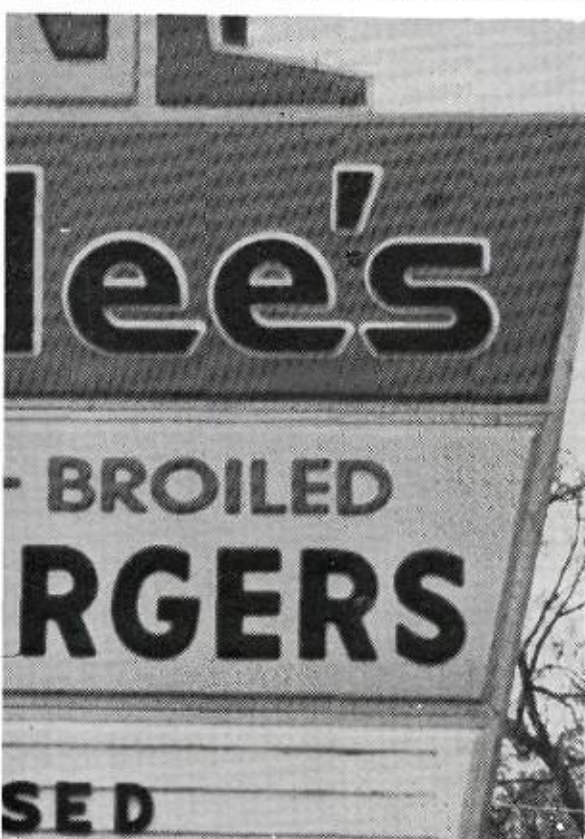

Newly elected President Reagan was the center of attention during the year due to his drastic budget cut proposals.

Tying a yellow ribbon around a tree in front of the school, Darryl May, jr., joins the nation in recognizing the hostages held in Iran.

John Paul II's closeness to his people almost proved to be his downfall, as a terrorist found easy accessibility to the Pope and shot him with a handgun.

For those students without transportation, the places to eat lunch were narrowed down when Hardees was closed at the end of February.

'Swarm' ends season with 5-4 record

After a spirit raising pep rally in the afternoon, Redskin fans crowded into Heights stadium to watch the varsity team roll over the Northwest Grizzlies, 24-0 in the season opener.

In the second game against arch-rival East, North was stopped cold, but then managed to come back the following week to shut out the Titans of South High.

With a record of 2-2, the Redskin team went into the fifth game against the Southeast Buffaloes. The two teams dug and scratched their way through the entire game, and at the end of the fourth quarter the score was tied, 7-7. North scored first in overtime to put the Redskins on top 13-7, with the extra point try blocked. The upset was spoiled when Southeast scored, made the conversion, and sent North away with a 14-13 loss. The Redskins went away disappointed, but also with the thrill of almost beating undefeated Southeast.

After the Southeast game, North was knocked off by Kapaun Mount Carmel, but then finished the season on three winning notes; beating Heights, the West Pioneers, and the Golden Eagles of Carroll to top off their 5-4 season.

Stan Sheldon, sr., summed it up this way, "Coach Shepler did a good job training us for the season. Even though our win-loss record didn't show much, we really did improve and deserved a lot more."

In the fourth quarter, North defenders break into the unsuspecting Carroll line to hold onto the 20-3 victory.

Redskins gain valuable experience

Redskin's Junior Varsity team, coached by Mr. Chuck Palmer, started off the season on a winning note. With Steve Minor, jr., calling the shots, the team rolled over the East High Aces, 13-0. Winning one more game against the South Titans, 19-0, the team finished the season with a 2-2 record.

"We did pretty good this year, but we could have done better," said Dale Heckman, jr.

Sophomore Football

Mr. Maurice Hendershot, a twenty-two year member of the North High coaching staff, led the sophomore team to a 3-4 season. Though losing fullback

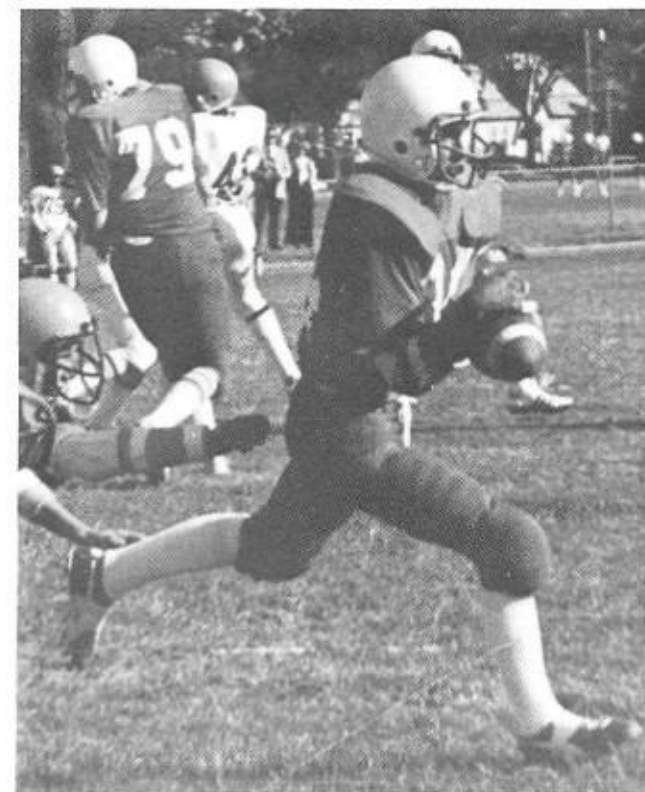

Brett Orth, soph., to a knee injury early in the season, the team managed to pull off wins against the South Titans, 20-0, and the Kapaun Mount Carmel Crusaders, 20-6. Willie Bell had a big day, scoring twice against Kapaun.

North won one more game against the Heights Falcons, and lost the last game they played to the West Pioneers 7-0.

Due to injuries, North was forced to forfeit their last scheduled game of the season against Bishop Carroll.

"I think the team would have done a lot better if we would not have lost our two starting linebackers," stated Mike Atlee, soph. "I'm sure we'll have a winning season next year."

Just out of a Crusaders reach, Mark Munker, soph., runs for a first down.

Busting through the Falcon defense, William Bell, soph., demonstrates the power of the sophomore team.

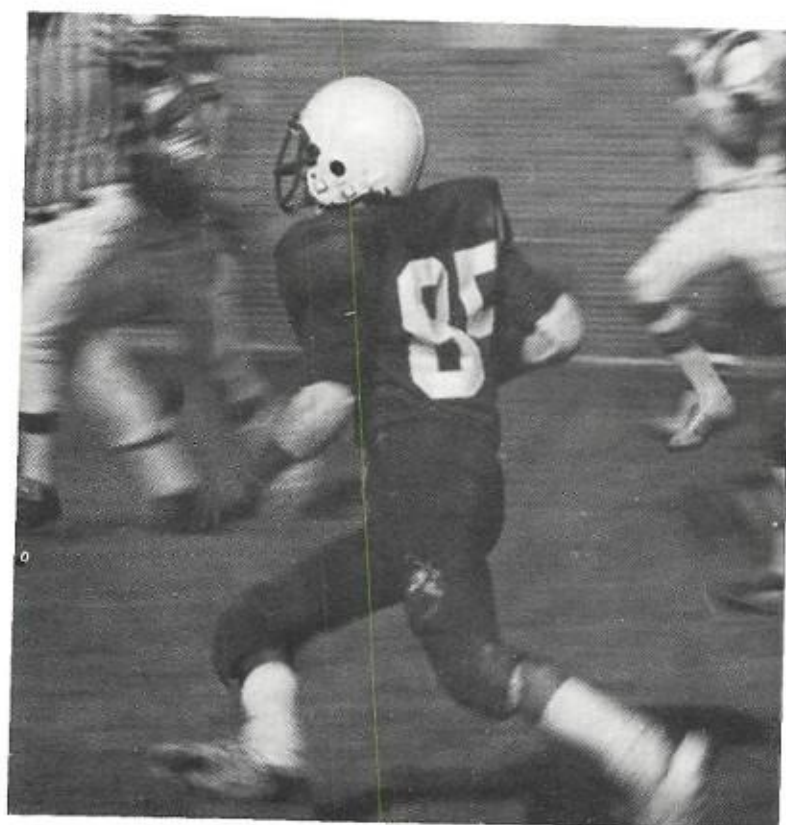

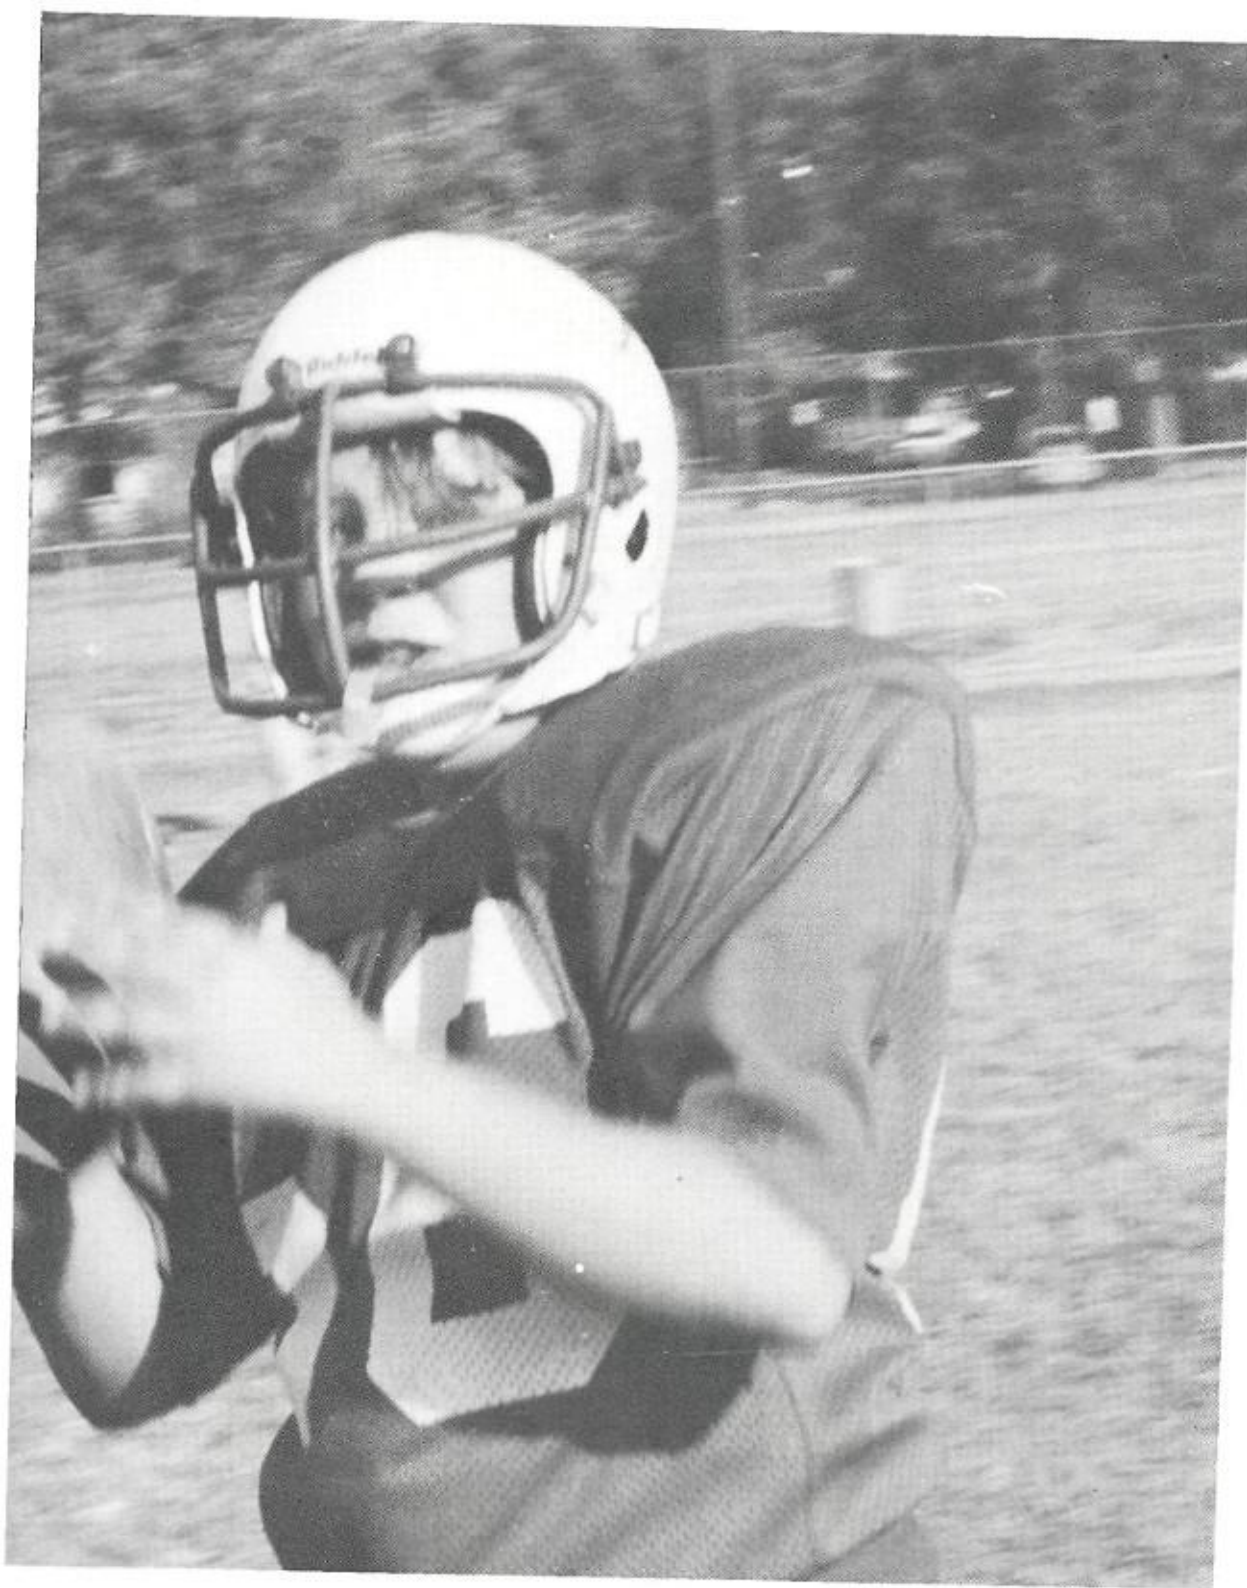

To keep up the victorious season, North's defense surrounds and dominates over the Southeast Buffalos.

While waiting for his chance to play, Robby Pogue, soph., perfects his pass.

Going for the goal, Andy Montidoro, #85, outruns the oncoming Southeast defense.

Volleyball

Netters suffer disappointing season

Starting off the season with a win over Kingman, the volleyball team appeared to be on top of it all. With six returning letterwomen, and three-year starters, Jana Sorrell and Ann Hendershot, the season looked to be "in the bag." However, looks proved to be deceiving. The team had a hard time, finishing 4-11 and in seventh place in the city league.

Ann Wagner's Junior Varsity team had a rough time of it, also. They finished 2-13 on the season and held eight place in the city league.

Cross-Country

The team started the season by placing third out of twelve teams at the Great Bend Invitational. Throughout the season, the team remained consistent by always placing fourth or fifth, ending the season by placing fifth at Regionals on the W.S.U campus. Many members brought home medals throughout the season, including Darrius Patterson, jr., David Lofstead, jr., Jennifer Cale, sr., and John Mauch, sr.

With the low turn-out for girl's cross-country, the girls could only compete individually. Both Jennifer Cale, sr., and Sandra Crider, soph., did well.

"I feel that we had a great year and an excellent coach," said Jeff Klock, jr. "I'm looking forward to next year."

Lady gymnasts set new school record

Hard workouts and long practices paid off for the girls' gymnastics team as they placed 2nd in city, 1st in regionals, and 3rd in state. With six returning letterwomen and two new members, the girls improved not only as a team but also placing in many events individually.

At the city meet, Shae Donham placed 2nd all-around and Emily Froome placed 3rd all-around. At regionals, Donham placed 1st all-around, Froome placed 2nd all-around, Lisa Toledo placed 4th on the balance beam, and Becky Webster placed 9th on the vault. At state Donham placed 2nd on the vault, 3rd on the floor ex., 1st on the balance beam, and 3rd all-around. Froome placed 10th on the floor exercise.

As a result of the team's talents, the girls averaged over 90 points throughout their season, setting a new school record of 97.2 points at state.

"We had a great season. It will be a hard record to break next year," said Joanie Esterline, soph.

Boys' Gymnastics

The boys' gymnastics team did a good job despite the lack of members and coach. The boys traveled every day to Northwest to practice and be coached by Bob Marley. Redskins were led by Scott Cherry, who was the regional vaulting champion. At state, Cherry placed 10th in the vaulting. The team became even smaller when Curtis Corning injured his knee at the South meet and was out for the rest of the season.

First year coach leads team to victory

Veteran Coach Steve Neff, in his first year at North, brought the Redskins their first winning season in a number of years. They finished with a 9-7 mark in the city league and a 10-9 overall record.

It was the early part of the season that proved to be their toughest test, as the Redskins faced eventual 6A Champion South Titans in their opening game. After a tough loss to South, the 'Skins upset the eventual 5A Champion Kapaun Mt. Carmel Crusaders in the second game of the year.

Southeast barely escaped North with a narrow win in the third game. But runner-up Heights, featuring Aubrey Sherrod, who made first string on the

All-City team, humbled the Redskins.

Later wins against city competition kept North in the upper part of the standings throughout the season, but they just could not quite find what it takes to beat the stiff competition of the best teams.

In the North Invitational, the 'Skins were defeated by Southeast in the championship game. North had defeated the Shawnee Mission North Indians in the first round to advance to the finals.

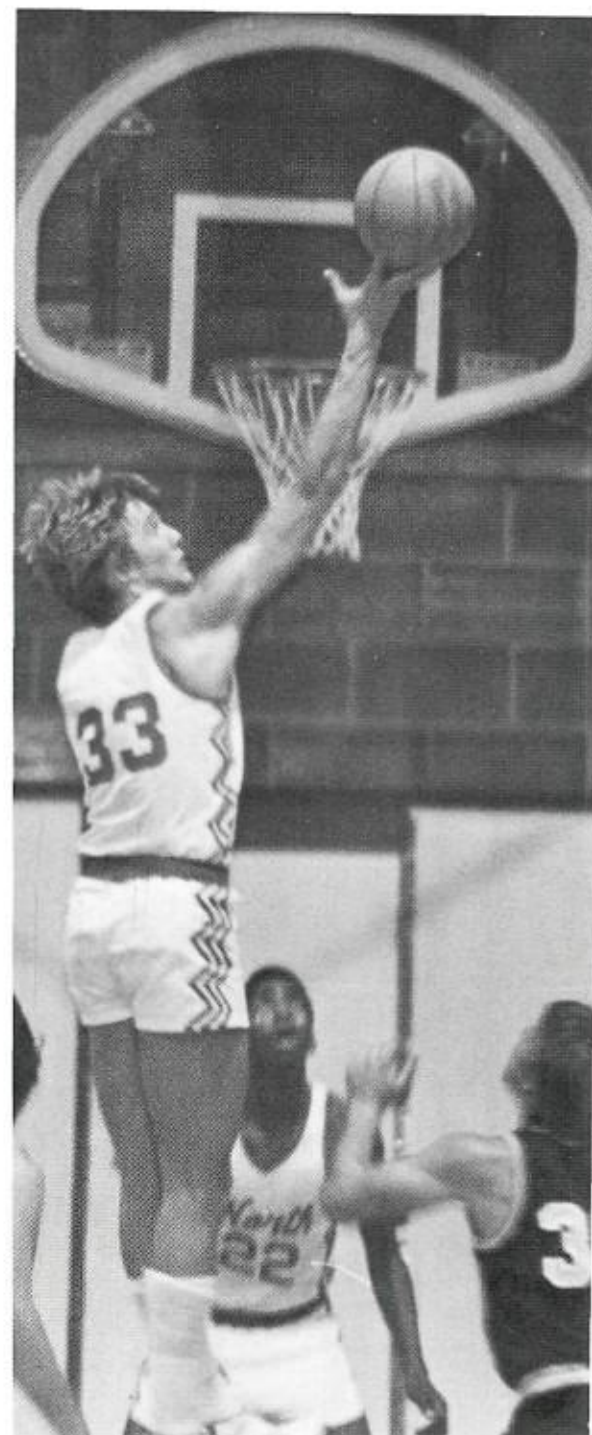

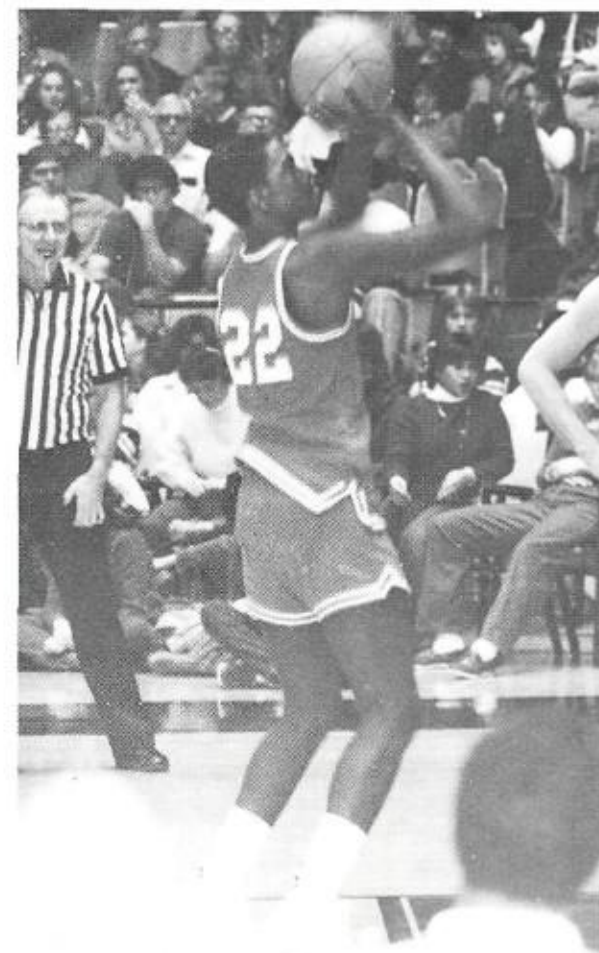

Junior guard Joe Howard placed on the All-City second team, and senior center Brian Wendelburg made third team. Barry Fields, jr., was on the Honorable Mention list at guard.

Dozier named to All-City first team

As the ball bounced off the glass and into the net with only four seconds remaining, the girls' varsity basketball team was nearly assured the narrow one point victory, 56-55 over West High on February 17. After rebounding a shot by Queen Smith that bounced off, All-City player Renee Dozier went up, scoring the two most timely points of the game, and ending the game with 27 points. She averaged 19.3 points per game over the season.

Dozier, along with starters Becky Craft, Kim Porter, Genoa Wade, and Bonnie Woodard, ended the season with a record of nine wins and nine losses.

"I think we're better than our record showed," commented Dozier. "If we work as a team next year we should place in the top three," she added.

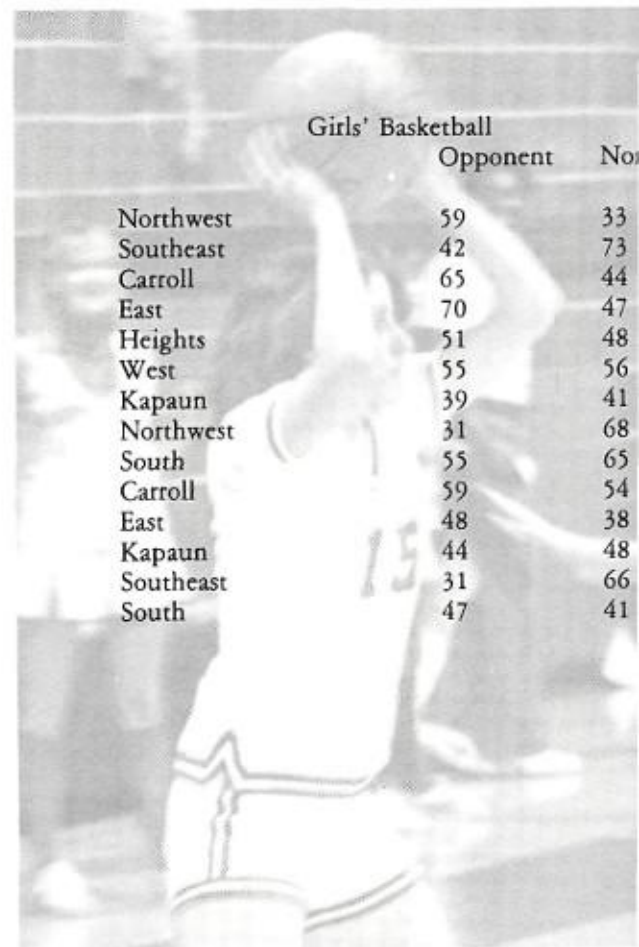

Competition throughout the season seemed to be unusually tough, but by being a squad consisting of six juniors, it surely gained them experience that should prove to be valuable in the season ahead.

"We lost some games we shouldn't have, but overall it went pretty well," commented Becky Craft.

Craft ended her season with a 14.3 game point average, and was chosen for the All-City second team.

JV Basketball

Girls take third place in city league

With an improved and impressive season, the girls' junior varsity basketball team ended their season with a record of 7 wins and 4 losses. Behind only two teams, East and Carroll, the girls tied for third place in the city league standings with the Kapaun Mt. Carmel Crusaders.

Juniors Stephanie Jones, Darin Larson, Laurie Moon, Missy Porter, and Becky Waddell led the squad to the most impressive record since Lynette Woodard was on the team. Coached by Todd Russell, their final game on March 3 against the Southeast Buffaloes proved to be an enjoyable one. The lady 'skins destroyed the Buffs, victorious by the score of 68-10.

"It was a good feeling winning like that, because we've never had that good of a season," commented Laurie Moon, jr.

Boys' JV

Kary Dixon, Robert Clark, and Ian Jackson led the boys' junior varsity basketball team to a season record of 5 wins and 7 losses.

Small in numbers but large in talent, the squad finished the season with only seven contributing players, many of them sophomores, which should make up a good squad in the season ahead.

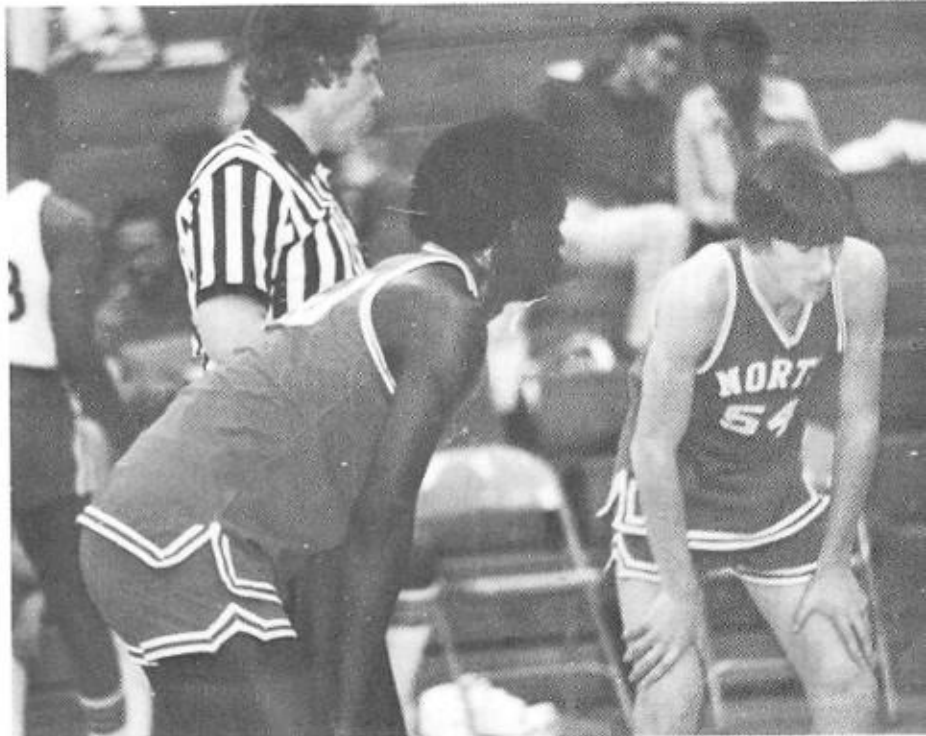

On her way for a lay-up, Becky Waddell, soph., lays the ball gently up against the glass.

Waiting to shoot a free throw, Derrius Patterson, jr., takes a breather.

Bringing the ball down court, Robert Clark, jr., keeps his eyes on the opponents ahead of him.

On the free throw line, Ruben Chavez, jr., carefully aims for the basket.

Watching the defender carefully, Jamie Clay, soph., brings the ball down to set up the next play.

Sophomore Basketball, Soccer

Soccer, sophomores struggle through

The soccer team had an interesting season, finishing up with a win-loss record of 1-6-3. Although most of the games proved to be close, their only win came against West.

Returning back for the second season were five lettermen. Carlos Cortez and Julian Pando traded off passes from Gardner May to be the scoring machines. Russell Morrison, Lloyd Tabing, Donny Davis, and Todd Randall made up the defense. Named defensive player of the year was goalie Keith Conley.

Freshman standouts Joel Elsea and Phillip Petty shared the honors for Freshman of the Year. Yongyouth Narongvate was the only senior player.

"With as many freshmen and sophomores as we had, maybe next year will be better," said Russell Morrison, jr.

Sophomore Basketball

Even though the sophomore basketball team ended their season with a record of 0-10, it doesn't mean they gave up. The young Redskins worked very hard from beginning to end, giving each game all their effort. Their record was disappointing, but their improvement was excellent. Leading scorers throughout the season were Mike Gomez and Dwayne Dumler.

Backed by dominating Redskins, Eugene Johnson, #50, attempts to tip the ball to one of his teammates.

Milsap captures Grand-State title

Despite their loss to Kapaun in the city league, the wrestlers had an outstanding season. As a team, the Redskins placed 3rd in the city tournament in back of Kapaun and South. The team ended their season with 7 wins and 1 loss.

At the North Invitational, North took first place and 5 wrestlers, Danny Manion, Hershel West, Arthur Orange, Lance Milsap, and Cliff Schoonover, received first place honors in each of their weight divisions.

For the third year in a row, Senior Lance Milsap captured the State Championship Title. Throughout his years at North, he was very dedicated to the sport. His work payed off when he went undefeated in the city league. At Grand-State, held in Nebraska, Milsap captured the Grand-State Title in the 132 weight division. Other senior wrestlers who contributed a great deal to the team were Cliff Schoonover, Arthur Orange, and Mike Bowers. Schoonover placed second in city and fourth at sub-state. Arthur Orange placed second in city, first in regionals, third at sub-state, fourth at state, and third at Grand State, and Mike Bowers placed fourth in regionals.

"We had a great season, but next year will be even better because we have so many returning lettermen," said Curtis Schoonover, soph.

Swimming

Swimmers finish fifth in City League

With more experience than the year before, the boys' swim team went into the season with a tri-meet against East and Manhattan. Although the boys came in third place, they showed a lot of capability and proceeded to excel this potential by defeating West, Coffeyville, Heights, and El Dorado. In their most prominent victory, the Redskins beat West 69-11, taking first place in nine events plus the diving competition.

Completing the season with a 5-6 win-loss record, the swimmers competed in the city league meet and finished in fifth place. Many individual honors were gained at city, including a second place finish by Curtis Corning, but no one placed at state.

Girls' Swimming

With nearly double the number of girls over last year, the girls' swim team came away with three wins and finished fifth in the City League.

Starting off the season with a 55-17 trouncing of West, the team also pulled out wins against Southeast and Great Bend.

At the city league meet, the relay team of Kristine Stockwell, Gina DeChant, Phyllis Whiting, and Jan Puckett placed third. DeChant also placed third in the 160 individual medley.

Five girls went to the state meet at Kansas University in Lawrence. They managed to make the finals; however, no one placed in the top five spots.

Varsity Baseball

Young squad takes 2nd in city league

Being plagued by errors in several games throughout the season, the boys' varsity baseball team made up for most of those defeats, finishing the season tied for second in the City League standings. The team tied with East High, behind South who placed first in the league. The Redskins ended the season with a record of 14 wins and 8 losses.

At regional competition on May 14, the team lost the second game of a double header with East. The loss ended their chances for state competition.

Freshmen and sophomores made up a large percentage of the squad. Mark Standiford proved to be a great addition to the team, especially in the batter's box. Standiford finished his season with a team-high batting average of .509, while driving in 20 RBI's. Pitcher Kary Dixon was another young letterman.

Maurice Mitchell and Jon Opliger led the team on the mound, pitching efficiently and dependably, limiting greatly the number of earned runs against them.

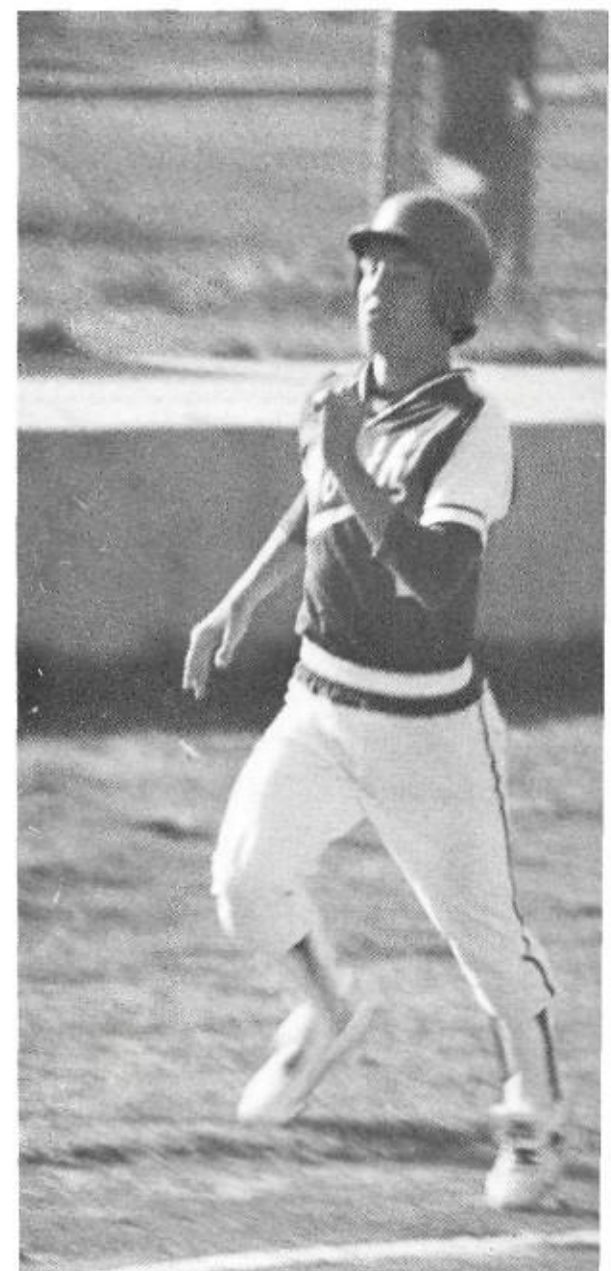

Also batting exceptionally well throughout the season were Glenn Rose and Doug Herrington. Rose ended the season with a .344 batting average, while Herrington rounded out his third year of play with an average of .343.

"The baseball program had some talented athletes. Although it was a very young team, I believe the experience they gained will help next year," said Coach Hendershot.

New coach leads girls to state

In early March, the girls' varsity softball team was anxious to play ball with eleven returning letterwomen, but they got off to a slow start. They split their first four games with West and East and lost both games to Heights, but the Redskins never gave up.

Led by first year Coach Chuck Palmer, the girls came back strong the rest of the season by beating Northwest, Southeast, and Kapaun by a margin of runs. The team didn't give up and continued to play tough ball. In the second game of the double-header against Carroll, North beat the four-time city league champions with a score of 9-8. This was Carroll's only loss of the year in city league play, and it came after they narrowly defeated North 7-6.

In regional play, the girls beat Derby by a close score of 4-3 in their first game, and ended up taking second after losing to Carroll 1-0 in the finals.

For the second time, the girls qualified for the state tournament held in Newton. At state the team lost their first game to Shawnee Mission West.

"With seven seniors as starters, we thought we'd really have a good chance at state. The season proved us wrong though. Just when we thought we were playing well as a team we would begin to slack off and lose," commented Becky Craft, sr.

At regionals, Sheryl Harshberger, jr., concentrates as she releases the ball in the championship game.

While deciding whether or not to advance to second, Gerrie Garcia, jr., checks to see where the ball is.

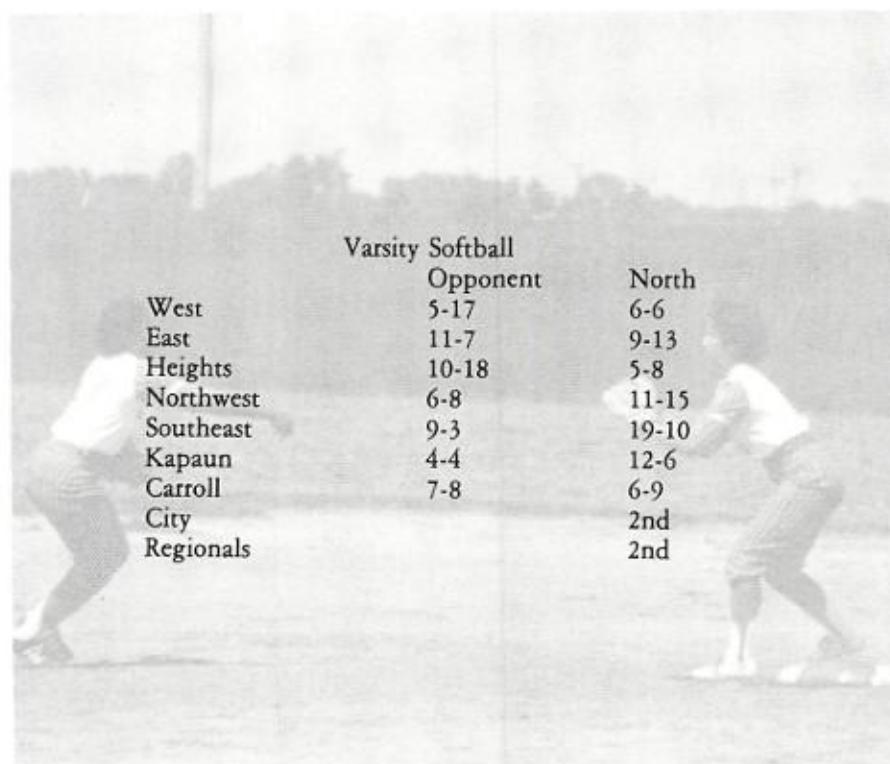

As the ball is pitched, Ann Hendershot, sr., prepares for the throw from the catcher to prevent the runner from proceeding to second.

Playing third base, Becky Craft, sr., waits to see what the pitch is before covering the base in an attempt to put her opponent out.

JV Softball, Baseball

JV girls finish 2nd in city league

Backing up the varsity program, the JV softball team went undefeated all season until their last game against Carroll, and finished the season with a win-loss record of 7-1. Except for Carroll, all the games were finished by the run rule at the end of the fifth inning.

Making up the team were six freshmen, seven sophomores, and one junior. The freshmen who competed were from North's area junior highs.

JV Baseball

The JV team finished 5-3 on the season, with victories over Northwest, Kapaun, West, Heights, and East.

The team opened the season with three straight victories over Northwest, Kapaun, and West, but then dropped two straight to Southeast and Carroll. After beating Heights, they lost to first place South and then beat East to finish up the season.

The team was led by Jack Wenzel, Shawn Noland, Ruben Chavez, Rob Cleary, Ron Bazzelle, and Darrin Grimes, all but one of which are returning from last year. When their regular season games were finished, Noland, Wenzel, and Cleary were moved up to varsity to assist during regional competition.

Debbie Garcia, soph., concentrates on the action of the game while waiting for her turn at bat.

Looking for a hit, Perry Perez, jr., keeps his eye on the ball.

In a ready position, Stephanie Jones, fr., waits for a ball to come her way.

While watching the pitcher, Karen McCalla, soph., prepares to steal a base.

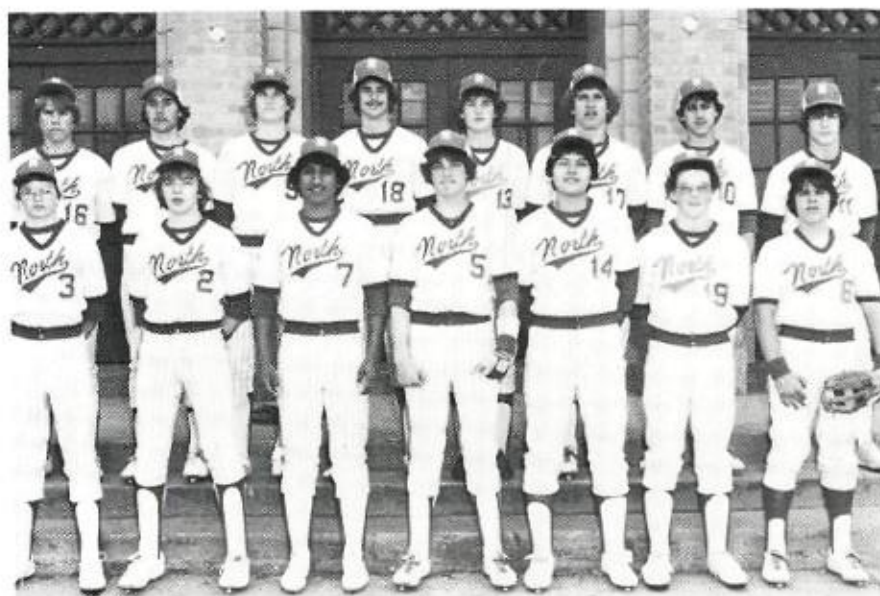

As he winds up for the pitch, Darren Grimes, fr., aims for the catcher's mitt.

Golf

Golfers take fifth in city league

Ending the season with an overall record of three wins and five losses, the boys' golf team, coached by Dennis Brunner, did as well as can be expected for such a young team. Three sophomores and one freshman were added to the squad of eight members. The team placed fifth in city competition.

Competing at Sims, Wichita State, and Pawnee Prairie golf courses allowed the squad to strive throughout the season to better techniques and experience.

Generally shooting in the low 80's, the squad hoped to lower their scores next season and place higher in the city league standings.

Girls' Golf

It was a rebuilding and developing year for the girls' golf team. The girls, who finished the season with an 0-5 league record, worked hard on their skills and lowered their total team score by 40 strokes. They placed fifth in the regional meet, defeating Heights, a team they fell to by 8 strokes earlier in the season.

Coach Jan Manion welcomed back returning letterwomen Becci Brenner, Heather McKenzie, and Kim Walker, along with newcomer Colleen O'Melia. The girls are all juniors and will be returning next fall for what Mrs. Manion believes will be a much improved season.

Tennis

Tennis team ties for second in city

Losing only two matches throughout the city league season, the boys' tennis team finished with six wins and two losses. The only two defeats were handed down by Southeast and KMC. Their winning record was good enough for a second place tie in the city league.

For such a young team, consisting of all underclassman but one, the boys' squad did relatively well. Brent Fields, along with older brother Barry, contributed greatly to the six man squad. Both of the Fields brothers placed high in singles competition throughout the season. Barry Fields took second, while Brent placed third in the city league tournament. The Fields brothers placed among the top eight in the state.

In doubles competition, Tim Filby and Bill Fraley combined their skills to also place well in tournament play.

Girls' Tennis

Seasonal play for the girls' tennis team began on September 10. Starting off well, the girls' first match was against West, winning eight matches to one. Other victories included a 7-2 win over Heights, and a 5-4 victory over South. The team finished the season with a record of three wins and five losses.

The team was led by returning letter-women Tara Gregory, and Cindy McCord, along with Sandy Totten. In the latter part of the season, sisters Pam and Kathy Giles did exceptionally well.

While she is serving the ball, Marilee Vines, sr., concentrates on placing it in her opponent's serving court.

Concentrating on hitting the ball correctly, Brent Fields, fr., relays the ball back to his opponent during tennis practice.

Track

Girls' track team sets 2 new records

In spite of a relatively small team and a number of injuries the girls' track team had a very successful season, winning two meets, the Northwest Invitational and the Campus Invitational.

This success was also evident in two new school records. Janel Edwards, jr. broke North's previous high jump record by finishing third at state with a high of 5'8" and Lori Dominique, sr., bettered the record she had set the year before in the 100m hurdles with a time of 14.0 seconds.

At regionals, Edwards, Laurie Moon, Dominique and the 400m and 800m relay all qualified for state.

The 800m relay team of Moon, Missy Porter, Becky Webster and Edwards finished sixth and the 400m relay team of Moon, Webster, Piper Jackson and Edwards won third place at state.

Boys' Track

The boys' track team also had a fairly good season although they were handicapped with a very small team.

With only 10 members, six qualified for the state meet. The 1 mile and 2 mile relays placed third at regionals. Dale Harper and Stan Sheldon made finals at regionals in the 100 and 200 meter dash.

At state the 2 mile relay took sixth.

Organizations

Squad wins award for best cheering group

Early morning practices started out the year for the varsity cheerleaders. Cheerleading camp held in June gave the girls a chance to improve their skills. They received three blue ribbons and a plaque for the outstanding squad. Lori Dominique was honored with the individual award of outstanding NCA (National Cheerleading Association) cheerleader of the camp.

In September, the Varsity cheerleading squad, along with the Junior Varsity cheerleaders, planned and served a fund-raising pancake breakfast which was held at Minisa Park. They also headed the pep assemblies.

"It was fun to cheer for two winning teams," said Jana Sorrell, sr. "School spirit improved so much from last year."

Performing at an assembly, senior varsity yell leaders Andre Stroughter and Mike Lauer, along with senior varsity cheerleader Monica George, yell a chant to the opposing team.

To complete the performance of "Hot Stuff", Sandy Totten, jr., poses on cue.

Pom pon squad receives team precision award

During the summer, eight members of the pom pon squad participated in a week long camp at Kansas University. At the camp, the girls gained skills and precision on performances which helped them win many awards. The first day out the girls captured the team precision ribbon with their performance of a home routine. Other awards received were for showmanship, kicks, and effort. Individual achievement awards went to Janette Johnson and Lisa Toledo.

Along with performing during half-time at Varsity Football and Basketball games, the squad was also rated at Band Day held at W.S.U., in which they received a 1 rating on their performance of 'Soul Man.' Later in the year, ten of the girls traveled to Emporia to perform for a Physical Education Convention.

With seventeen girls making up the squad, they participated in many other events throughout the year. In early January they helped out at the Jail Bail at Towne East to help promote the Wichita Wind Hockey Team, and also made an appearance at the Woman's Pizza Hut Basketball Classic.

During a pep assembly in the auditorium, varsity cheerleaders perform a cheer on stage.

Squad attends NCA camp in summer months

During the fall, the Inter-varsity squad cheered for gymnastics and cross-country. The squad also cheered the wrestlers on during the winter months. Throughout the spring, they were busy supporting the track team at their meets.

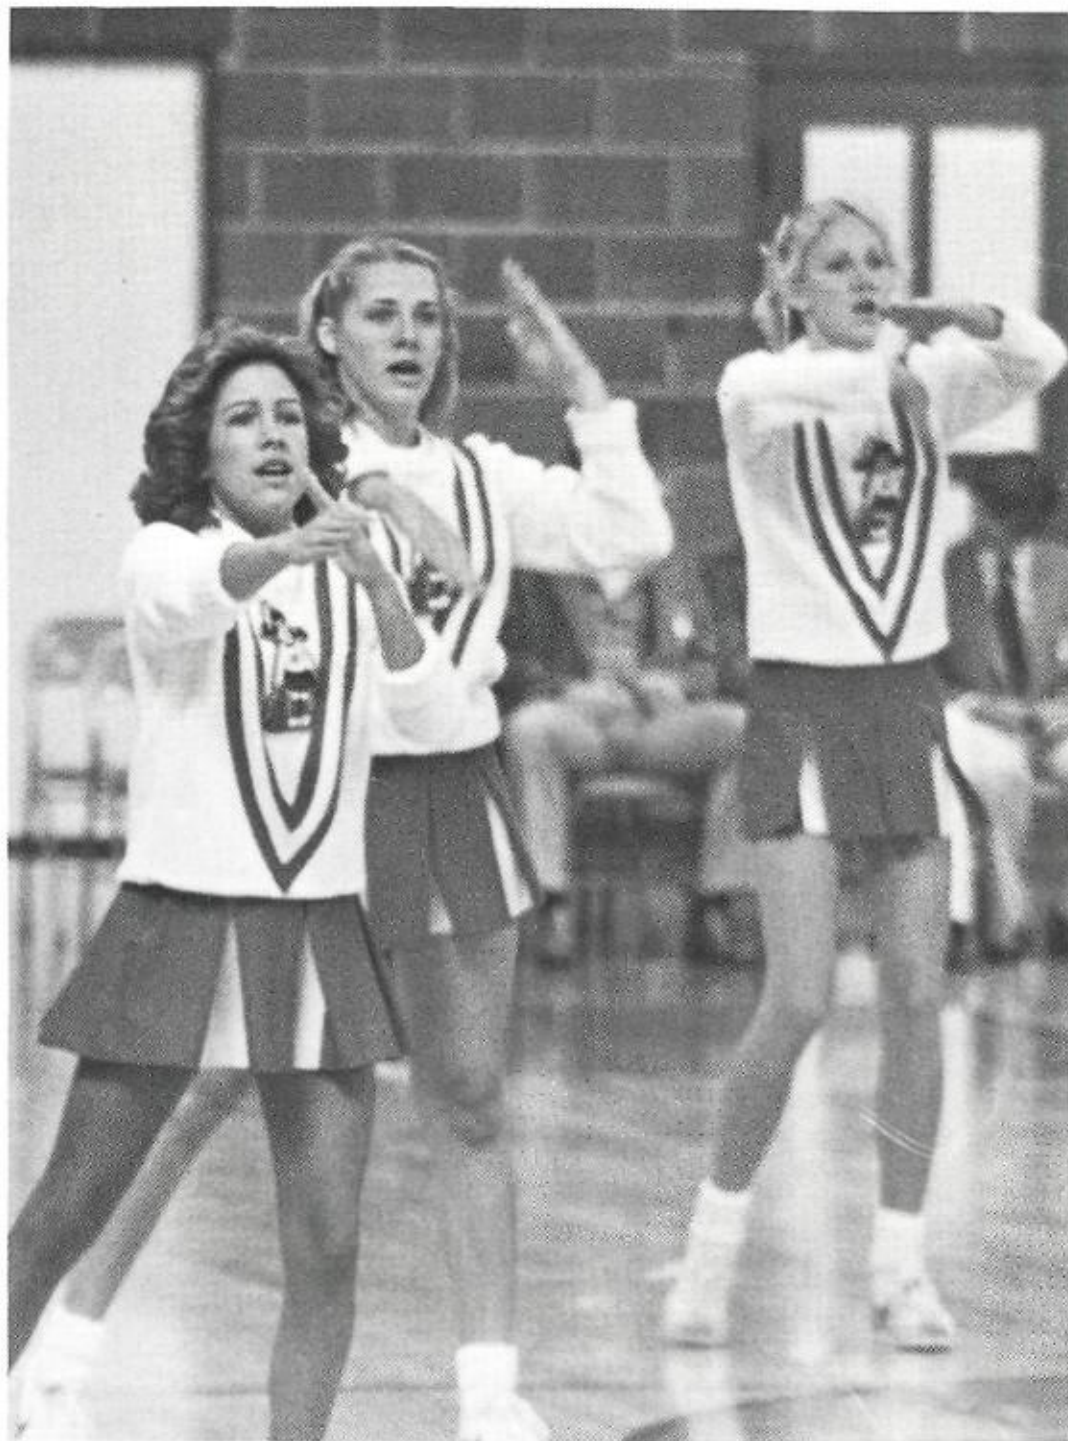

Until recently, the I.V. squad was known as the wrestling squad. The name was changed because they supported not only the wrestling team but also other sports throughout the year.

During the summer months, four out of the six members on the squad attended a summer NCA camp. The squad was also busy with many fund raisers, including their participation at the Student Legislature carnival, where they were in charge of the jail. The girls also sold the tickets used to put people in jail.

Squad active in fund raising pancake breakfast

Varsity girls' games and events were backed up by the Junior Varsity cheerleading squad. They cheered at JV football games as well as girls' and boys' basketball games. The JV squad participated in activities such as a pancake breakfast in September and the scrimmage assemblies before the basketball season started. They also participated in weekly pep rallies, sophomore orientation, and headed the car wash.

Sophomore cheerleaders supported all the sophomore sports and pep assemblies. To raise money they sold donuts before school. Stationary was sold in December to raise money for the JV and Sophomore squads. In February they held a pep assembly for sophomores only, to honor all sophomore athletes.

Flag girls work hard, show skill in performances

Getting an early start on the season, the flag girls, led by Miss Paula Cobb, started practices in July and continued through the summer. Miss Cobb, a sophomore at Wichita State University, also had the squad up early every morning of the first semester to practice.

Working closely with the marching band, the squad added style and flare to halftime shows by performing routines to such songs as "Tusk," the "Pepsi" theme, and the theme to "Muppet Movie." They also performed at pep rallies and were invited to the W.S.U. Band Day. Held on October 18, the ladies received a 1 for their performance of the theme from "White Shadow."

Despite a drop in membership, the flags continued through the season and ended the year with six girls.

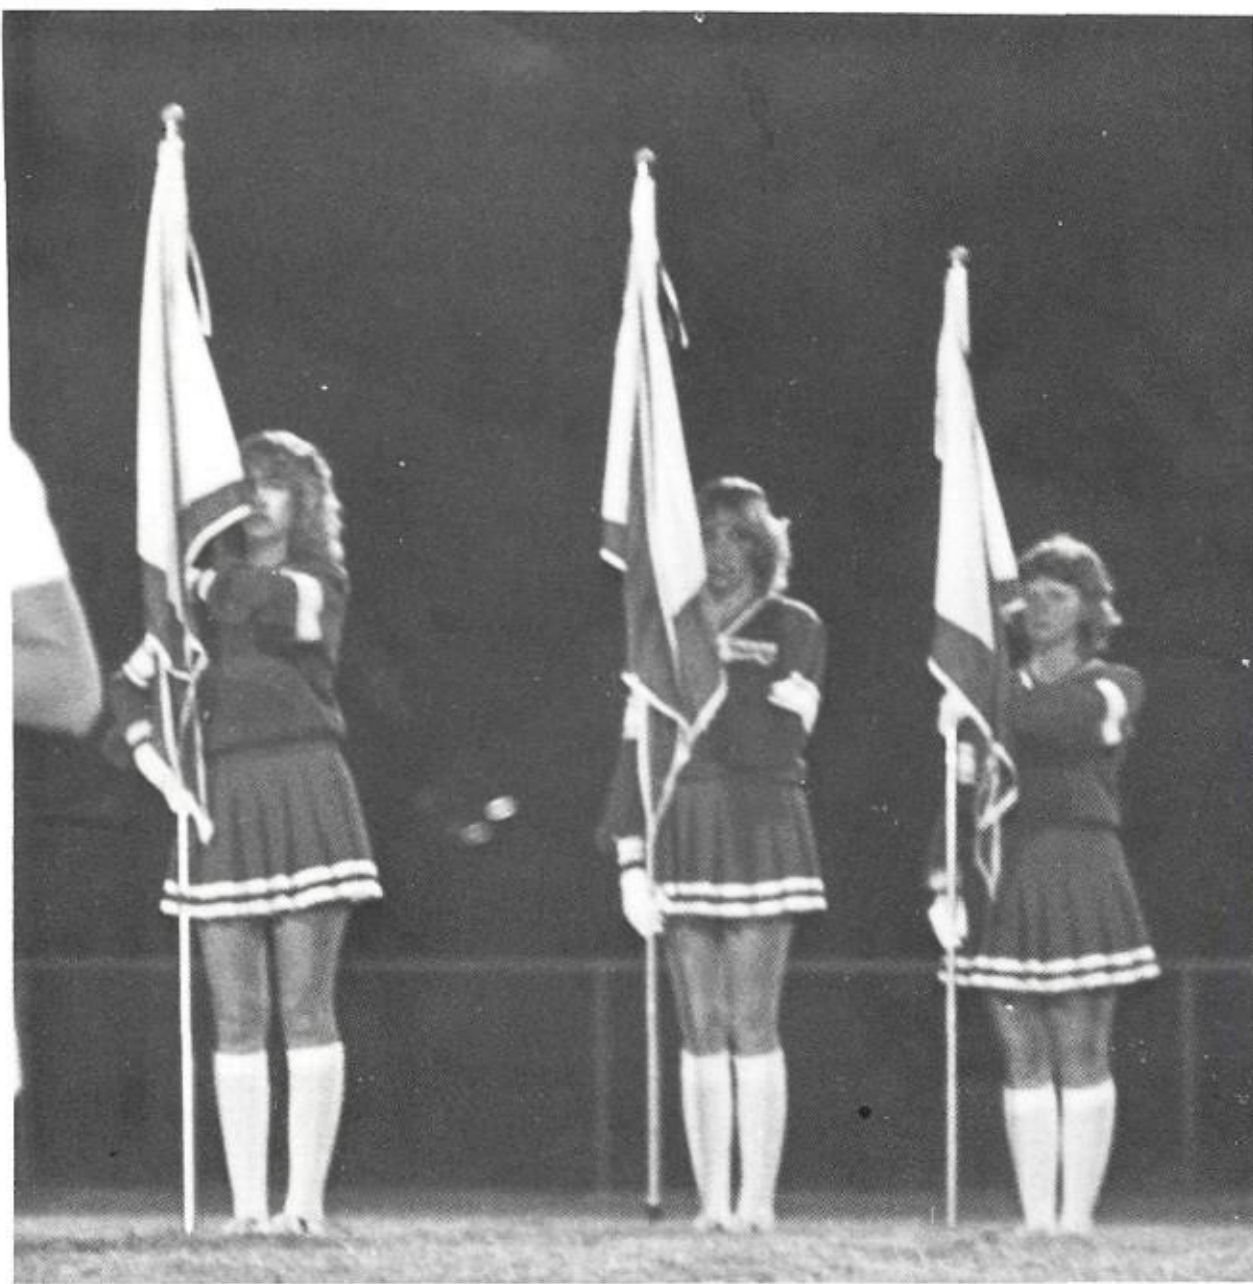

While trying to stay awake during an early morning seven o'clock practice, Kim Hughes, sr., intensely concentrates on her routine.

During a basketball game, the pep band plays "The Horse" for the pom pon girls.

Early practices prepare pep band for school events

Kicking off the year with an appearance at the Pizza Hut College All-Star basketball game, the pep band kept up their torrid pace, playing pep assemblies and basketball games. In order to get in a little last-minute preparation, practices were held at 7 p.m. on game days, as well as every Tuesday.

Coordinating the pep assemblies with the pom pon girls, flag girls, cheerleaders, and Tribe, the band, under the direction of Mr. Richard Gardner, kept feet a tappin' and hands a clappin' throughout pep rallies.

Letter Girls

Overcoming a drop in membership, the lettergirls once again served the purpose for which they were formed. By helping to get other freshmen and sophomores involved with sporting events, the girls promoted school spirit. The squad dropped from 18 to 10 members, while still keeping up with football and basketball games. The girls met on Mondays during club period to learn cheers and plan activities.

Tribe plans Alumni Day, Coaches Day

One of the most spirited and supportive organizations, Tribe, kept the students informed and involved in all of the many school activities. Tribe sponsor Pat Newton, along with President Lisa Toledo, worked closely with the rest of the Tribe Exec. Committee to make the year an unforgettable one.

The organization introduced fall and winter sports and sponsored Coaches Day, which coincided with Good Sportsmanship Week.

Along with introducing sports, Tribe also sponsored the Godspell assembly and combined with the cheerleaders to sponsor Lynette Woodard Day.

Money-making projects included selling jackets, T-shirts, and sweaters, along with candy canes on Christmas and stuffed animals on Valentines Day.

Winter dance, Student Council's first project

Student Legislature had their work cut out for them at the beginning of the year when they organized the Winter Homecoming dance. Their responsibilities included ticket sales, music, decorations, and the elections of Homecoming Royalty.

Eleven out of the forty members of Student Leg. attended a Student Council Conference at Augusta High School in October. There they learned the importance of leadership, and learned how to communicate with many different kinds of people.

In late February, the movie 1941 was shown on a Friday night. Because it was held on a Friday night, the turn out was not as successful as the other fund raising activities planned for the student body during the school hours.

New students taught Western world cultures

For the first year, a Culture Club was formed by sponsor Roxanne Juarez. The club was organized so as to promote friendship and comradie among the Asian student population and to provide activities to acquaint them with American social life.

FCA

For the sixteenth year, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes continued even though they were small in number. With Mr. Brunner as sponsor, the club met weekly outside of school. During their meetings, the club played games such as basketball, volleyball, and soccer. Occasionally, members from the WSU football team came and talked to the members.

Bible Club met every Wednesday at the noon hour to share Christian fellowship. Their group started small but increased in number at each meeting and those who attended held a close friendship. During club time they were entertained by youth pastors from nearby churches, and occasionally had pizza parties at a member's home.

The club had many special events during the year. Among these were going to care homes during the holidays to carol and visit the elderly, and building a float for the water festival.

"To share Christian fellowship and encourage one another in Christian living, we emphasize an outreach to non-church going students," said sponsor Mrs. Janet Nitschke.

Zoological Studies

It was slow going at first for the newly formed Zoological Studies Club, but through the motivation of sponsor Alan Volkman, they soon got things moving.

During the spring, the club conducted programs for children. Programs on rodents, turtles, insects, amphibians, snakes, and fish were given. The club also went to the Sedgwick County Zoo to study the habitats of the various animals.

Medical Careers

Membership in Medical Careers Club almost doubled from the previous years.

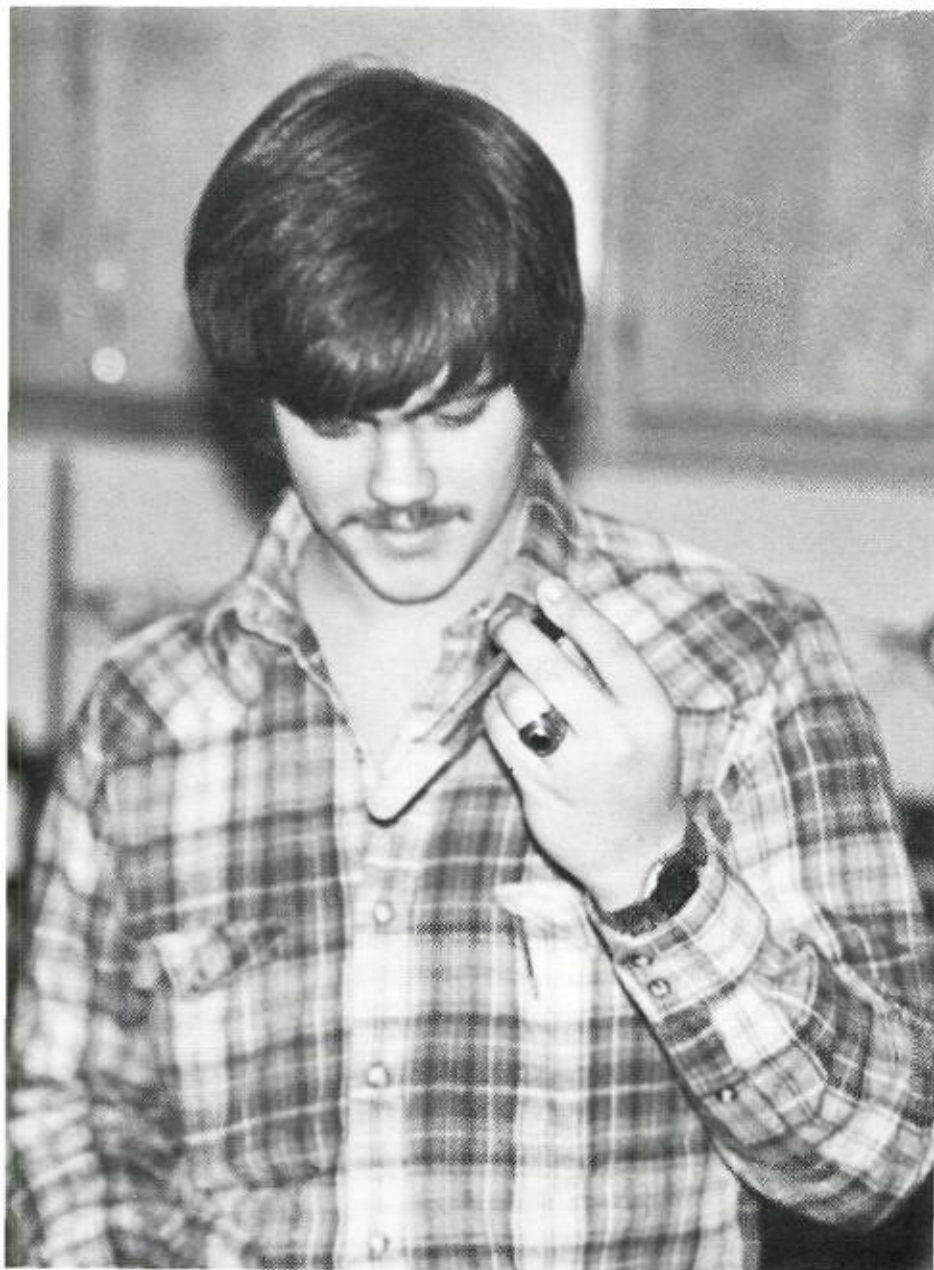

A social worker came in September to talk to club members about her various responsibilities. Visits by her and a Pediatric Nurse Practitioner helped club members to become aware of the medical careers that are available.

Chem Club takes field trip to Vulcan Chemicals

Whether because of a compelling interest in science, or just the need for something which is challenging and fun, the Chemistry Club, sponsored by Della Schiebold, had an exciting year.

One of the challenges undertaken by the club was the testing of drinking water for chlorine content. Several samples of tap water were taken and their chlorine contents measured to check whether or not the amount of chlorine in the water varied from place to place. The results were somewhat surprising, as they found that chlorine content did in fact vary.

Along with the chemical experiments, the Chemistry Club took trips to an oil refinery and Vulcan Chemical Corporation.

All in all, the club found plenty of exciting things in which to get involved.

Models visit FHA, reveal beauty secrets

Future Homemakers of America Club (FHA) was headed by Home Ec teacher Marion Thomas.

A variety of speakers were the guests of FHA Club. One of these was Benny BoBo, who was the vice-president of Fashion Two-Twenty Make-up Company. He talked to the group about the various make-up techniques used by models and business women alike.

Women's Careers

Too often high school girls harbor the myth that a woman's place is in the home, or possibly in a secretarial or teaching career. Women's Careers Club, in their first year of existence, was designed to make women aware of the many occupations that have been opened to them.

Women's Careers members listen to a panel of speakers on job opportunities for women in Wichita.

HERO exhibits goodwill toward less fortunate

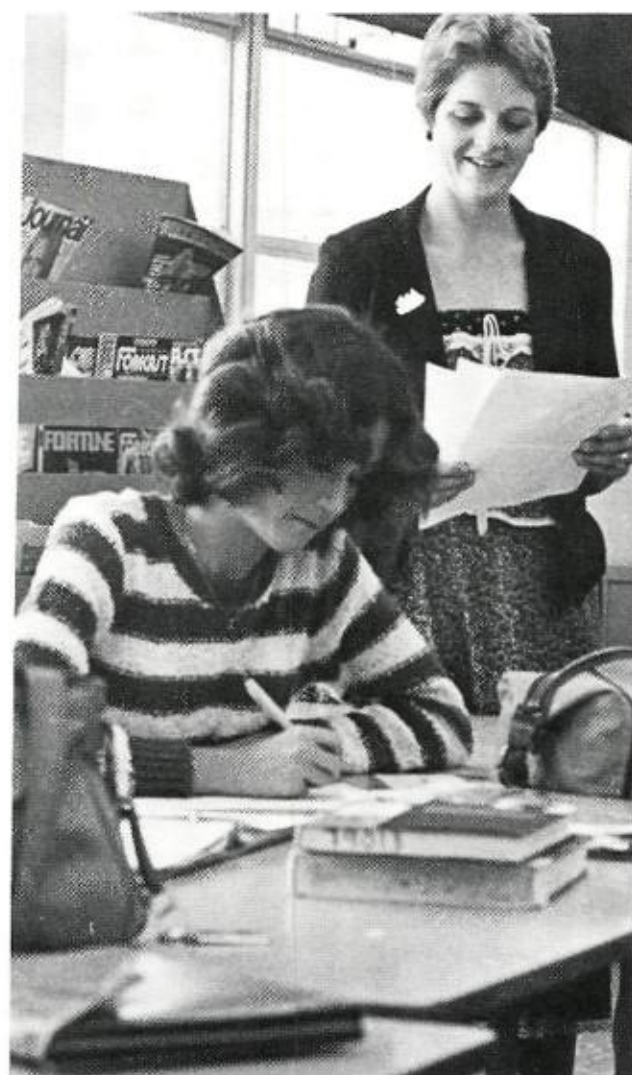

HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) had a full schedule planned. Part of the HERO program is to do goodwill projects for the community. In November, they helped assist in the Institute of Logopedics' Festival of Fun.

HERO's busiest month was December. They fixed goody boxes for the Kansas State Reformatory, which consisted of cookies, fruit, and candy. Also the class adopted two families for Operation Holiday. They baked food and gave toys and other gifts to the families.

Throughout the year, HERO adopted a nursing home and visited the elderly people there. The class planned luncheons for teachers, administration, counselors, and parents.

Business Club raises funds for Temple Memorial

Sponsored by Ms. Wagner, Business Club's enrollment was larger than in the past. Money was raised for the memorial of Mr. Temple, and plans were made to sponsor a float in the water festival.

Club periods were taken up mainly by guest speakers, such as a real estate salesman and a Sheriff's officer, who informed students on various careers. Also, films were shown on career options.

OE

Although numbers were a little lacking with only six members, Office Education Club was very active.

The club participated in a Rock-a-Thon for Special Olympics at Towne East, and carnations were delivered to one's favorite valentine. Money raised was used to go to Emporia in April for the Spring Leadership Conference.

DE attends workshop in Rock Springs, Ark.

Distributive Education classes attended the Leadership Development Institute workshop held at Rock Springs Ranch, November 14 through 16. The workshop involved the development of leadership.

In April, they attended a State Career Development Conference held in Wichita. The students competed with other Distributive Education students across the state in different areas of marketing and distribution. The nationals were held in June in Anaheim, California.

Distributive Education classes headed a fund raising event to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and later sold candy canes to raise money for the various trips they held throughout the year.

Rock-n-rollers enjoy concerts during meetings

Whenever popular rock bands appeared on television, Rock Club sponsor Jack Grieder, armed with a video-tape machine, would capture the essence of live music, bring it to school, and air it for club meetings.

Through the wonders of modern technology, groups like R.E.O. Speedwagon, Journey, and Little River Band were able to be present for meetings.

"A comfortable atmosphere where students could relax and listen to albums or see tapes contributed greatly to the club's success. There are a lot of musicians at North who enjoy hearing the success stories of today's most popular bands, because it gives us the incentive to work harder on our own music," said Shawn Carson, jr. "Ask any musician, and they'll tell you live music is better."

Relaxation is a key word here as Kelly Harrison, jr. is caught by suprise.

Skiers practice new techniques for the slopes

Although the Outdoor Activities Club sponsored no ski trip for the first time in years, they stayed interested by learning different styles and forms of skiing. They were visited by several store salesmen who demonstrated ski fashions, equipment, and technique, along with showing films of different skiing styles.

Through the sale of t-shirts bearing the club name, they were able to raise enough money to sponsor a two dollar night at the PRCA Prairie Circuit Finals, held at the Kansas Coliseum on October 18. A "North High Night" with the Wichita Wind was sponsored by the club on April 1, and cost only two dollars. Highlighting the halftime festivities was a broomball game between faculty members and students.

As club period got underway, members of the Outdoor Activities club waited patiently for instructions of the day.

New sponsor takes students to Madrid, Spain

Spanish Club welcomed Ms. Seastrum as their new sponsor. Membership dropped this year, having 52 members opposed to 84 members the previous year.

Second through fourth year students had the opportunity to take a trip to Madrid, Spain. This trip was a ten day trip taken during spring break in April. There they toured many of the famous land sites and old cathedrals.

German Club

A football game against French Club started the year's activities. The German Club used their male superiority in numbers to arrive at a 57-15 victory.

The most popular activity of the club was the sale of German candies, Toblerones, Kaisers, and the famous "Goo bears." All tantalized the taste buds of many students and faculty alike.

Club members tour the city of Dallas, Texas

French Club membership grew from 15 members to an astounding 60 members. The increasing number was attributed to the many activities planned by club sponsor Mrs. Shomaker.

To fund their many activities a car wash was held in September in Twin Lakes parking lot. They also sold M&M's and candy bars during the month of November.

A bike trip was planned in October which was called "La Tour de Wichita." They biked from Riverside Park to Sims Park, where they held a cook out. A skating party was held the next weekend. They used the new bike trail to skate on.

French Club also took part in the United Way's "Almost Anything Goes" assembly, where they placed fourth in the obstacle course. A trip to Dallas was planned during the first week in May.

Polaris staff begins year with Polaris Potpourri

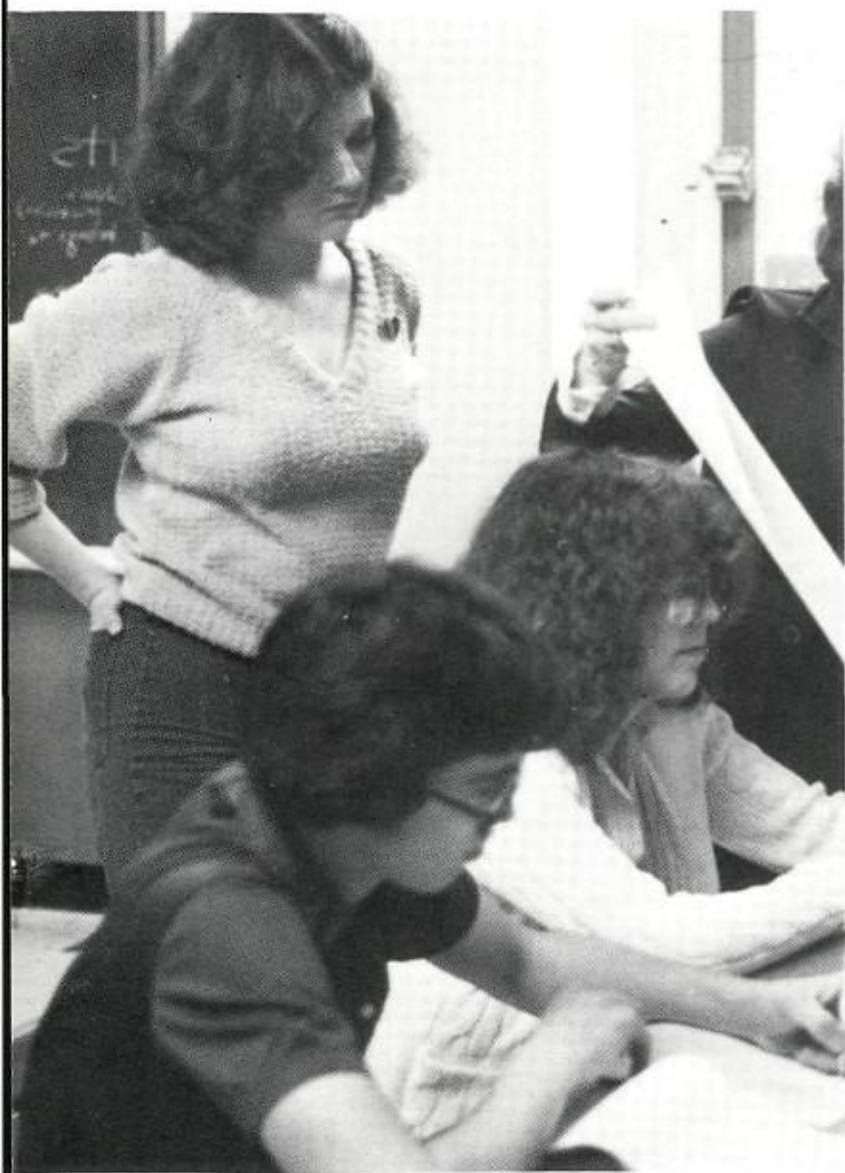

Beginning its twelfth year of publication, Polaris, under the incomparable leadership of Editor-in-Chief Joe Becker and advisor Olivia Jacobs, set out to produce the best Polaris publication yet.

The staff began the year by presenting a new "Polaris Potpourri" show. Under the direction of Joe Becker and starring a cast of Polaris staff members and students from the Drama Department, the show was put on December 19 and was shown every hour throughout the day.

The staff then began the job of reading and evaluating perplexing pieces of positively purposeful poetry and prose. Throughout the year, the staff accepted or rejected pieces of student literature. The final magazine was laden with prose, which made it one of the longest magazines in recent years.

College Bowl team takes third place

Becoming more active all the time, the National Honor Society really got moving.

First off, members of NHS gathered at Mr. Schmidt's house for a roof-raising party on November 8.

On May 19, forty-three new members were initiated into the National Honor Society. Students were offered membership on the qualifications of scholarship (3.5 cumulative grade point average), leadership, character, and service to North High School.

"To be offered membership in NHS is to be honored by the principal and faculty for having maintained the standard of academic excellence. These students should be proud of their achievement, and we are proud to recognize them for their hard work over the past three years," said Olivia Jacobs, sponsor.

Money raised by club for Thespian charter

In its first year of existence, the Drama Club provided a place where students interested in the theatre could get together. Meetings were often spent with members performing skits for each other or learning various aspects of drama. The members also sold candy bars to raise money.

This money went towards buying a charter in the Thespians, a national organization of people involved in the various areas of drama. Along with the charter, a separate membership fee was charged for each person who joins. This fee was also paid by the club from money that was raised through the candy sales. Membership in the organization is a good reference for those seeking a career in drama.

Political issues discussed in club periods

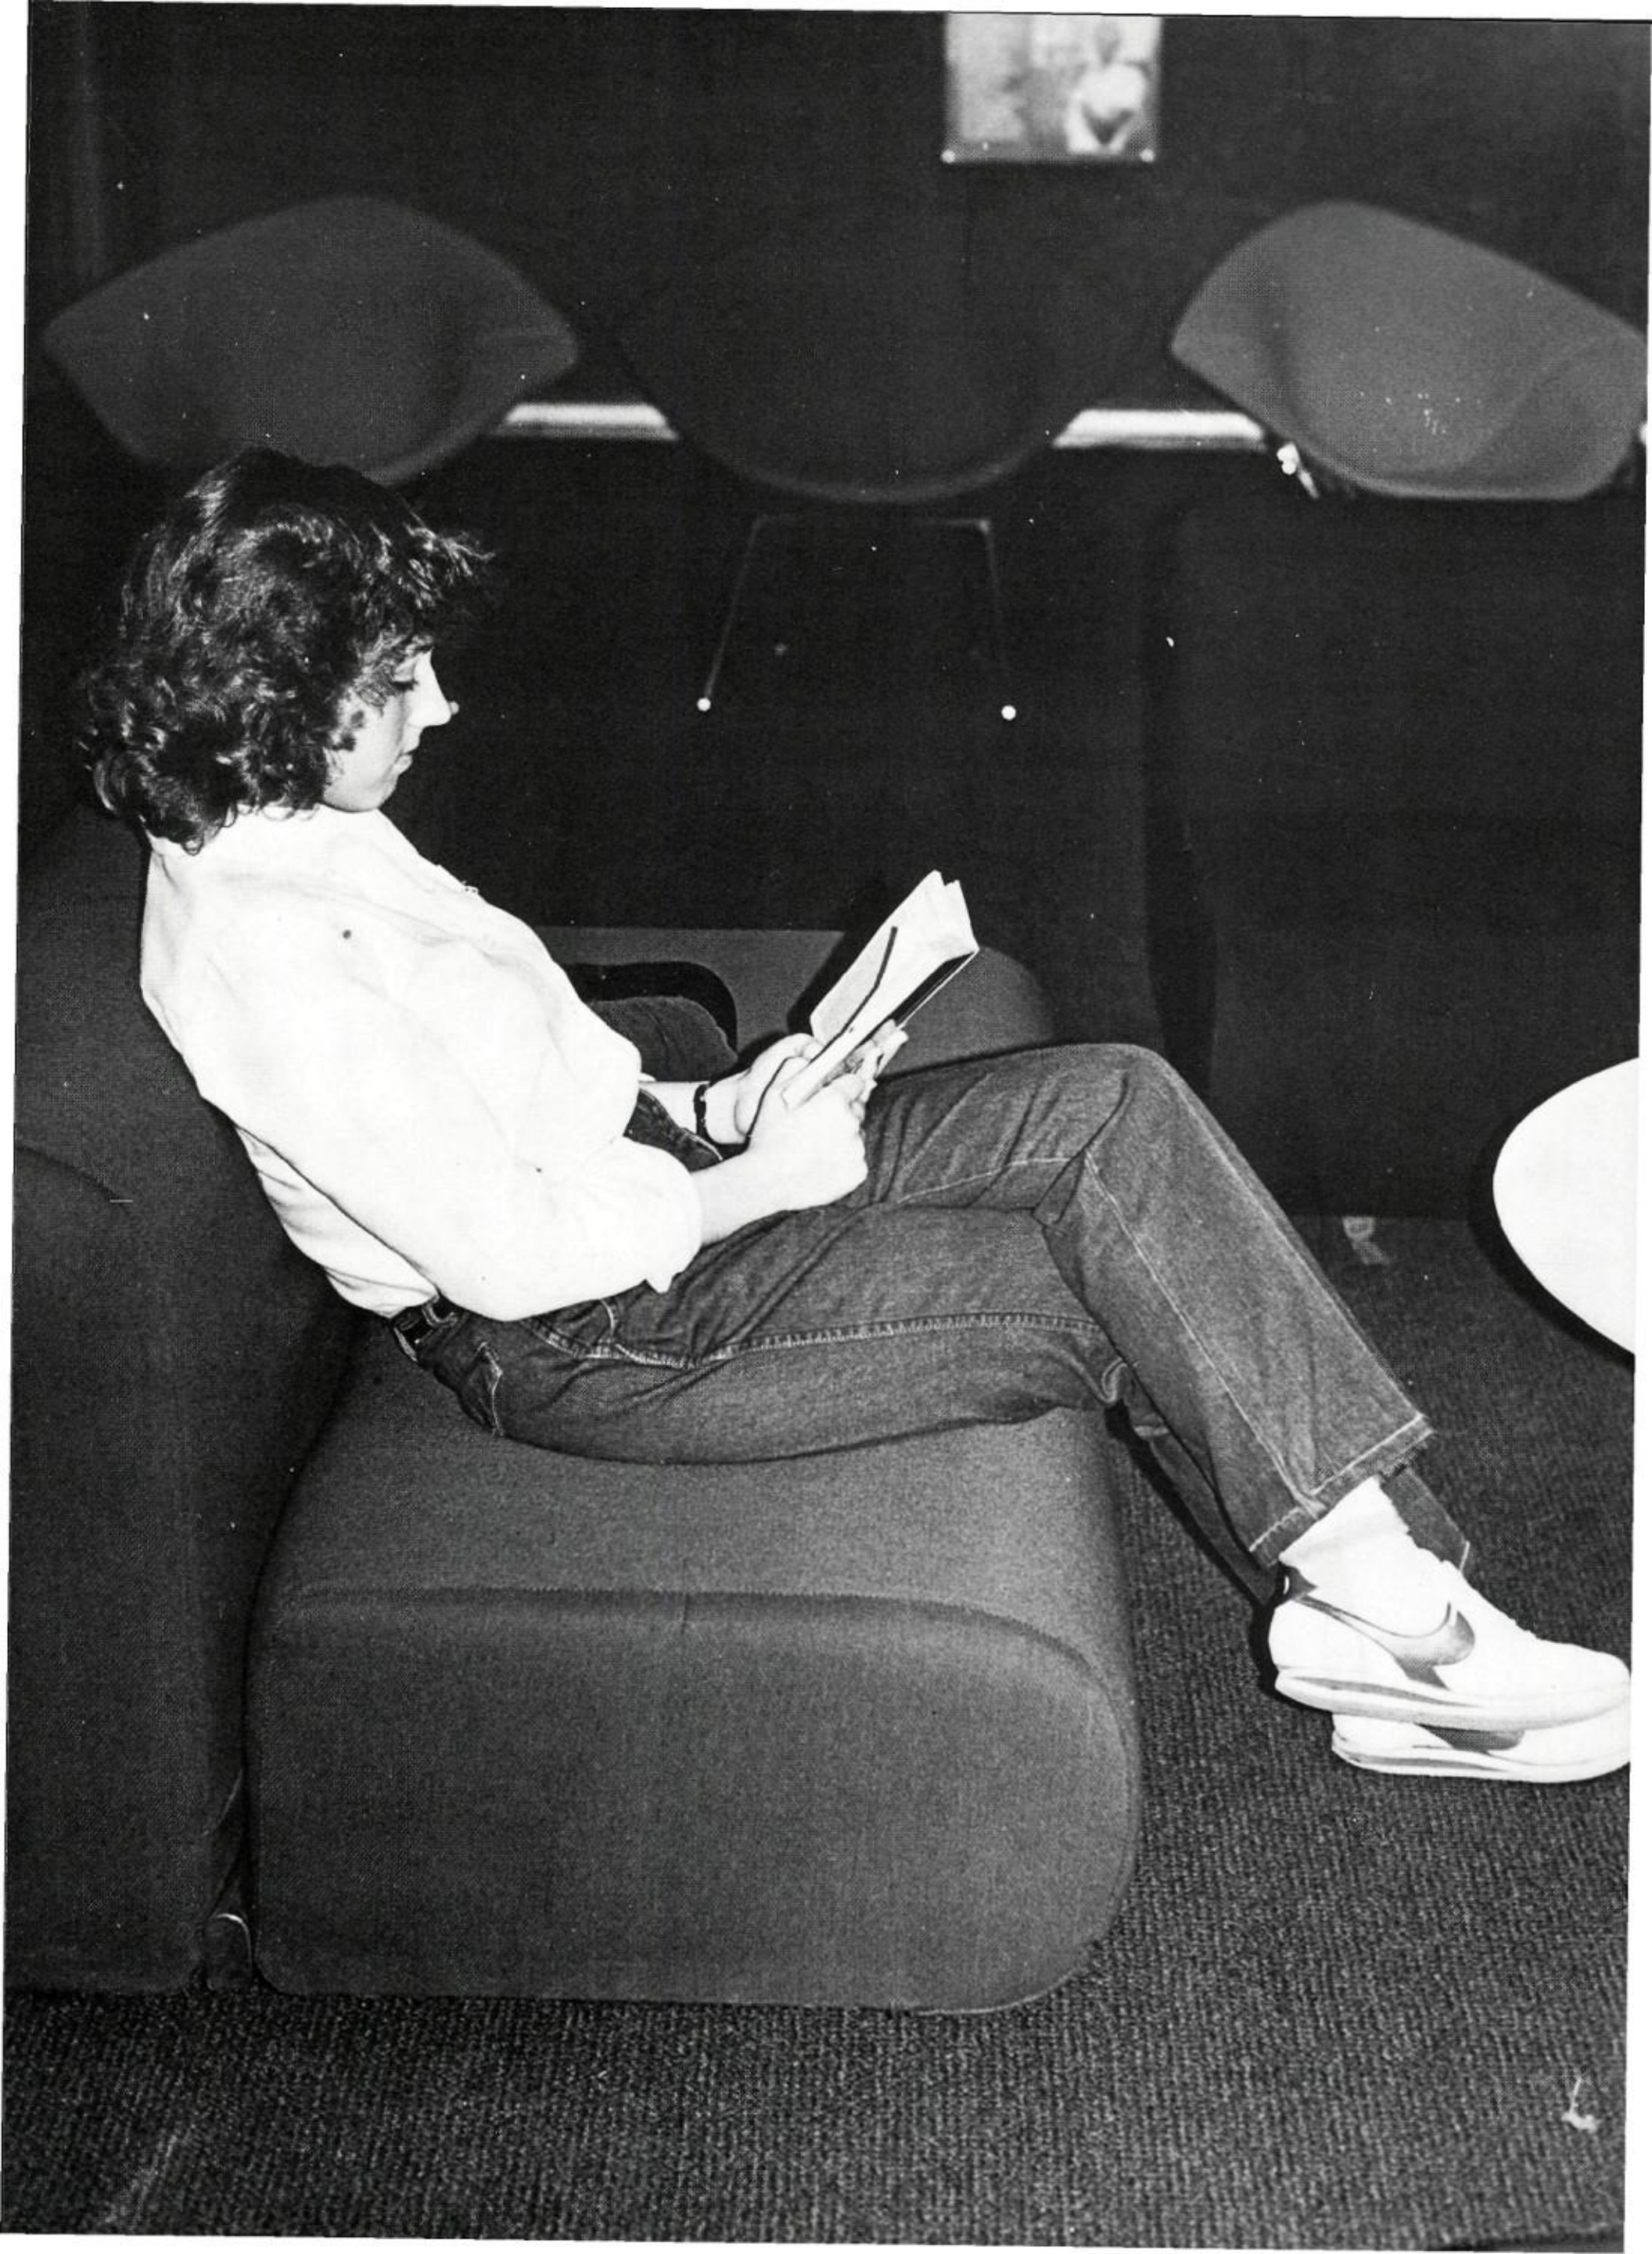

Political Science Club's seven members utilized their club periods to discuss various political issues that presented themselves throughout the year. With another presidential election facing Americans, this time was especially helpful in assessing the candidates.

In their first year of existence, club members ran the club themselves. Although sponsor Gerald Kinney was present at meetings he did not direct the sessions. The members brought up different questions, and the meetings simply flowed from there.

"I was glad to have the opportunity to know this interesting bunch of young people. We all learned together," added Kinney.

Board of Education decides to keep freshman project

Still in the experimental stage, the project of freshmen attending high school was continued another year. Freshmen involved in the program here were the only ones in the city attending high school, and the Board of Education assigned them here permanently.

Instead of the usual class officers, interested students formed a Freshman Council. Members of the council were Tim Brockman, John Cantrell, Tammy Cardona, Ben Dewey, Ginger Mendoza, Sally Miller, Michelle Moore, Fred Pankey, Annette Santiago, Jackie Smith, and Amanda Wilson. Assisting the council was the Ninth Grade Team, made up of teachers from each department and a counselor. The goal of the team was to make the student body aware of the freshmen and help them gain recognition.

Freshman class visits Vo-tech

North's entire freshmen class took two buses to the schools in order to get acquainted with the various courses offered and their usefulness in the "real world." A guide showed the class around to all the different buildings used for vo-tech at East High.

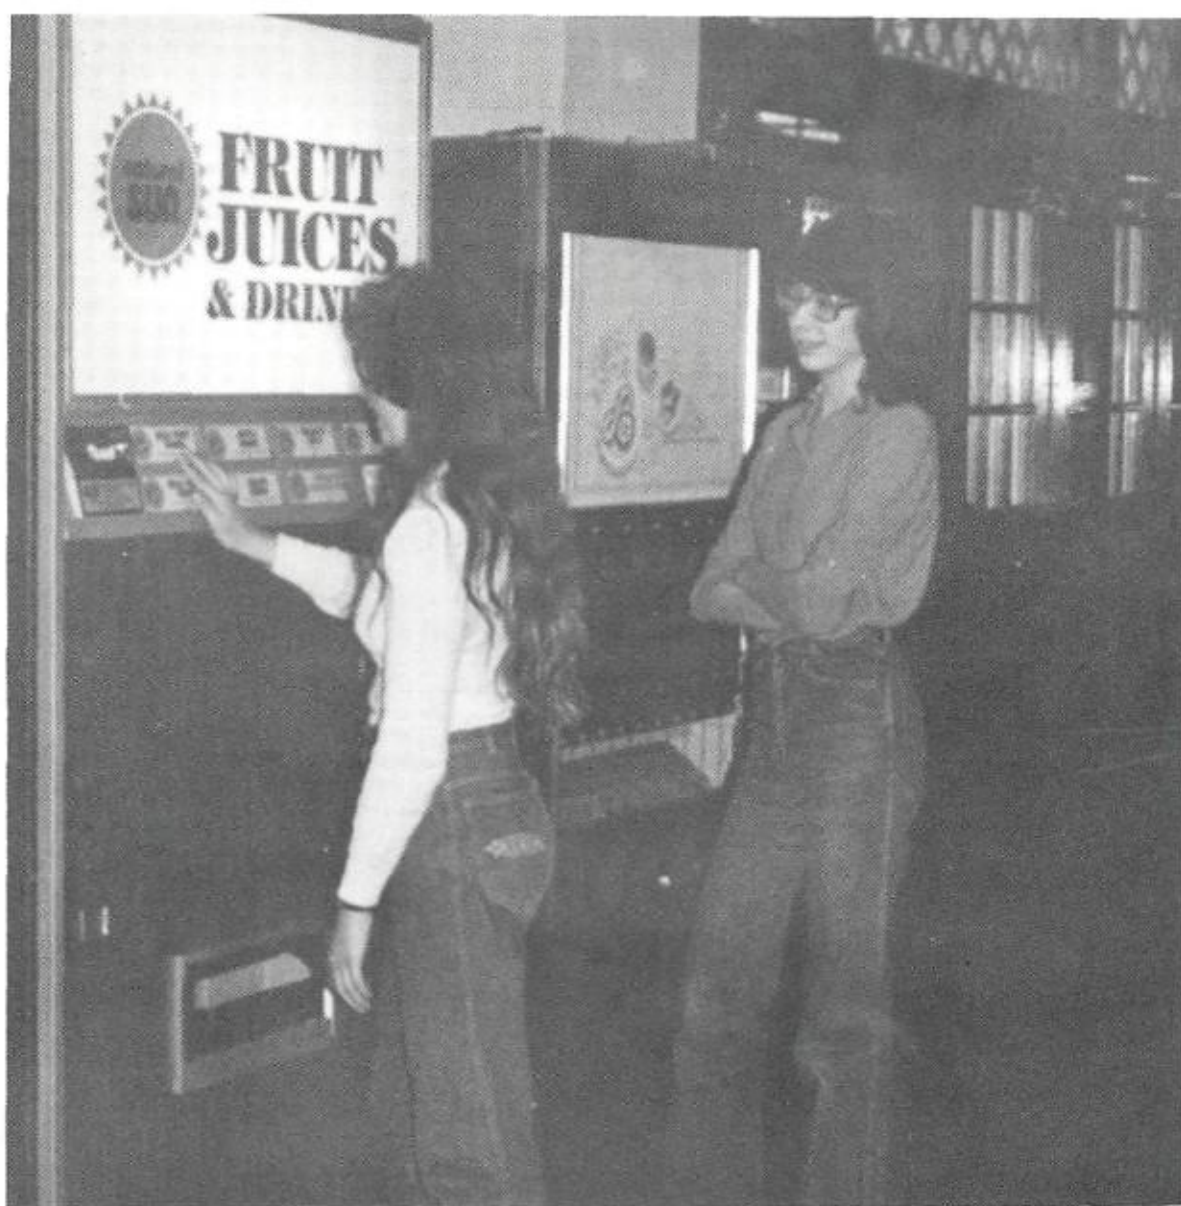

Auto mechanics, wood-working, electronics, sewing, welding, metals, plumbing, air conditioner and heater repair and a library in the main office where text books are kept and may be checked out for private use were all visited by the students.

Vo-tech provides opportunities for the future by teaching specific job skills. Anyone who has planned a career in any of the courses offered by vo-tech benefits greatly from obtaining the experience during high school.

After a long day, Khoa Coa, fr., leaves the distinguished halls of North High School and heads for home.

In between classes, Natalie Castro, fr., and Vera Johnson, fr., take a quick break at the juice machine.

Special assembly promotes spirit

Concentrating on money-making projects such as selling key rings and sponsoring a booth at the annual carnival, the sophomore class was able to raise enough funds to finance a skating party.

A special assembly for sophomores, designed to promote sophomore sports, was held in February. Instead of sitting in the stands, students lined the perimeter of the floor to get the feeling of actually being a part of the assembly.

Varsity and sophomore cheerleaders performed at the assembly, along with the letter girls and pep band. Coach Palmer introduced the sophomore basketball team, who came out and exhibited their roundball prowess.

During a special information section held as part of the assembly, Mr. Dwayne Schmidt talked about summer sports, pom pon tryouts, and the process of becoming a class officer.

Teresa VanWey devotes spare time to musical career

Sophomores found a variety of ways to stay active outside of school. One of the more unique examples of this is Teresa VanWey.

After five years of playing the violin, Teresa was recommended to James Cesar, the master violinist for the Wichita Symphony. She auditioned for him, and earned the right to be one of his few students.

In addition to playing in the school orchestra, Teresa was accepted into the Wichita Youth Symphony. Her place with the symphony was also obtained through an audition. She spends Saturday mornings practicing with the symphony, which meets from 9-12 at W.S.U.

Teresa's goals for the near future include traveling to New York, where she plans to attend the Julliard School of Music.

"I haven't decided yet on a specific career, just as long as it is something dealing with music," Teresa said. "Possibly performing, or even teaching music."

Playing the violin requires deep concentration and skill, as demonstrated by Teresa VanWey, soph., during an Orchestra rehearsal.

Officers plan Junior-Senior Prom

At the beginning of the school year, Junior class officers found themselves busy preparing decorations for spirit week. Officers Ian Jackson, president; Kim Gates, vice president; and Kristen Garrelts, secretary-treasurer; received a great deal of help from fellow juniors in the decorating of Junior hall, and received second place over all, losing only to the seniors.

During September the officers, with the help of class sponsors Ruth Muenchrath and Jack Grieder, selected the design of the Indian chief to be put on class rings. Plans were also made to provide waiters and waitresses for Senior Celebration.

The most important responsibility of the class officers was planning, decorating, and promoting the Junior-Senior prom with the help of Senior class officers. Picking a band, making reservations for a location, and selecting a theme occupied a lot of planning time. M&M candies were sold to raise money for the prom, thus lowering individual ticket prices.

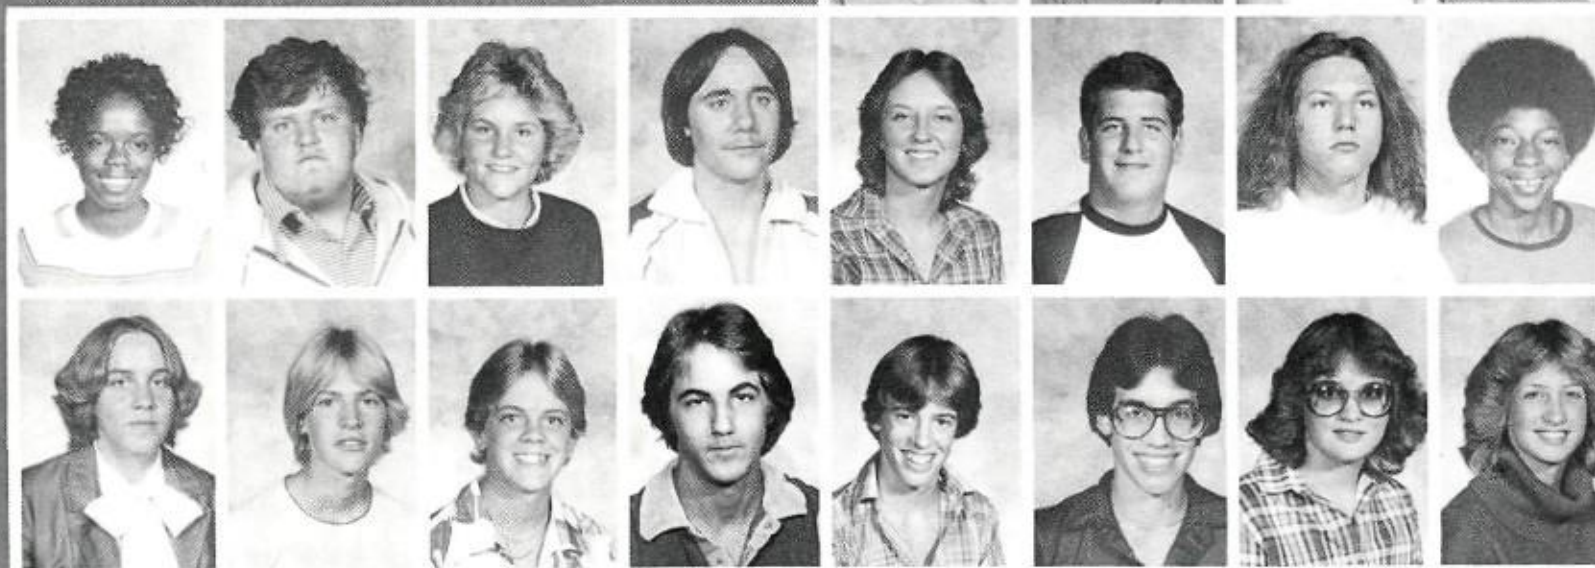

Throughout the year, junior participation ranked extremely high. This helped to create a school year which was both a great learning experience and a lot of fun.

Trying to prepare for Redskin Rhythms, Vendetta members Keith Arterberry, Deric East, Gil Smith, and Jon Opliger go through their set.

Rock provides musical release

With a bass, a couple of guitars, a drum set, and a place to play with very understanding (or deaf) parents, you have all you need to start your own band.

Said Deric East, jr., member of Vendetta, "I play in a band because it's a lot of fun. I really enjoy being a part of the band."

Most bands start off with some friends meeting together for a couple of hours of powerful rock. These types of bands come and go, but the more serious bands plan on continuing after high school and making a profession of music.

Comments Aaron Brown, jr., drummer of Chronicle, "I strongly desire creative, aesthetic and hopefully financial satisfaction from music, and I hope to better and enlighten the minds of many in this suffering world through the beauty of musical expression."

Class of
 '82

Before school, Carol Monical, jr., picks up her class ring from the Herff Jones representative.

Class officers plan Senior Celebration

As representatives of their class, senior officers had many decisions to make. Starting out by deciding which company should receive class ring orders, the officers determined which styles and options would be offered on the rings. They also decided which companies to award graduation announcements and cap and gown contracts to.

Senior officers started planning early in the year for Senior Celebration, which was held in March. They raised money by holding a September dance and by selling Senior Class T-shirts. To make Senior Celebration more informal and to encourage more people to attend, a Western Style theme was chosen.

The officers concluded the year by meeting with junior class officers to plan the Junior-Senior Prom held at the Campus Activity Center at Wichita State.

S-Section antics liven assemblies

"S-S-SEN, I-I-IOR, SEN-IOR, SENIORS!" This is one of the many cheers heard frequently at a pep assembly or a game that is attended by those notorious guys known as the S-Section. This 'organization' is made up of senior guys who wear T-shirts that say "S-Section."

The S-Section has many cheers and chants, but few are repeatable. These cheers are kept in books which the members call their "handbooks." The group is most known for the rather unique chants and crazy things they do at games and assemblies. Along with their T-shirts and chant books, the members also have nicknames which represent their personalities.

Even though some may feel the S-Section is too rowdy and their language is bad, others say that they are the most spirited group at North. As put by Mike Manis, sr., "A year without the S-Section would be a year without Red-skin spirit."

Waiting for their turn to participate in the "Almost Anything Goes" assembly, two unknown S-Section members watch the competition.

"Hi-yaah," says Jennie Vardaman, sr., when asked if she would demonstrate her martial arts technique. After four years of training at Roger Carpenter's Kansas Karate Institute, her success has led her to be elevated to a brown-belt. She is currently working on earning her black-belt, the highest rank in Karate.

Karate good for exercise, confidence

With all the violence in the city, many citizens have decided to learn something about how they can defend themselves, whether it be carrying a whistle or learning karate. Jennie Vardaman, sr., is one of these concerned citizens who has taken karate for five years. Besides helping to increase her self-confidence, karate is also good exercise.

Using her instructions from Roger Carpenter's Kansas Karate Institute, she has won fifty trophies in various competitions. Out of these trophies, sixteen were first-place awards. She is ranked number two out of the women in the nine-state region, and is tied for eighth in the nation. In her junior year of high school she taught kids from three to twelve years old the martial arts. She is presently working on completing her brown belt and will then work on becoming a black belt.

"If you've tried different sports and were disappointed, then karate might be what you were looking for all the time," said Vardaman. "It worked out for me!"

Academics

Students seeking help can rely on administration

Returning unaltered from the previous year, the administrative quartet had their work cut out for them. Dr. Paul Longhofer, principal; associate principal Mr. Don Olson, and assistant principals Mr. Mel Johnson and Mr. Terry Guidry, combined to head another school year.

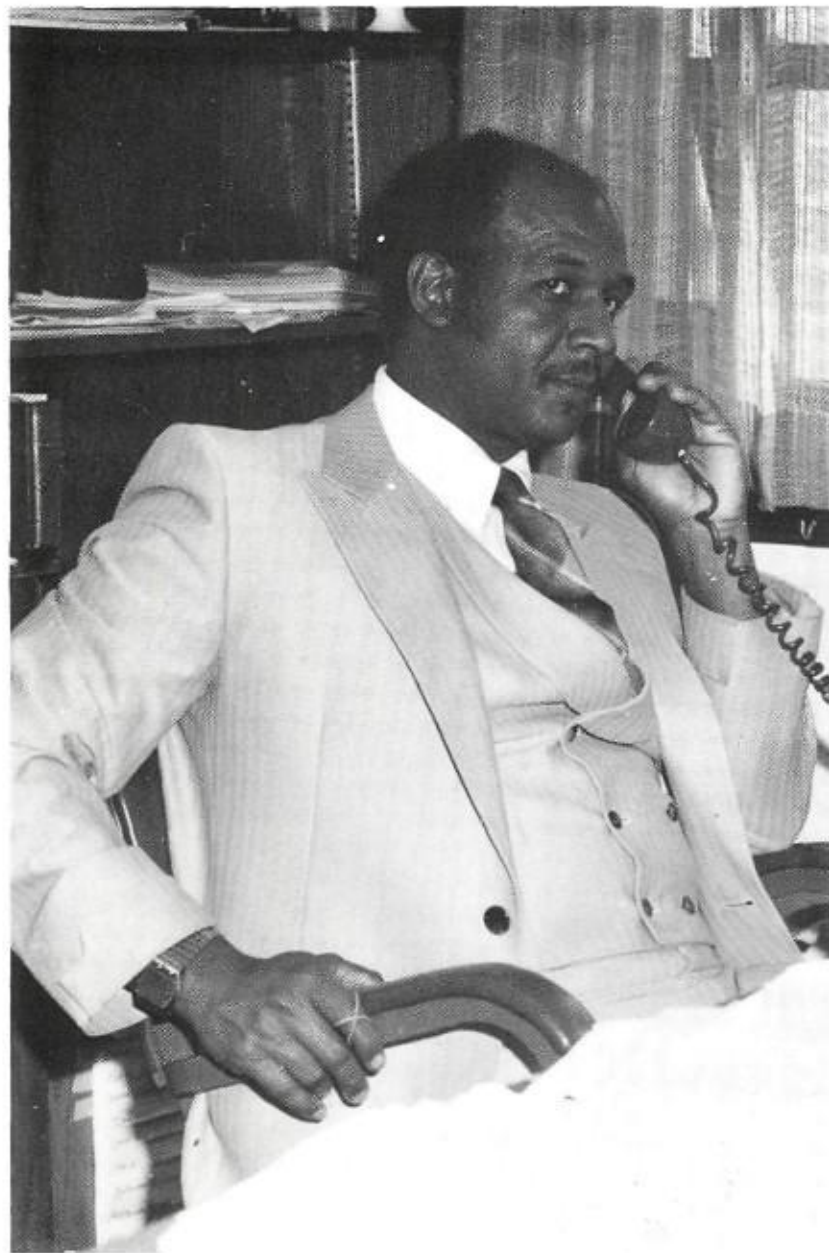

Dr. Longhofer, returning for his third year, coordinated the administrative department. He had his hands full with the North Central Evaluation. Used to determine funds for each school, the evaluation is held once every seven years. With a goal of completing the evaluation by Christmas, this put pressure on administrators and teachers alike.

Mr. Olson, in charge of schedule changes, made the task of shuffling 1400 students into their classes look easy.

Mr. Johnson, in charge of attendance, did his best to keep with the policy of no more than five percent absenteeism during the year. This attempt was aided by his move into the main office.

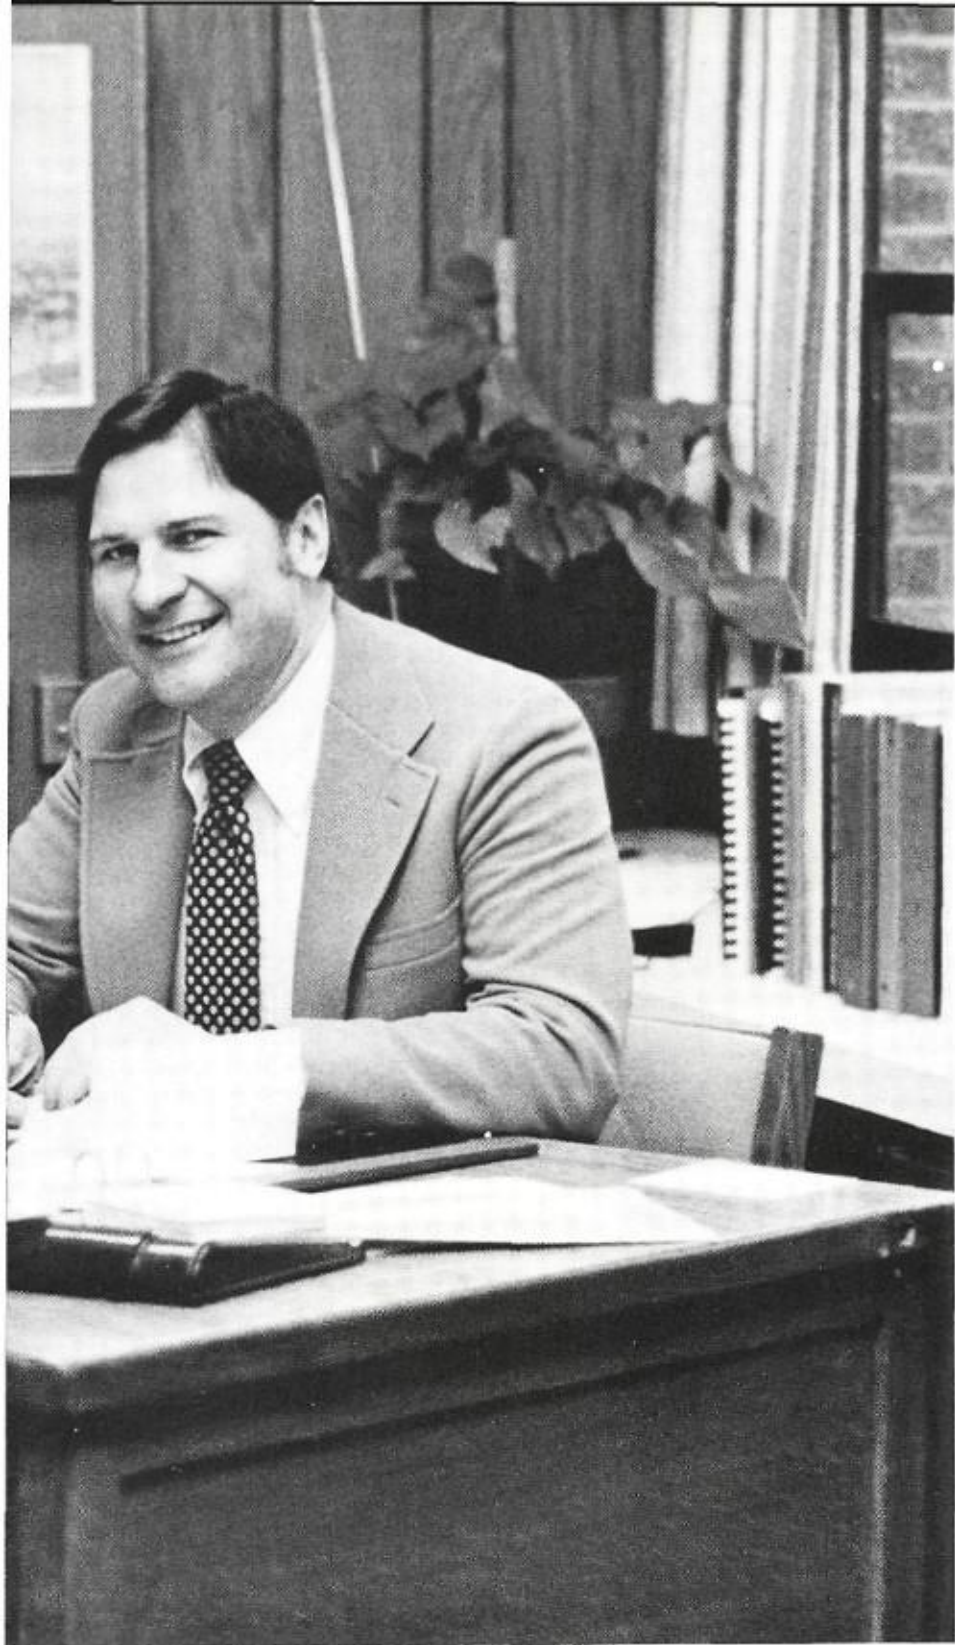

Once again, Mr. Guidry, in charge of planning activities, successfully organized a full schedule of events for the student body.

Sitting in the peace and quiet of his new office, Terry Guidry, Assistant Principal, spends some of his time on the phone ironing out students' problems.

With the help of proctor Mike Sullivan, jr., Associate Principal Don Olson looks over a student's attendance record, checking for absences.

Seated behind his desk, Dr. Paul Longhofer interrupts his letter to smile for the photographer.

Student data sheets come in handy for Mr. Olson when he is looking for a student

Former student teacher Mr. Franz talks with Dr. Longhofer about his teaching experiences.

Drama Dept. sets hectic pace throughout year

Only three weeks after school began, the Drama Department presented its first production, a melodrama, "The Drunkard." The performance was such a success that an encore performance was given later in the year.

Continuing on their hectic pace, students began rehearsals for their Halloween production of "Dracula." The use of special effects, such as mists of smoke to allow for Dracula's entrances and exits, were prevalent throughout the show.

At the same time, Drama's students were busy learning about pantomime, as well as learning about sound systems, make-up, and how they can be student directors.

"Guys and Dolls," the all-school musical, was the next major production. Combining acting skills with musical skills along with many long rehearsals made the production a success.

Drama teacher Kim Ledford discusses directing fundamentals with Darryl May, sr.

At rehearsals for "Dracula," Roger Hinkle, sr., puts feeling into his part.

Make-up is an essential part of theater work, as Angela Tomlinson, jr., discovers during her Drama class.

As the villain, Aaron Brown, jr., commits another dastardly deed in strangling Alicia Smith, jr., during the melodrama, "The Drunkard."

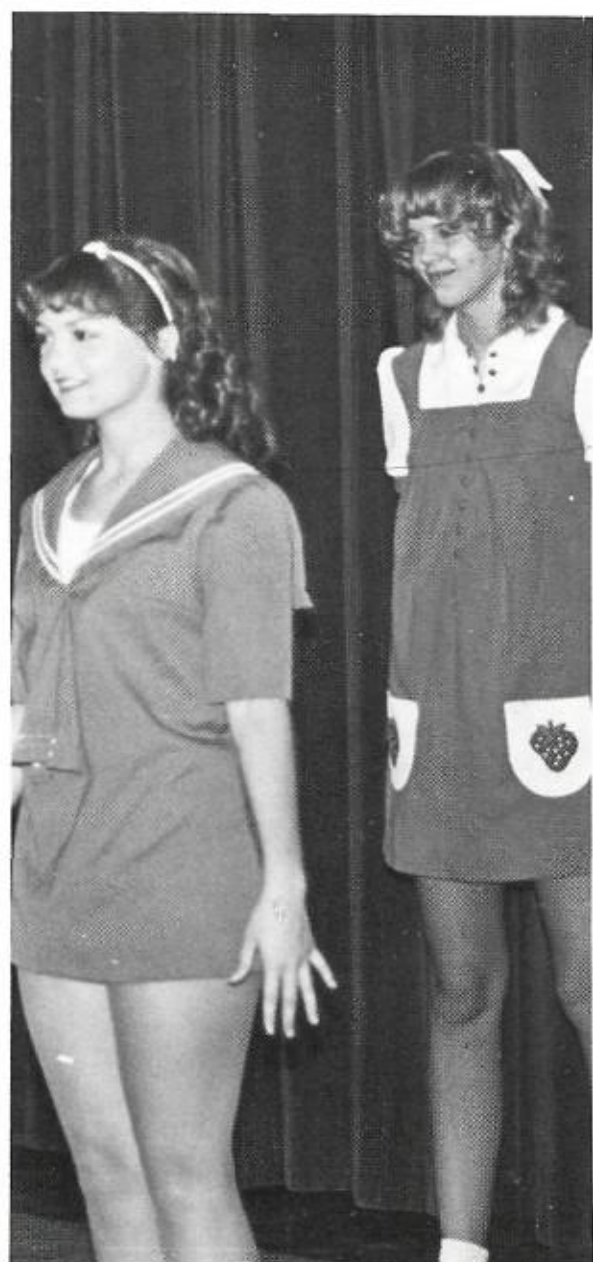

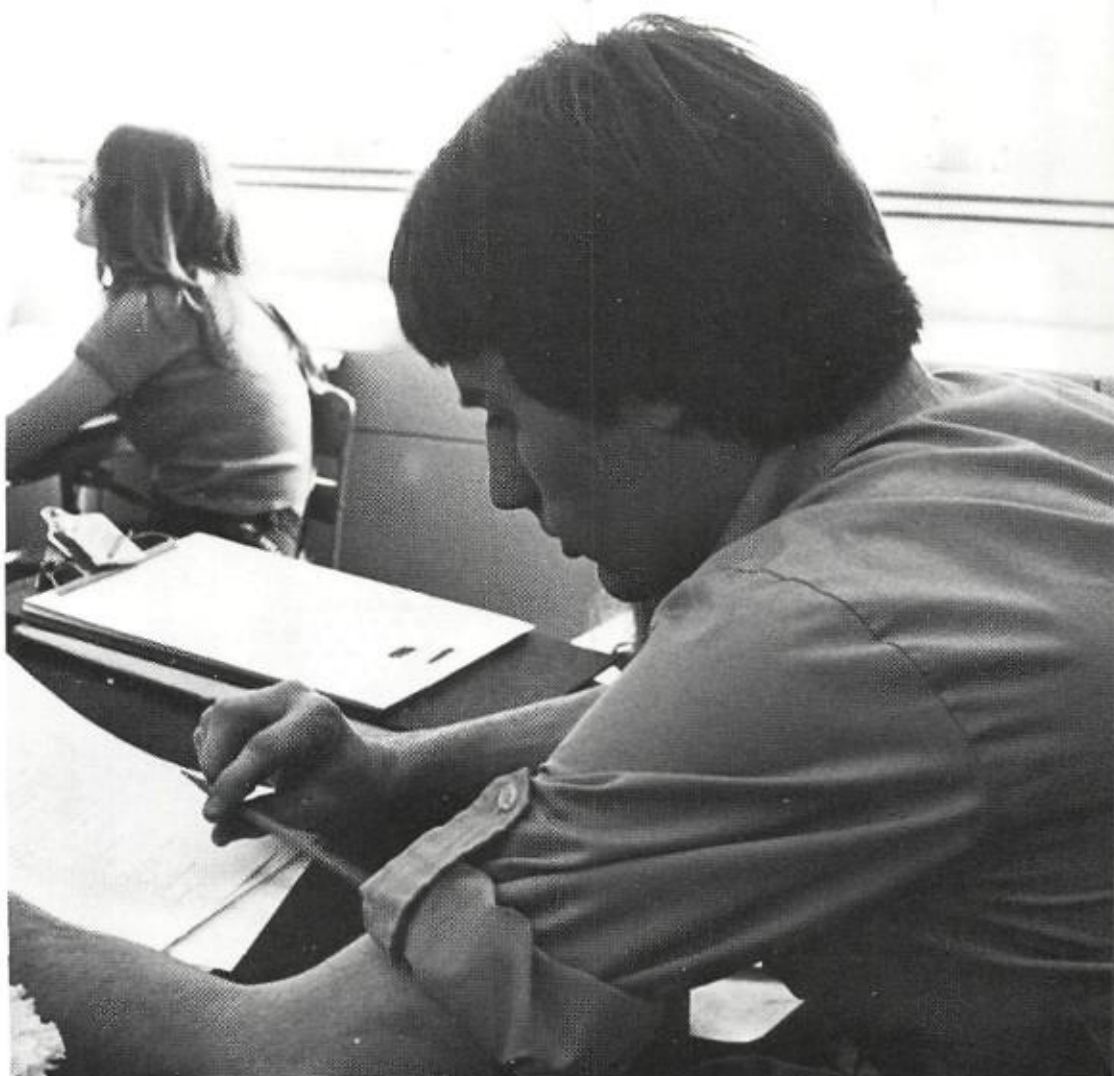

Rehearsals are a very important part of every production, as Jack Kitchen, jr., and Aaron Brown, jr., demonstrate.

Handouts on the technical aspects of drama are taken advantage of by Kirk Mardock jr.

When in doubt, students rely on counselor's office

Long lines were frequently observed outside the door of the Guidance Center during the opening weeks of school. As anxious fingernail biters scoured through enrollment material, counselors could be seen running throughout the school, trying to work out compromising schedules for students and faculty alike.

As the year progressed, students became more interested in higher education. The first A.C.T. exam was held in October for college-bound seniors. The counselors also spent time discussing financial aid for these students.

In spite of the shortage of jobs for high school students, the counselors were able to help students find part-time work. Another aspect of the occupational assistance program is the Career Lab. Sophomores spend two weeks out of their English class becoming aware of various career alternatives.

North's Guidance Center offered a wide range of services to parents as well as students. Counselors attempted to establish definite goals for pupils to strive for, while evaluating the students' interests, aptitude, and abilities.

Attentively listening to a student's concerns, Mr. Jack Grieder gives wise counsel that will be put to good use.

During Homecoming Week, counselor Sharon Hartsel discusses the upcoming activities with a student.

After gathering everything together for a student's recommendation for a scholarship, Head Counselor Bob Wright stops before signing his name.

Before the day begins, Audio Visual Director Ralph Jimenez and Head Librarian Wilma McLean discuss the activities scheduled in the library.

As occupational specialist, Mr. Wayne Casey informs students about the different jobs available in the world today.

Waiting for his next student, counselor Tommie Williams relaxes between visits.

Students discover quiet atmosphere in library helpful

Like a criminal fleeing to the sanctuary of a church, students retreated to the library to seek the peace and quiet needed for intense studying or research. The reference room was especially helpful in researching practically any topic. Visual aides, such as microfilm and video tapes were available, as well as news clippings, magazines, pamphlets, numerous encyclopedias, and many other research aides. These provided good sources and saved time when writing themes or term papers.

Changes in the library staff included the promotion of Mrs. Wilma McLean from assistant to head librarian, and the addition of audio-visual aides director Ralph Jimenez. After 14 years of working at West High, Mr. Jimenez transferred to North.

North was chosen as the recipient of two new books, entitled "Eisenhower Declassified" and "Walk Across America." These books were provided by the Sedgewick County Republican Womens' Club, who have chosen a different school each year to receive such gifts.

Art students display works in spring art shows

Art students had a chance to show their work in two different art shows throughout the year. Alicia Shaw, jr., had a ceramic sculpture in the Scholastic Art Show held at the main library during February. Each teacher was allowed to pick five pieces from their classes to display in a Spring show which was at the museum.

Students were kept busy in all of the art classes. Silversmithing students made projects varying from jewelry to snuff-boxes. Ceramics classes learned how to successfully use a potter's wheel, and crafts classes experimented with doll-making and latch hook rugs. Commercial design classes learned aspects of drawing commercial ads.

"Art has been a challenging experience this year. It has allowed me the freedom to create new ideas and try different mediums," said Sara Sater, soph.

With a determined effort, Sara Sater, soph., takes her piece of clay and shapes it into a ceramic bowl.

Accuracy is an important factor as Darryl Cavender, jr., designs his belt buckle for the Silversmithing class.

Career fields in business taught in dept.

Whether planning a career in business, or simply trying to improve one's clerical skills, North High's Business Department offered a well-rounded curriculum for any student.

Typing class prepared students for a secretarial position, as well as knowing how to write in Shorthand. If Shorthand seemed too confusing, then Stenoscript, another type of abbreviated note-taking, was also offered.

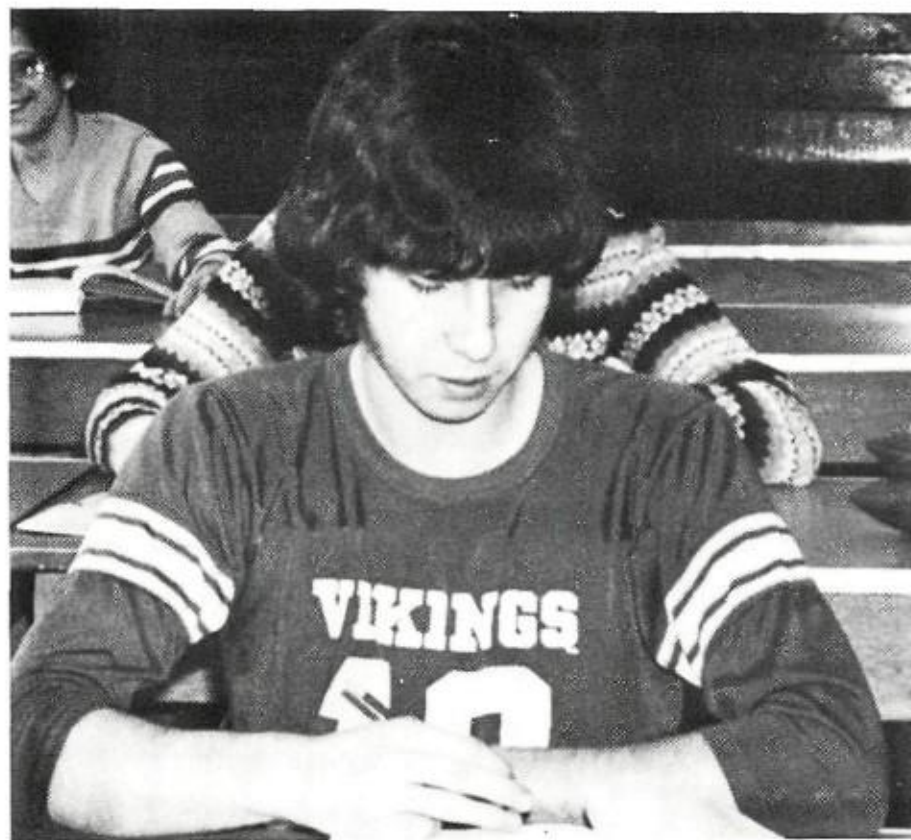

A class that everyone could appreciate later in life was Personal Finance. With the help of this course, students kept from getting overdrawn at the bank, or in for a tax audit, as these and other facets of finance were taught.

Business Law supplied students with the legal background needed to make decisive business decisions. Students learned how to do things like write simple business contracts, and keep accurate files on their transactions.

While concentrating on not watching his fingers, Cameron Prichard, soph., practices his typing lesson

Answers can be found easier with the help of adding machines, which Philip Fleming, jr., and Glen Etter, soph., take full advantage of.

Personal Finances class involves studying from textbooks, and Troy Grigsby, sr., catches up on his required reading.

Computers aid in shortening amount of work

Enabling more students to work in the Computer Room at one time, the Mathematics Department obtained a new deck printer. The Computer Room continued to be serviced by both the H.P. and the RSTS/E systems. While they were mostly used by Computer Algebra students, various teachers also took advantage of the computers to check tests and keep track of students' grades.

A special algebra class was added to the curriculum. Taught by Mr. Hays, the course was designed for Vietnamese students.

Students entered a variety of contests throughout the school year. The team of Ron Moore, Jarrel Crider, and Barry O'Melia took third place at the Math College Bowl at W.S.U. Several also attended a contest in Pittsburg during April.

Home Economics classes sponsor 'Third Floor Store'

Home Ec teachers offered students a number of different classes dealing with sewing, cooking, and other domestic arts. Problems facing the young people of today were also covered.

Sewing classes spent the first semester working on items to be sold at their 'Third Floor Store,' open to the school in early December. Meanwhile, cooking classes were busy providing snacks for school pow-wows and a teacher buffet.

Students enrolled in Single Survival covered a variety of subjects during the year, including cooking, income tax, insurance, and how to buy a car.

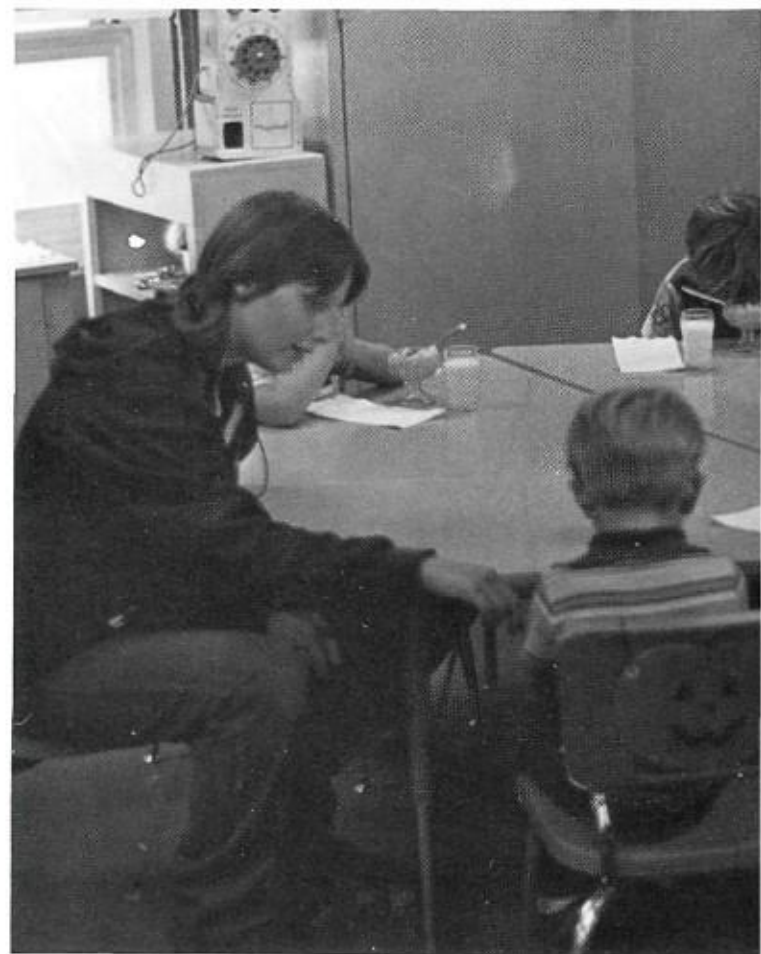

Problems with drugs were covered in the Home and Family classes, and learning to cope with the needs of children was the main objective of the Child Day Care classes. By holding a nursery school, students gained experience by dealing directly with young children.

Industrial Arts adds photography to curriculum

Through a wide variety of classes, the Industrial Arts Department provided many ways for students to demonstrate their creativity in the classroom.

A new addition to the department was the photography classes taught by Mr. Brunner. In these classes, prospective photographers learned how to take pictures, developed the film, and make prints of the pictures they shot.

Students in Woods classes used various equipment to make practical items, including bookcases, chests, tables, and other useful items.

Auto Mechanics classes obtained first hand knowledge of cars while gaining experience by working on cars belonging to students and teachers.

Students in the Advanced Graphic Arts classes found a way to help others, as well. Along with working with photography and silk screening T-shirts and posters, they found time to print programs for various school events.

New class gives students a chance to become creative

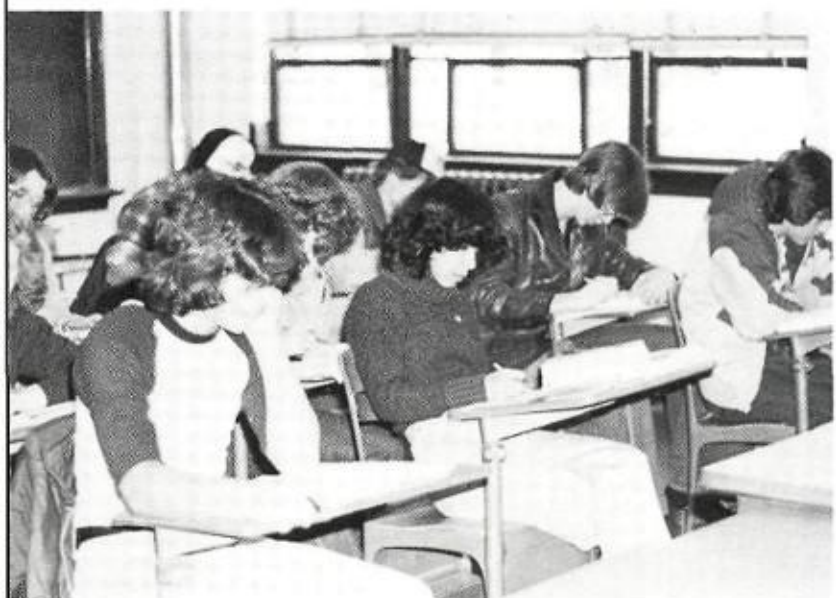

Writing a script for a one-act play, a childrens' story, an autobiography, and poetry are but a few of the projects that Creative Writing students completed during a one semester course. Creative Writing, the only new class added to the Language Arts Department, was designed and taught by Mrs. Olivia Jacobs.

Out of the students who participated in the Language Arts Olympics held in Emporia, Sheldon Vogt and Laura Smith received honorable mention.

Mrs. Barbara Mohny, coordinator of the department, purchased over 100 video tapes which were used in the library as visual aides.

In addition to the regular English classes, a program was developed to help limited English-speaking students learn the language. E.S.L. (English as a Second Language) was taught by Ms. Roxanne Juarez, with the assistance of Vanessa Banh, a bi-lingual aide.

Annie Appling, sr., watches intently as Mrs. Jacobs critiques her poetry in Creative Writing.

Instead of reading his Spanish assignment, Kevin Wilson, jr., works cunningly on his computer program behind the teacher's back.

Racking her brain, Kathy Mills, soph., tries to find the correct answers on her German test.

Foreign Language students enjoy related activities

Two new Spanish teachers, Irene Seastrum and Donna Merchant, were added to the Foreign Language Department. During November, the Concorso, a Spanish Language contest, was held at W.S.U. The contest included singing, dancing, and reciting poems and stories.

In December, Mrs. Crawford and her Latin students began their Christmas projects. Students made Latin wreaths, ceramics, and leather belts. They also made Latin cakes which were displayed in the library window during the Christmas season, and set aside days on which they prepared such Latin dishes as spaghetti and misticcolli.

French classes were taught by Mrs. Shoemaker. Her classes learned French games such as Voila, which is similar to bingo, and French Christmas carols. French classes also held culture days on which they prepared crepes.

New teacher puts Debate on right track

Debators got started on the right foot when Jane Cepeda, sr., and Nathan Ebersole, jr., took first out of forty-six teams at the Southwestern College high school debate tournament in Winfield.

Later in the year, the team hosted a tournament for surrounding high schools. In order to earn money for the trophies awarded to winners, they sold several hundred dollars worth of candy.

A variety of new things played an important part in the season. One important factor was Mrs. Linda Douglas, who initiated the opportunity to earn a letter for participating in debate.

"Debate provided us with an opportunity to meet interesting people, gave us invaluable experience that will help us in college, and was a lot of fun," said seniors Jane Hartley and Jane Cepeda.

Working on tournament material, Andy Holzrichter, sr., studies as Bob Langhofer, jr., takes a break.

Contemplation is an important factor in debating as Jane Cepeda, sr., demonstrates while thinking through her evidence.

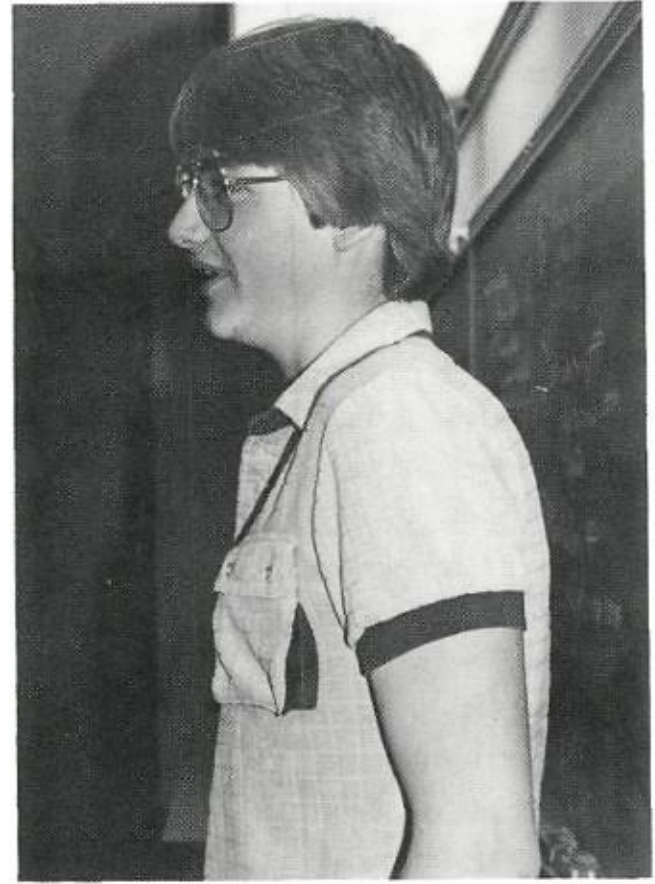

Busily studying a poem for a Forensics tournament, Jackie Anderson, soph., works on memorization.

Preparing for the approaching Student Congress session, Jane Cepeda and Jane Hartley, sr., review proposed legislation.

Forensics team successful in tournaments

To start the season off, the Forensics team traveled to Derby where Bob Langhofer captured a sixth place in oration and Joe Becker captured a third in humorous interpretation. Then traveling to El Dorado, Jackie Anderson took sixth place in poetry.

Keeping up with their successful beginning, Nathan Ebersole took fifth in informative speech, Jane Hartley took sixth in prose, and David Craddock and Joe Becker took sixth in duet acting at the Great Bend Tournament.

At their last tournament, Andre Stroughter captured their only first place award for his dramatic interpretation.

After the season ended, Forensics students also spent a lot of time preparing for and participating in the Student Congress. Each school sent selected students as representatives to participate in the Student Congress, where they proposed legislation about controversial issues and debated over them, deciding whether to pass or defeat them.

North Star's April 1 edition fools students

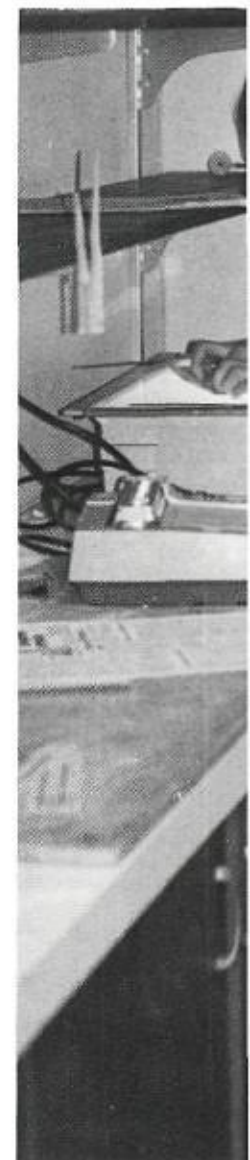

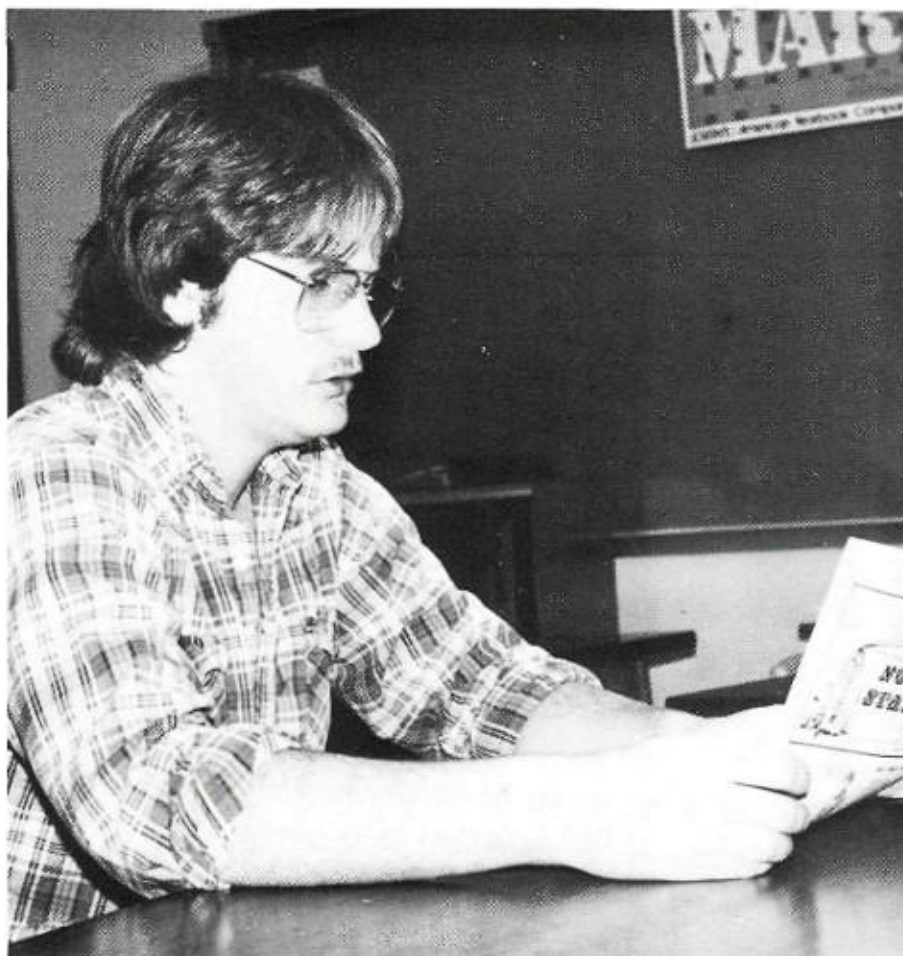

For the first time in a number of years, the diligent North Star staff published an issue every two weeks, in addition to two Smoke Signal parent newsletters and a special treat issue for the students on April Fool's Day, which was meant only for its entertainment value.

At the Kansas State Press Association and Regional Journalism Contest held at Wichita State University on February 13, two students qualified for the March 28 state contest at KU. Darin Pruitt placed third in both headline writing and page make-up, while Sandy Ballinger placed third in feature writing. At the state contest, Pruitt took second in page make-up and third in headlines.

"This was my third year, and we've never had such a hard-working group. I'm sure next year will be another good year," said Kelly Harrison, jr.

Co-editor Shawn Carson, jr., works on pasting up the front page of the newspaper.

While looking through the latest edition of the Star, Tim Filby, sr., looks for any typographical errors.

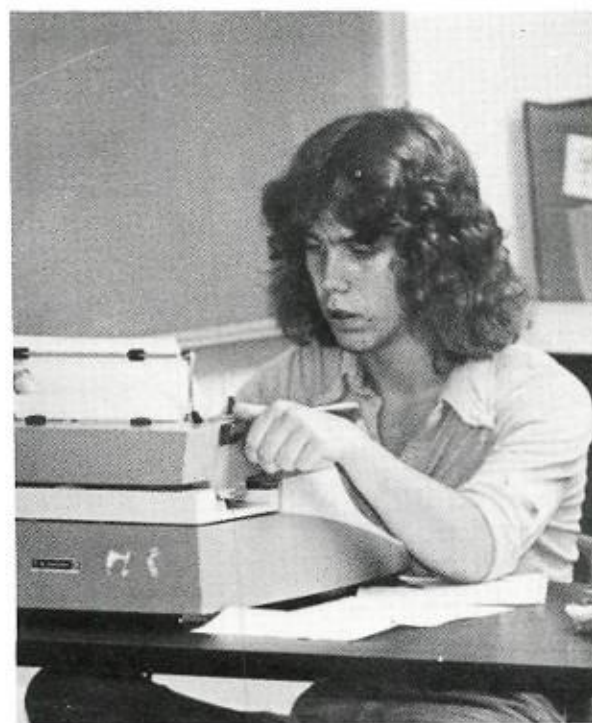

Filling out his grade evaluation sheet for a staff member, North Star co-editor Chris Leslie, jr., judges the job that was done.

Typesetter Thumper Vant Leven, jr., edits a feature story on the compugraphic for the next newspaper deadline.

Tower staff sends eight to State contest

By meeting all of their production deadlines, the TOWER staff was able to distribute the yearbook to students in the middle of August. "In search of new horizons" was the theme incorporated into the TOWER.

At the Kansas Scholastic Press Association regional and state contests, annual events held for all high school journalism students, the staff placed in more events than any other 6A school. TOWER editor Lisa Toledo placed second in layout of a double-page spread, and Gil Smith won firsts in both copy and cutline writing. In theme development, Laurie Janzing placed second, and Kevin Sheck took third. Willena Brewer won third in layout of a double-page spread, David Bullinger placed second in cutline writing, and Shawn Carson won second in copy writing. The regional contest was held at Wichita State University on February 13.

At the state contest, held at Kansas University on March 27, the staff placed in only two events. Willena Brewer won third in layout, and Gil Smith placed third in cutlines.

Because of the growing interest in mixed ensembles, a new group, Music Theatre, was once again included in the vocal music department after not being offered for several years. Along with the new class was the start of a new tradition, the Winter Cabaret, which was a dinner theatre type program held in January.

Madrigals and Nocturnes were also kept busy throughout the year. In addition to their traditional concerts, they sang at nursing homes and churches. Both ensembles performed on KAKE Kaleidoscope while the Madrigals also sang on the show P.M. Magazine and the KAKE Television Christmas special.

All three groups were responsible for putting on the 3 for $1 shows, the Masterworks Concert, and the Spring Concert. All ensembles also competed at the City Contest in March.

Music Theatre - Row 1: J. Jimenez, M. Stuart, M. Clay, S. Nispel, D. Carlton; Row 2: S. Kelly, A. Stroughter, N. Ebersole, A. Puckett; Row 3: K. Busey, C. Atchison, M. Lauer, K. Duty, J. Dary, R. Redd, C. Blackwell; Row 4: D. Craddock, S. Cherry, D. Hadorn, Mark Clark, Instructor.

Drama skills are a must for Music Theater members as Joe Becker, sr., demonstrates.

Practicing for the Music Theatre's "Winter Cabaret," Miriam Stuart, jr., strives for perfection.

Nocturnes, Diane Carlton, jr., and Teresa Cooley, jr., rehearse a song for an upcoming concert.

With the Nocturnes' help, Kathy Ellis, soph., performs a solo at the "3 for $1."

Madrigals - Row 1: D. Wilbur, G. Smith, K. Busey, M. George, J. Dary, Mark Clark, Instructor; Row 2: J. Becker, S. Meyers, M. Ranich, A. Friedel, K. Dvorak; Row 3 M. Leichner, J. Siler, C. McCord, C. Curtis, L. Smetana, J. Moore, S. Voght.

Participating in a number of different school events, the Madrigals perform a song during the International Gala.

Vocalists tour Southern states doing concerts

Touring through Oklahoma and Texas was the highlight of the year for the Vocal Music Department. Leaving school on February 13, the group, which included 66 students, performed at three high schools, two churches, and one retirement home during their five day tour.

Other activities included a concert presented by the Concert Chorale in February and a Fall Concert which was presented in October at Pleasant Valley Jr. High Auditorium. The Madrigals, Ensemble, Nocturnes, Mixed Choir, Music Theatre, and the Concert Chorales supplied the entertainment. A Christmas dinner and concert was held on December 18 in the cafeteria. All groups involved in the department made performances throughout the evening.

"It was a very exciting and fast paced year as a whole. There was always an abundance of things to do, and we kept very busy," commented Joe Becker, sr.

Soloist, Kathy Ellis, soph. displays her talent as she performs a selection during a Suburban cowgirl presentation.

During dress rehearsal, Cindy Atchinson, sr., and Jeff Dary, jr., concentrate on staying in the right key.

Concert Chorale - Row 1: R. Redd, G. Smith, D. Carlton, M. George, P. Soper, S. Nispel, T. Cooley, G. Etter, K. Dvorak, D. Craddock, A. Tomlinson, J. Dary, J. Becker, J. Furry, J. Smith, C. Clay, J. Siler, T. Rolfe, J. Moore, B. Schock, J. Braun, M. Porter, L. Patterson, K. Phelps, J. Dwyer, C. McCord, L. Rausch, M. Clark, director.

Mixed Chorus - Row 1: S. Fraley, S. Gutierrez, S. Romero, B. Amos, L. Beham, V. Johnson, J. Welch, M. Cole, C. Prichard, R. Pogue, D. Runyan, K. Clark, C. Shugart, K. Willis, D. Wiedeman, P. McCartney, J. Johnson, D. Tice; Row 2: M. Fry, C. Bussart, W. Thome, D. Hein, S. Mercer, M. Skelton, N. Tracy, K. Grier, A. Jackson, B. Stevenson, R. Patterson, J. Botkin, T. Stegman, M. Shortt, B. Burwell, J. Douglas, W. Ross, S. Walker; Row 3: R. Benninger, C. Barber, R. Bolinger, K. Giles, A. Duncan, S. Crider, G. Seward, B. Turley, R. LaRoe, B. Sweat, E. Herrera, C. Baker, D. Wade, D. Evers, V. Baker, L. Nealy, S. Woods, M. Clark, director.

Background vocals are very important as these four girls harmonize together during their "3 for 1" performance.

With all eyes upon Mark Clark, vocal music instructor, the Concert Chorale performs at Pleasant Valley Junior High during their "Sounds of Autumn" concert.

Orchestra stays busy performing throughout year

Performing in six concerts, including a special combined concert at Northwest, kept the orchestra busy throughout the year. At the combined concert, the orchestra joined together with the orchestras from Northwest and Heights. The combined ensemble was directed by Wichita Symphony conductor Michael Palmer.

Meeting Mondays during the first semester, the Jazz Combo got together from seven to eight in the morning. Under the direction of Mr. Richard Gardner, the combo held a concert on December 15. The Concert Band was also conducted by Mr. Gardner, and had a concert in the fall and in the spring.

In March, students from all three classes participated in the City Festival. Many students did well enough in the city contest to qualify for the State Music Festival, held on April 3.

Orchestra - Row 1: Collette Ayres, Deana Tice, Becky McCarty, Kristi Clark, Lovetta Knight, Jonathon Furry, Jana Sorrell, Lisa Paulk; Row 2: Curtis Owen, Pam Giles, Jeff Kowing, Sonya Ramsey, Teresa VanWey, Ron Rackham, Reggie Love, Greg Donaldson, Cary Bruce, Julie Loveland.

In Orchestra class, Becky Waddell, soph., concentrates on keeping the sound of her oboe clear.

Playing a persistent bass line, Greg Donaldson, soph., keeps the rhythm going during Orchestra rehearsal.

While reading her music, Kristi Clark, soph., contributes her talents on the violin.

By utilizing his sheet music, Ross Baty, sr., concentrates on staying in time.

The string section practices a song before an upcoming Northwest concert.

Trombone player Loren White, jr., accompanies the others while they do a selection.

Early morning practices send band 'on it's way'

A traditional part of every football game, be it high school, college, or pro, is marching bands, and the Redskin marching band is no exception. During halftime they performed a show of their own directed by drum majors Sondra Sumpter, sr., and Jeff Dary, jr. The pom pon girls and flag squad added color to the band as they did their precision routines. The band worked closely with these two groups throughout the football season.

Often throughout the season the band was on the practice field by 7 a.m. Even though ratings were low at the W.S.U. Band Day on October 8, Director Richard Gardner felt the band was well on its way.

To raise money for new equipment, the marching band held their third annual fruit sale, topping last year's sales record by almost twice as much. Part of this was put towards the band's spring trip to St. Louis. They played concerts on the way, in addition to taking in sights such as Busch Gardens, the St. Louis Zoo, and Six Flags over Mid-America. While at Six Flags the band competed against other area high school bands.

Sonya Sypkins, jr., concentrates on both marching and playing during a home football game.

Life-saving skills taught to students in gym classes

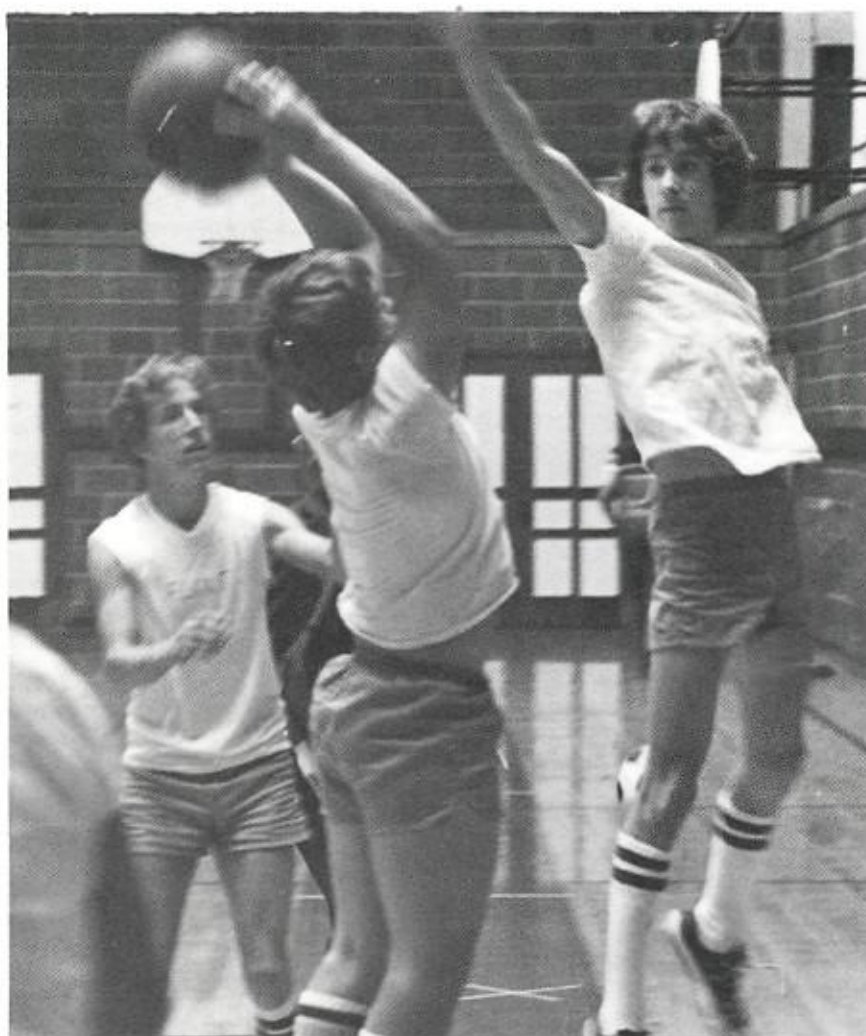

New to the Physical Education Department was the Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation Program, which dealt with emergency treatment of people with heart or breathing problems. Sophomores taking physical education as a required subject were taught this in five week intervals. Freshmen were instructed in the methods of First Aid for a nine week course.

Fall and spring courses were softball, tennis, canoeing, archery and track. Winter activities included volleyball, basketball, weightlifting, movement education, ping pong and swimming.

Sixth hour remained open for teacher-approved juniors and seniors to participate in the activities which interested them most.

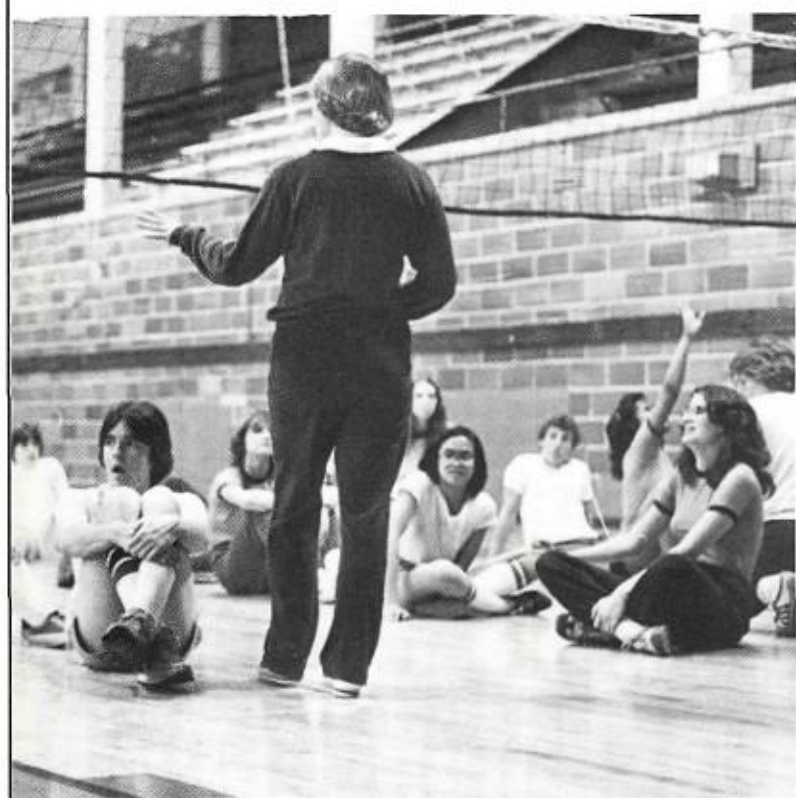

Weightlifting, training, and various practices were all held seventh hour.

One of the activities in the specialized gym class is basketball, which is widely participated in.

Mike Cole, soph., practices cardiac compressions for his CPR skills test, as Ronnie Bobbitt, soph., watches his technique.

As part of the gym class curriculum, Carlos Cortez, jr., learns to float on his back.

Social studies hosts visiting Israeli students

Through a variety of speakers and field trips, students in social studies classes gained awareness of the world around them. Courses were offered in a large number of areas, from the required Government and U.S. History classes to courses in Current Events, Sociology, and Psychology.

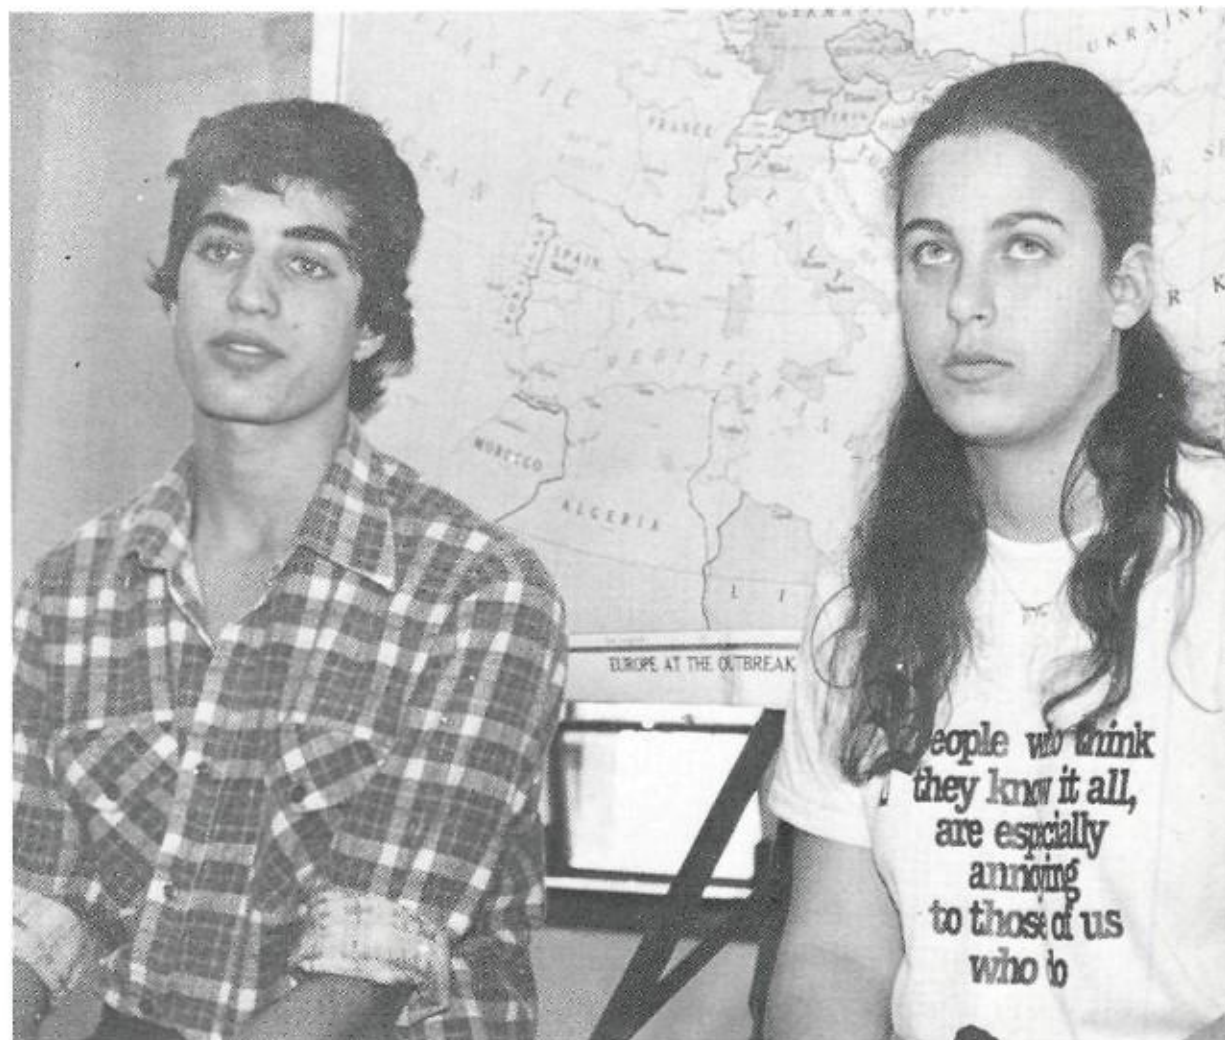

Learning outside of the classroom played a large part in these classes. Both Government and Sociology classes made trips to the court house to observe trials. Students in Sociology also made trips to a mortuary and a prison. Guest speakers covered topics dealing with divorce, separation, and police operations.

In April, two students from Israel visited with social studies classes. They answered questions about their lifestyle, as well as about the politics of their nation. They visited schools all over the U.S.

In an attempt to help students understand their country, Israeli students answer questions. Comparing notes in History, Gerrie Garcia and Randa Wilson, jr., work together to get the assignment done.

As Danny Lickey, jr., gives his utmost attention, Mr. Mitchell gets his point across to the class.

While examining the lower leg and foot bones in Biology, David Phillips and Brad Hoch, soph., learn the structure at the ankle.

The dissection of cats is just one of the many labs in Biology, as Darren Baker, sr., and Linda Sifford, jr., are shown pinning back the skin.

Astronomy newly offered by Science Dept.

Added to the Science Department was the Astronomy class. Taught by Mr. Warren Salley, this course was a study of planets, stars, and the heavens.

Radio Isotopes, radiation monitors, a telescope, a laser kit, and a radiation detector were just a few examples of the new equipment obtained by the department. A biomonitor, which gives audible and visual signals of the heart beat, was added to the Biology Department.

A study of the river and island was a task undertaken by the Biology classes. They learned of the many different kinds of plants and insects, classifying them by groups. The river was tested for impurities and bacteria with the new water test kits obtained by the department.

The Science Department obtained a lot of new equipment, thus making the courses much more up to date and interesting.

Self-sufficiency is taught in special education

"It is the philosophy of the Special Education Department to help each student reach his academic potential so he will become self-sufficient and lead a happy, fulfilling life," said Mr. Robert Gorill, E.M.H. teacher.

Students enrolled in E.M.H. (Educable Mentally Handicapped) are required to meet the state requirements but they receive special help by working on a one-to-one basis.

Another part of the Special Ed program is the L.D. program, which is a supportive program for students with learning disabilities. It gives them extra time in which they could finish assignments from other classes and receive extra help from L.D. teachers Mrs. Muenchrath and Mrs. Nigh.

Dealing with behavioral adjustment and self images, students in the P.S.A. (Personal Social Adjustment) program obtained help from Ms. Watts and Mr. Gutierrez.

Students may also receive special help with problems outside of school by talking with school psychologist Lola Ramsey or social worker Barbara Millar.

Nurse Gwendolyn Stanley is always ready to lend a hand for students who need medical attention.

Security officers Max Pugh and Ella May Phillips maintain order throughout the school.

Staff - Jennie Amacher, Rita Reiser, Lois Simons, LaVonne Bell, Sharon Smith, Charlene Friday, Bonnie Chadick, Pauline Hamlett, Karlene Yarbrough, Barbara Wilson.

One of Groundsman Pat Minard's many jobs is planting new trees around the campus.

Cafeteria - Vesta Rhodes, Helen Ard, Ruth Carpenter, Mary Schultz, Ann Stevens, Sue Ashpole.

New secretaries added to office to ease work load

Two new secretaries, Karlene Yarbrough and Judy Clary, were added to the returning secretarial staff of Lois Simons, Rita Reiser, and LaVonne Bell. Work started early for the secretaries as their jobs continued throughout the summer. They helped to keep the office running smoothly throughout the year.

Grounds-Keeper

Grounds-Keeper Pat Minard headed the program to replace dying trees. Red-oaks, Maples, Ash, and Redbud trees were planted to beautify the campus.

Custodians

Custodians started work early to prepare for August 25, when students came pouring through the doors ready for another busy year. Although the year started with 100 degree weather, it did not slow them down in their work, nor did the late nights of cleaning up after school dances and basketball games.

Redskins spend last few days parting, partying

By April, everyone began to notice a few changes around school.

Girls started wearing dresses again, long burly sweaters were exchanged for t-shirts and halter-tops. And for some reason, the dispositions of everyone (even teachers) became bright and cheerful.

What was it that transformed people from sullen masses of passers-by to happy, even jovial individuals? Something was happening to change the attitude of the students.

Aha! The end of school was just around the corner.

Some students spent the last few days filling their autograph books full of comments from their colleagues, some of whom they had to say "goodbye" to, while others reflected upon the successes and accomplishments that another year presented. Each new horizon encountered by students brought forth its own unique challenges for them.

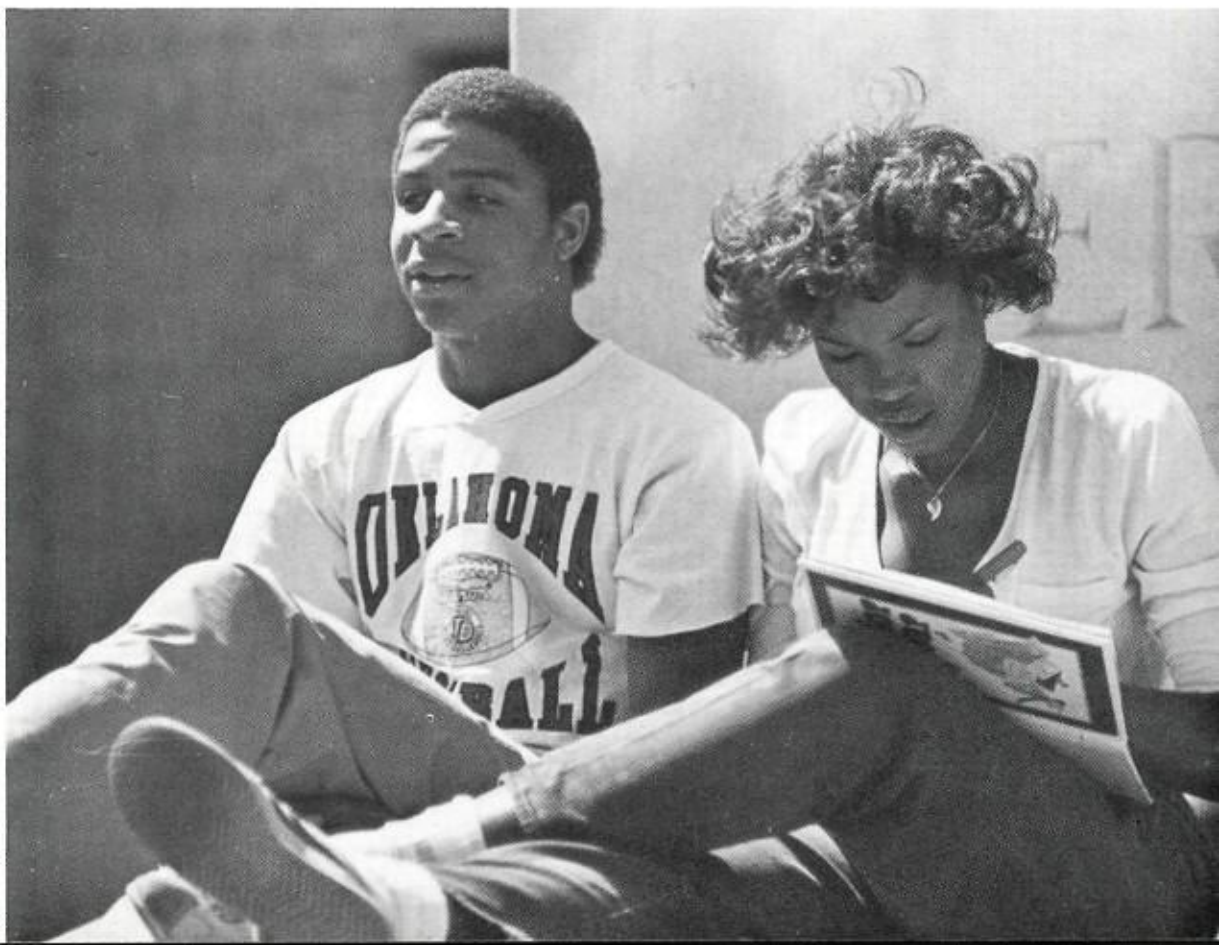

During the last month of school, students invested their energy into things like the annual Water Festival, Redskin Rhythms, the Junior-Senior Prom, and as much partying as possible.

Why was everyone so different on the last day? Because it was the last day!

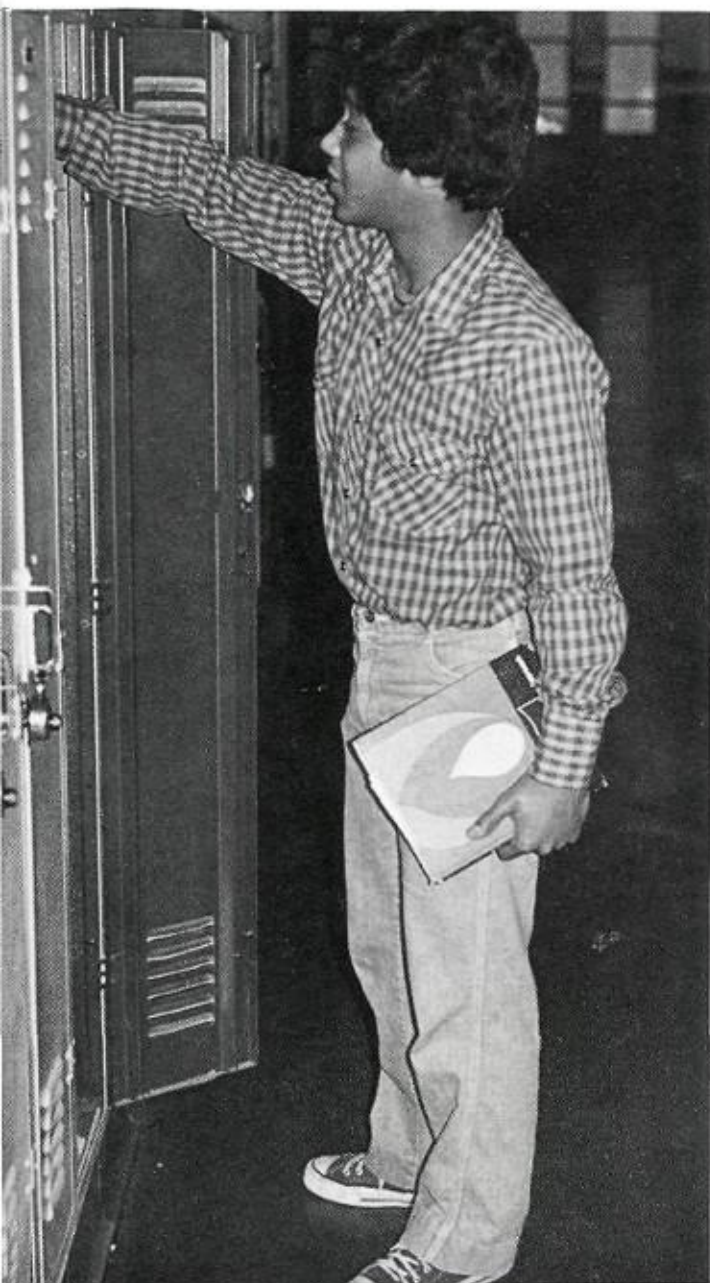

On the last day of school, students leave the building with fond memories of friends as they look onward to new horizons.

As another school year comes to an end, Clanita Curtis, sr., signs a senior book while Robin Thomas, jr., distracts her concentration.

Looking forward to summer activities, Hershel West, jr., eagerly cleans out his locker towards the end of May.

After a full day of school, Amy Friedel, sr., along with exchange students Sharon Ginav and Yossi Netzer, is ready to leave and enjoy the spring weather outside.

Right at three o'clock, students leave the building with the evening activities to look forward to.

Spring weather brings Danny Gegen, sr., and Richard Arambula, soph., outdoors for a leisurely lunch.

Royals, Shockers, Wings, Wind... fall just short of championships

"Close but no cigar." This famous expression became the oft-repeated theme for sports fans throughout Kansas.

Kansas City Royals

As the Kansas City Royals breezed through the regular season, and by the New York Yankees in three straight playoff games their fans had high expectations for the Royals in the World Series. However, the Philadelphia Phillies, in their first championship series in over 30 years, had the pitching to cool the K.C. bats and take the series in six games. Again Royal fans were forced to resign to their cry of "Wait'll next year."

Super Bowl

While struggling through adversity and much media attention focused on Al Davis, the owner of the Oakland Raiders, the team made it to the Super Bowl where they embarrassed the Philadelphia Eagles in a runaway game. Davis' blocked attempt to move his team to L.A., in addition to allegations he made against Pete Rozelle, the NFL commissioner, concerning ticket scalping, bothered his team little as they proceeded to win their second championship.

WSU vs KU

By defeating two teams in the early rounds of the NCAA's the Wichita State Shockers advanced to the semi-final rounds at the Superdome in New Orleans. The stage was set for the highlight of the playoffs.

The now famous "Battle of New Orleans," which WSU won 66-65, accomplished accidentally what years of legislation and persuasion could not. After failing to establish an interstate rivalry during the regular season, due to politics and financial reasons on the part of KU administration, the players finally had a chance to compete against each other. The season ended for the Shockers when they lost the Midwest Regional championship game to Louisiana State University.

Wichita Wings

After a very successful debut last year, the Wings returned for their second season and on the strength of an 18-2 home record, went on to capture their division. In a realignment of the league, the Wings were placed in the Western Division among the likes of Phoenix, Denver and San Francisco. After winning their first division crown they won two games at the friendly confines of the Kansas Coliseum to beat Chicago two games to one in the quarterfinals. In the semifinals in St. Louis against the Steamers, the Wings blew a large lead in the early going to end the season.

Wichita Wind

Another team that came a long way, but just not quite far enough to be crowned champion was Wichita's very own Wind hockey team. In their first year of existence they struggled through a mediocre season, and made their way to the playoffs. The Wind howled past Indianapolis and the first place Dallas team in the playoffs to advance to the championship series against Salt Lake City. After coming back to tie the best-of-seven series at three games apiece, the Wind lost the last game 5-2.

Former Wichitan Darnell Valentine puts one in the face of opponent who won this encounter, but WSU beat KU 66-65.

John Lennon poses in front of the Statue of Liberty during his immigration battle in the early seventies. Lennon won his court case and an extended visa.

World stunned by death of Lennon

The world was stunned on the night of Monday, December 8, 1980 as they learned of the assassination of John Lennon. Lennon was shot by a Beatles fan with a small caliber handgun, just outside his New York apartment house, and was dead on arrival at Roosevelt Hospital.

Lennon's death marked the passing of a hero; a man who cared about his world and the people in it. A man, who through his music expressed his inner self, and philosophized various aspects of life. By utilizing the influence that he possessed, because of his celebrity stature, Lennon became very involved in social causes, especially world peace.

Lennon's genius in practically all areas and aspects of music influenced most of the major rock and pop-oriented bands of the 1970's and early 1980's. He also changed the idea of rock bands that just played only good-time dance music. Lennon proved how versatile and useful music can be in forming opinions and the power that it can display.

In memory of Stuart Wilkinson

My Friend

*As I stand here, nothing around me but the sea,
I think of all the good times we had, just you and me.
We had our ups, and we had our downs.
We got into some arguments, even a few fights,
But it seems they never lasted any more than a night.
You were best at home in a driver's seat.
You always had a car hardly anyone could beat.
I remember you as a friend who was always there,
A person who helped and a person who cared.
I was working last Monday when they brought me
the news
The Chaplain told me, and we sat down and prayed,
I couldn't hold the tears back; nor did I try.*

*Stuart, my friend, I'll miss you the most,
And I loved you the most.
Now that you're gone I thank God I was blessed
just to know you
I understand, Dear Lord, that we all have to go.
But why you took my friend, I'll just never know.
All I know is that you got one heck of a guy
AND HEAVEN SHOULD BE PROUD.*

Your friend Alan

Acknowledgments

Wichita Eagle and Beacon for their photos on pages 36, 37, 126 and in the index.

Craig Senn for his help and cooperation with the graphic lines.

Your 1981 Tower was published by a diligent staff of five seniors and thirteen juniors. In this volume we've tried to include every major (and most of the minor) events that affected you and North High school.

We hope that we've spelled everyone's name right and have made no other embarrassing errors.

The yearbook staff also hopes that you don't file your yearbook so far back that you won't be able to find it in 20 years.
